Director Expected to Announce New Increase for Train Crews Today.

PAYROLL OF $3,000,000,000

400,000 MEN AFFECTED

Expenses Will Exceed Rate Increases by $550,000,000—80 Per Cent. Pay Increase Since War.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The Railroad Administration has agreed to grant a further increase of $65,000,000 in wages to train crews, bringing the railroad pay bill up to the annual basis of $3,000,000,000.

The new wage increase, which will affect approximately 400,000 men, will apply to firemen, engineers, conductors, and brakemen, and will probably be formally announced tomorrow afternoon by Director General Hines. Most of the men benefiting by the new increase are members of the Big Four Brotherhoods which received an increase of about $70,000,000 in wages under the Adamson act in 1916 and a further increase of about $100,000,000 last Summer on the basis of the recommendations made by the Lane Board to former Director General McAdoo.

Under war operations of the railroads by the Government the wage increases to railway employes have added $910,000,000 to the payrolls, while the railroad companies themselves in 1916 and 1917 raised wages by $350,000,000, making a total wage increase of $1,260,000,000 in three years. In the last three years the wage increases granted have more than absorbed all the additional revenues obtained from higher rates charged for freight and passenger traffic. The Interstate Commerce Commission allowed the railroad companies to increase rates in 1916 and 1917 by upward of $100,000,000 a year. The Government last year added more than $1,000,000,000. The total rate increases are accordingly upward of $1,100,000,000, while the wage increases are $1,200,000,000.

Increased cost of coal, steel, and other materials consumed by the railroads is not provided for in the higher traffic rates, and it is for this reason that the Railroad Administration is declared to be now facing large monthly operating deficits and is trying to reduce its cost for materials. The railroads consume a quarter of all the coal that is mined in the country. The coal bill of the railroads is now $470,000,000, an increase of $250,000,000 a year. The railroads are also paying $450,000,000 a year for steel products that formerly cost $250,000,000. The increased cost of all materials and supplies has added upward of $500,000,000 a year to the cost of producing the nation's transportation.

Adding the increased cost of materials to the advance in wages there has been a total increase in railroad operating expense in three years of $1,750,000,000 as against aggregate increases in rates of approximately $1,200,000,000. Increased labor and material cost have, therefore, outrun the increased freight and passenger rates by $550,000,000. The way in which the railroad payroll has grown may be shown as follows:

Payroll in 1917, (the last year of private operation,) $1,750,000,000.

Annual basis Jan. 1, 1918, when the Government took over the roads, $2,000,000,000.

Payroll in 1918, $2,700,000,000.

Annual basis, Jan. 1, 1919, $3,000,000,000.

The year's increase of $1,000,000,000 in the annual payroll basis is made up of $910,000,000 in rates of wages and $90,000,000 for additional men. The increase in the number of employes since 1917 is upward of 300,000.

To trainmen, (Adamson eight-hour law,) $70,000,000; to other employes, $280,000,000; total advances by companies, $350,000,000.

War advances in wages by Railroad Administration, 1918-19: First Cycle, (Lane Wage Board)—To trainmen, $160,000,000; to other employes, $240,000,000; total, $400,000,000.

Second Cycle, (Suplemental Increases)—To shopmen, $200,000,000; to trackmen, clerks, &c., $200,000,000; to telegraphers, agents, &c., $45,000,000; to trainmen, (April, 1919,) $65,000,000; total, $510,000,000.

WILSON TO BROOK NO FURTHER DELAY

May Not Await the George Washington, but Return on the Leviathan, if Peace Fails.

HAMPERED BY AGITATION

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 10.—While progress seems to have been made toward an agreement on peace terms, there is no overlooking the hard fact that the interallied negotiations are now in a most delicate stage. They are complicated by internal political and a variety of local interests difficult for Americans to understand.

Prime Minister Lloyd George is being pounded heavily by the influential portion of the British press. It is charged that he is inclined to be too lenient with Germany and is catering to the Bolsheviki. Coupled with this is the suggestion that Britain is not sticking by her ally, France.

The French press finds fault with the Council of Four for the same reasons. It is being claimed that French interests, as opposed to German interests, are given scant consideration.

Efforts along this line may have the effect of reviving irritation in the American delegation. They directly imply criticism of President Wilson's attitude in the Peace Conference. They are construed as designed to undermine strict adherence to the President's fourteen points.

The most important feature of the situation is that further delay is impossible. It cannot be too strongly emphasized that unless the Council of Four shall complete an agreement on peace terms within a short period, President Wilson will return home.

Seeking to Drive a Wedge.

Nobody is more anxious than the President to maintain the closest relations between America and France. The fact that America and Britain had been brought closer together in the peace exchanges that had been taking place meant, for one thing, that the two great English-speaking nations believed the absolute crushing of Germany was not essential to the future security of France. President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George found themselves in agreement on the fundamental principles which were supposed to dominate the Peace Congerence, and this great cordial feeling was expected to have a marked effect on future Anglo-American relationship. Now attempts apparently are being made to drive a wedge between the American and British delegations in the Peace Conference.

In this connection it may be stated that if President Wilson determines it is useless for him to remain longer in Paris, and if the George Washington has not reached Brest when he arrives at that conclusion, he will return to the United States on board the Leviathan. It is understood that

In Bitter Speech She Assails Premier, Wilson, League, and Politicians in General.

LONDON, April 10.—Great Britain faces more or less an immediate Parliamentary crisis. Lloyd George's threat to appeal to the country, sent by long distance telephone from Paris, is taken much more seriously today than it was on its delivery last night. It was in answer to a telegram signed by 370 members of the House of Commons, much more than a majority, demanding that the Premier make out a bill against Germany for the full cost of the war and compel the German Government to acknowledge it, and not until then discuss ways and means for its payment.

It is thought in well-informed quarters that when the fighting Premier returns to London next week to make a long-promised statement on the peace terms to the House, he may force a crisis at once. There is more than one direction in which Lloyd George is finding it hard to drive his huge coalition majority, and he may prefer to make a fight on the issue of German peace terms, rather than on others not yet so close to the surface.

It is not forgotten that the two battle cries with which Lloyd George swept his present top-heavy Commons into power were "Hang the Kaiser" and "Make Germany Pay." Perhaps four-fifths of the members are pledged to their constituents to make good these promises literally. Mr. Lloyd George, with his, perhaps, unrivalled powers of eloquence and persuasion, may feel it quite possible to convince the people that he has done his very best along these lines. If he so concludes, Great Britain may have another general election for members of Parliament within the next sixty or ninety days.

One does not take Horatio Bottomley and his weekly paper, John Bull, too seriously, but Bottomley is a member of Parliament and is often well informed on political matters. The current issue of John Bull outrivals our yellows in size of type which announces "General Election Coming." The editor outlines in a double-page article the reasons why he thinks a crisis is near.

One danger which he says the Government faces is that of possible disaster to the British forces at Archangel. "Should calamity occur," he says, "and you must be prepared for it, the Government would topple over like a pack of cards." But more immediate and even more dangerous, as Bottomley sees it, is the attitude of the great labor unions, which have announced their intention of calling a general strike if the new Military Service bill, which Secretary for War Winston Churchill is pushing through Parliament, is put into effect. Under this bill the period of service for men now conscripted is extended for another year. Labor charges that this is in violation of the Premier's election pledge that conscription should be abolished after the war.

Whether a general strike could be made effective as a protest remains uncertain. Appeals are to be chiefly backed by members of the Triple Alliance—railway men, miners, and transport workers. Their feeling against the bill was strengthened by a speech made for the Government in the House of Lords the other evening by Lord Curzon, who declared gravely that the clouds of war were by no means all cleared away and that the horizon was still dark with menace.

Within recent weeks the Northcliffe papers have been consistently and savagely attacking Premier Lloyd George, occasionally assisted by Lord Beaverbrook's paper, The Express. This week The New Witness, edited by Gilbert Chesterton, ferociously criticises the Premier because the peace conference has refused to give Danzig to Poland, and an almost daily chorus of complaint and chiding grows louder.

If the Premier actually comes home from Paris next week and addresses the House of Commons on Tuesday evening, as is now expected, things may actually come to a crisis then. Certainly it does not seem that it can be long delayed.

Austrians Appeal to Wilson For Troops to Occupy Vienna

GENEVA, April 10.—I am informed that prominent Austrian Liberal leaders have addressed an urgent appeal to President Wilson that American, British, and French troops be sent without delay to occupy Vienna and other cities in order to prevent anarchy and assure an impartial plebiscite on the question of union with Germany, to which they declare the vast majority of the Austrian people is at heart opposed.

AMERICANS REBEL IN NORTH RUSSIA

MEN WANT TO COME HOME

And Threaten a General Mutiny Unless Withdrawn When Weather Permits.

ARCHANGEL, April 8, (Associated Press.)—In view of the situation which has developed among the American troops in Archangel, official circles are impressed with the necessity of promptly relieving the American soldiers who are now in North Russia.

The soldiers have interpreted the Washington statement that they would be relieved at the earliest moment possible as meaning not later than June 1, which is the time they believe navigation at Archangel will probably open, and while out of a spirit of loyalty to their officers and to American traditions they express a willingness to stick it out until that date, they are exceedingly reluctant to go to the front and risk their lives.

A company of American troops recently showed some hesitation in returning to the fighting front south of Archangel, declaring the war with Germany was over and that the United States was not at war with the Bolsheviki. The regimental commander, in a speech, said that they were fighting a desperate defensive battle and appealed to them to stick it out. The company then left for the front.

The situation arose when the company named was ordered back to the front after a rest period at Archangel. The officers were informed that the men did not want to go to the front again. They asked to have their arguments answered. The men contended that they were draft men conscripted for the war with Germany, which was finished now; that America was not at war with the Bolsheviki; that the entire Bolshevist question was the subject of much political debate and indecision in the United States, and that so far as they were concerned they were unable to see why they should be fighting if there was no war.

The regimental commander said that perhaps their own lives depended on the fighting on this front, and then made his successful appeal, reciting to the men traditions of the American Army.

This incident was only the outcropping of what seems to be the general feeling among the American troops, officers as well as men. Because of this feeling, it is admitted more or less generally that the troops now here probably will be of little use after June 1.

In official circles in Archangel there is no disposition seriously to blame the troops for this condition. On their arrival in North Russia last September, the Americans were keen for fighting the Bolsheviki, who, they had been told, were German agents. They have fought bravely throughout the campaign and they are still doing so.

However, since the armistice with Germany was declared, the soldiers have been subjected to constant Bolshevist propaganda, which, together with their desire to return home after the end of

ALL ALLIES IN TRIBUNAL

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 10.—Wilhelm Hohenzollern is to be placed on trial before an international high tribunal specially constituted for the purpose. This action was decided upon yesterday by the Council of Four of the Peace Conference, consisting of the President of the United States and the Prime Ministers of France, Great Britain, and Italy. The decision was unanimous and all four signed a document indicting the former Kaiser and directing that he be brought to trial.

The charges on which the former Kaiser will be tried are violation of international morality and violation of the sanctity of treaties. For these crimes the former Kaiser is regarded by the Council of Four as personally responsible. These charges are more political than legal.

There was opposition in the Responsibility Commission, which investigated the question of Hohenzollern's responsibility, to bringing him to trial on charges which would not stand up under legal scrutiny. Secretary Lansing, who is regarded generally among leading peace emissaries as one of the foremost authorities on international law, submitted a memorandum, separate from the report of the commission, in which he contended that a sovereign could not be held responsible legally for acts of his subjects.

The recommendation of a majority of the commission that the former Kaiser be tried by a special court for violations of international morality sanctioned by himself personally prevailed, however. Before adjournment of yesterday's session of the Council of Four the indictment of the former Kaiser had been signed and it was settled that Wilhelm Hohenzollern, whatever his particular fate may be, will never again be a free man.

In a dispatch sent from Paris to THE NEW YORK TIMES Wednesday it was disclosed that the Commission on Responsibilities had decided that the former Kaiser should not be subjected to danger of the death penalty for the crimes he had committed against humanity. How far the special high tribunal to be created as a result of the action of the Council of Four Wednesday will feel called upon to go in fixing the penalty is a matter upon which it would be useless to speculate. The most that may be said is that the discussions among those who will have a large part in determining Hohenzollern's fate indicate that at the very least he will never be permitted again to have that degree of freedom which would afford him opportunity of becoming a menace to the world's happiness.

Wednesday's action of the Council of Four had a double importance in

Elevator Sticks With Wilson in It; He Has to Use Stairs to Visit Makino

PARIS, April 10, (Associated Press.)—Between sessions of the Council of Four, which took up more than the usual time, President Wilson crowded into his day two calls—one on Queen Marie of Rumania in the morning, when he was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson and Rear Admiral Grayson, and the other in the afternoon on Baron Makino, chief of the Japanese delegation to the Peace Conference.

With the Japanese statesman, it is understood, the President discussed the Japanese suggestions for alterations in the League of Nations pact. The visit to the Queen, however, was entirely social, notwithstanding an endeavor by the Queen to introduce questions concerning Rumanian aspirations. Every attempt by the Queen to switch the conversation to matters political met with smiling replies on the part of the President, who was successful in confining the talk to social topics.

The call at the hotel where the Japanese delegation is living afforded the attachés and residents of the hotel some moments of interest. The President was recognized as he entered the lobby, and interest centred in him as he moved to the elevator.

The climax of this situation was reached when the car stuck midway between floors. It was impossible for the elevator boy to move the car up, so he brought it back to the lower floor. This necessitated the President making his way to the apartments of Baron Makino by way of the stairs through a crowd of curious persons and chagrined hotel attendants.

French Senators Demand Full Restitution and Payment of Full Cost of War by Enemy

PARIS, April 10, (Havas.)—After today's session of the Senate the Senators signed the following resolution:

"The members of the Senate of the French Republic, once more voicing their desire that the international conferences at present in session draft a treaty worthy of the victory of the allied armies and of such a nature as to establish peace and justice throughout the world, express the hope that full restitution will be exacted from the enemy, together with reparation for damage caused to persons and property, and that the full cost of the war will be imposed on those responsible for the greatest crime of history.

"The Senators are resolved to insist that the peace treaty and League of Nations proyide legal and territorial guarantees sufficiently strong to prevent future wars and preclude all provocations which might lead to war."

The Chamber of Deputies today discussed the report of the special committee on Reparations for War Damages and adopted twenty articles of the report during the forenoon session.

The expenses of France, the report says, will be enormous and the burden should lie entirely on Germany. Reparation for France must be claimed with the right of priority because of its urgent character. It is admitted that Germany may not be able to pay immediately in cash or raw materials, and it is declared that France, therefore, must work out a financial plan in order to permit reconstruction of various phases of French life to continue without halt.

Henry Franklin-Bouillon, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, has asked the Chamber to appoint a special committee to examine the questions to be solved by the Peace Conference. The committee would have ninety members.

Paris Papers Say British Disquiet Supports Allies' Last Plea for "Justice."

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 10.—The storm of French anxiety regarding the Peace Conference has burst at last. All barriers are down and the newspapers are full of articles insisting in no uncertain terms that France shall receive justice. It thus appears that, despite the censorship, a feeling of doubt and even of dissatisfaction, which had been prevalent in well informed French circles for the last two months, has definitely pervaded and aroused general public opinion.

Those familiar with the way opinion was formed here during the war have long asserted that this doubt and dissatisfaction existed, but owing to the muzzling of the press such opinion found difficulty in gaining expression. It was equally hard to obtain for publication any statement of the French views from men in public life, to all of whom "the fear of the Tiger" is the ever present "beginning of wisdom." As for official declarations, they hovered between embarrassed vagueness and a not too spontaneous optimism.

Now the urgency of the crisis has produced a change. Encouraged by the attitude of the British Parliament, the Matin continues its campaign in favor of France's demands, which it began yesterday.

"The disquiet expressed in the cable of the British Deputies reflects exactly the disquiet in France, whereof the Matin is interpreter," says that paper. "Lloyd George's mandatories remind him that the claim for damages ought to be 'the first act of the Peace Delegates,' and that after five months 'British electors are still awaiting it.'" To which the Matin adds, "French electors also."

In reply to a question of Radul Pecet, President of the Chamber Budget Commission, as to the form in which the peace preliminaries will be presented to the Chamber, Premier Clemenceau declined to give any details for the present.

"So the Commissions and Parliament find themselves unable to prepare a budget," continues Le Matin. "In default of settling Germany's account, France's credit is left in air. Production is paralyzed, uncertainty is everywhere, uneasiness of industry and business grows, and France is asking what has been done with her victory.

"If Britain is disquieted, what must be the feelings of the country that has borne the weight of invasion, in whose richest sections there will be no harvest to garner next Summer save the crop of crosses above the graves? Why are our Deputies silent? Have they no viewpoint?

"Even though it be forbidden them to know ought of the world's fate—of this match of Four which is being played—can they not at least manifest an opinion? Is public opinion only a vague murmur, then, in their ears? Yesterday at the Sorbonne, Barthou cried, 'Decision would be too cruel, and revolt too

LEAGUE CHANGES GIVEN IN OUTLINE

New Draft Shows Many Amendments Made to Better the Phraseology.

WITHDRAWAL IS ALLOWED

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

PARIS, April 10.—At the meeting of the League of Nations Commission tonight at the Hotel Crillon under the Chairmanship of President Wilson the Committee on Revision presented its revised draft of the League covenant.

The new draft contains the amendments authorized by the League Commission and many changes in phraseology, intended to correct the looseness of the first draft.

Herewith is an outline of the report submitted by the Committee on Revision which was appointed by President Wilson and consisted of legal experts with supervisory members, of whom Colonel House represented the United States.

By comparison of the outline with the published first draft of the covenant the changes previously authorized and redrafted will be understood.

A provision directly referring to the Monroe Doctrine was presented and adopted.

The Changes.

In reading the outline, it is evident that an effort was made by the Revision Committee to meet the objections to first draft, raised in the Senate and elsewhere in America. The outline of changes follows:

Article I.—The Executive Council is called the "Council."

Article II.—The body of delegates is called the "Assembly."

Article III.—The provisions have been rearranged and generally redrafted.

Article IV.—Regarding the body of delegates there is the following provision: "At meetings of the Assembly the voting shall be by States; each member of the League shall have one vote and may have not more than three representatives."

There is another provision similar to Article IV as to the Council except that each State is to have only one representative.

There is this provision in Article V.: "Except where otherwise expressly provided in this covenant, decisions at any meeting of the Assembly or of the Council shall require the agreement of all the States represented at the meeting."

There is this provision in Article VII: "All positions under or in connection with the League, including the Secretariot, shall be open equally to men and women."

Article X, to which the Monroe Doctrine amendment will be offered, is unchanged.

There is a specific provision in Article XV. that in the event of a report by the Council, which is not unanimous in

MONROE SECTION ADOPTED

Wilson Presents Amendment Drafted by Col. House.

MEETS LITTLE OPPOSITION

Saar Valley Will Be Under the League for a Term of Fifteen Years.

TREATY NOT TO BE PUBLIC?

Smaller Nations Stirred by Report That It Will Go to Germany Before They See It.

Geneva Has Been Chosen As Capital of the League

PARIS, Friday, April 11.—Geneva, Switzerland, has been chosen as the seat of the League of Nations, according to announcement made here.

PARIS, April 10, (Associated Press.)—The League of Nations Commission adopted tonight a new section specifically providing that the Monroe Doctrine is not to be affected by the provisions of the covenant.

The Monroe Doctrine amendment was prepared by Colonel Edward M. House.

The commission considered and passed ten sections of the covenant. The Japanese amendment was not reached and the actual text of the section, exempting the Monroe Doctrine from the provisions of the covenant, is not yet available.

American Commissioners stated, however, that the Doctrine was definitely named in the provision, guaranteeing that it would not be affected by the terms in the covenant.

Another meeting will be held tomorrow night, when it is hoped that the work will be completed.

The adoption of the section exempting the Monroe Doctrine was the only real exemption made during the meeting tonight. President Wilson offered the amendment and made a plea for it, saying that he believed the Doctrine was protected under the terms of the covenant as they stood, but, because of the demands for specific exemption, he felt it imperative that the amendment should be added. There was some adverse argument, but the amendment was adopted without prolonged opposition.

Suffrage Delegation Heard.

During their session the League Commission received a deputation from the International Woman Suffrage Council, which asked that the principle of suffrage for women be recognized in the covenant of the League as one which should be applied throughout the world as soon as civilization and the democratic development of each country might permit.

The delegation also asked that the States entering the League undertake the suppression of traffic in women and children and the licensing of vice.

A number of English, American, French, and Italian women supported the request.

André Tardieu, Viscount Morley, and Charles H. Haskins, the Special Committee on Western Europe Boundaries, were called before the Council of Four at its session today. This gave rise to the belief that Premiers Lloyd George, Clemenceau, and Orlando and President Wilson were considering the problem of the Rhine Valley.

Sarre Valley Under League.

It became known today that a provision that the League of Nations should exercise general supervision of the Sarre Valley for a period of fifteen years was obtained in the settlement of the Sarre problem effected yesterday by the Big Four.

At the end of the fifteen-year period a plebiscite will be taken to determine the wishes of the inhabitants regarding the future form of government.

The change was made to avoid annexation and establish the principle of self-determination.

France obtains economic control of the coalfields of the Sarre Valley up to an amount to recompense her for the losses sustained from German occupation of the coalfields of Northern France.

The plenary session of the Peace Conference will be held tomorrow for the consideration of the labor report, and it is awaited with much interest because of the dissatisfaction existing among the smaller nations. The indications are that there may be interpellations concerning the secrecy with which the Big Four is surrounding itself, and rumors that negotiations may open with the Germans without fully advising all the peace delegates of the terms of the treaty. Without exception the smaller nations are said to be displeased at being kept in the dark.

The labor report is to be presented for open discussion, and consequently there will be opportunity for general debate unless steps are taken to prevent it.

The Council of Four is strongly opposed to official publication of the peace treaty before its submission to the Germans. It maintains that it is allowing positive decisions to be announced and that consequently the public will be advised on all the main points before the treaty is signed.

This piecemeal and incomplete publication is unsatisfactory to many delegates, who are urging that the people of the allied countries should have the text of the peace treaty from their officials before the Germans announce it with their interpretations.

The statement was published today, attributed to British sources, that the terms of the peace treaty would not be presented to a plenary session of the Peace Conference until after they had been communicated to the Germans. This started the comment among delegates of the nations not represented on the Council of Four.

The publication brought from the American Mission the statement that it was opposed to such a plan.

WASHINGTON AWAITS TEXT.

Monroe Amendment Expected to Have Big Influence on Senators.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The adoption by the League of Nations Commission at Paris of an amendment providing specifically that the Monroe Doctrine is not to be affected by the covenant is expected to go a long way toward meeting the objections of Senators who have been the most determined critics of the League plan as originally announced.

Senators Lodge, Knox, Borah, Johnson, Poindexter, and others have emphasized their demand for modifying the League plan so as to protect the Monroe Doctrine. Whether the particular amendment adopted will satisfy their views will depend, of course, on its exact language, but it is assumed that the Doctrine is fully safeguarded.

The views of Senator Lodge could not be obtained tonight, as he had retired before the news of the action in Paris reached Washington. The only Senator whose views were expressed was Senator Hiram Johnson of California, who said:

"I am very much interested in hearing of the change. However, I wish to see the document in its entirety before making any comment."

Senator Borah, who criticised the League for its failure to safeguard the Monroe Doctrine as he conceived it, is in the Middle West making speeches in opposition to the League. It is very doubtful whether the adoption of the amendments will satisfy him, as his opposition to the League plan is so pronounced that he is expected to vote against any League of Nations.

BRITISH LABOR PARTY WANTS PEACE AT ONCE

Demands End to Discussions and Settlement on Basis of Wilson's Points.

LONDON, April 10, (Associated Press.)—The National Executive of the Labor Party at a meeting today formulated a statement of policy, demanding that the Paris Conference put an end to the protracted discussions and make peace in accordance with President Wilson's Fourteen Points.

The Labor Party also demands the withdrawal of the Conscription bill, the cessation of military interference in Russia, and the speedy withdrawal from that country of British troops.

CHARGES INTRIGUE ON RUSSIA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 10.—"When we turn to Russia," runs an article in the New Europe, which generally discusses the Paris Conference under the suggestive title, "Nearing the Rapids," "we are overwhelmed with shame."

Arguing that there can be no hope of a secure or permanent peace in Europe until a solution has been found of the Russian problem and that the treatment meted out by the Entente statesmen to those Russians who risked everything in the common cause and who represent all save the two extreme wings of Russian political life, is one of the most humiliating things in this war, New Europe says:

"Today Lloyd George and, to our intense regret, we must add, President Wilson, are bolstering up one of the worst and least efficient tyrannies which the world has known for the sake of their own abstract theories and, worse still, the exigencies of home politics."

New Europe, whose contributors include many representatives of European intelligence, and which has been a conspicuous admirer of the Wilsonian policies, addresses a series of questions with regard to Russia to the British Premier. Some of the points dealt with were referred to in the House of Commons debate last night, when Home Secretary Shortt denied official knowledge by the British delegation in Paris of proposals from Lenine brought by the Bullitt-Steffens mission to Russia. New Europe, however, asks:

"Is it true that Bullitt and Steffens and other American journalists who have no first-hand knowledge of Russia were secretly dispatched to Moscow with the direct connivance of Lloyd George and President Wilson?"

It is further asked if Arthur Ransome accompanied these emissaries on their return and with them prepared not merely a verbal report but a written document signed by Lenine stating the terms he would be prepared to accept. Ransome was The Daily News correspondent who was alleged to have Bolshevist sympathies.

After suggesting that the "whole intrigue" was conducted behind the back of the British Foreign Office and the French Government, New Europe puts these questions:

"Is it true that recognition of the Bolshevist Government is being actively pushed by certain international financiers in New York and London; that a wealthy neutral bank with American capital is especially active in London and Paris in the cause of Lenine; that the Bolsheviki have already offered commercial concessions to certain British capitalists and that at least one has accepted the offer? Is it true that a rich American capitalist living in a Swiss hotel financed the recent Socialist conference at Berne and that he is in close touch with those who have been most insistent that Lloyd George should come to terms with the Bolsheviki? Is it true that the Bolshevist leaders themselves make no concealment of their belief that the overtures of Entente statesmen are inspired by motives of concession hunting and financial greed?"

WILSON "HAMMERING AHEAD."

"Good Progress" Reported in Cabled Advices to White House.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—President Wilson is "hammering ahead" and has made "good progress" in his negotiations in Paris, according to advices received today at the White House.

It was not stated just what progress had been made, but the advices seemed to cause considerable satisfaction in official quarters.

LEAGUE CHANGES GIVEN IN OUTLINE

the sense there mentioned, the members of the League reserve the right to take such action as they consider necessary for the maintenance of right and justice.

There is a new provision in the old Article XIX., now XX., the second paragraph after the word "responsibility," reads as follows, "and who are willing to accept it."

Article I contains the following provision: "Any member of the League may, after two years' notice of its intention so to do, withdraw from the League, provided that all its international obligations and all its obligations under this covenant shall have been fulfilled at the time of its withdrawal."

Article XV contains the following provision: "If the dispute between the parties is claimed by one of them and is found by the Council to arise out of a matter which by international law is solely within the domestic jurisdiction of that party, the Council shall so report and shall make no recommendation as to its settlement."

Another change provides that amendments are now permitted when ratified by the States represented on the Council and also by a majority of all the members.

ASKS COPY OF DRAFT OF OUR LEAGUE PLAN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—It became known tonight that the State Department was requested on April 3 last by Senator Frank B. Brandegee of Connecticut, a Republican member of the Foreign Relations Committee, to furnish him with a copy of the plan for a League of Nations which the American delegation submitted to the Peace Conference at Paris. This information is made public in advance proofs of an editorial in Harvey's Weekly for April 12, containing the text of Senator Brandegee's letter and, amplifying the letter, part of a colloquy which took place between Senator Brandegee and President Wilson in the conference immediately following the famous White House dinner of Feb. 27, at which President Wilson had as his guests members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

"This letter was delivered by hand on April 4," says Harvey's Weekly, "but thus far has brought no satisfactory response; indeed, at this writing, mere receipt of the communication is yet to be acknowledged."

FRANCE'S ANXIETY IS AT FEVER HEAT

By WALTER DURANTY.

strong, if Germany, the aggressor, saved by imprudent pity, did not bear the weight and pay the debt of her crimes.'

"The entire assembly rose and saluted in these words the claim of France and of the civilized world. That claim does not rest with the Four. The Four have but a mandate to assure its acceptance. And if the tide of anguish rises, it is because the mystery with which the Four surround themselves grows daily more threatening."

In a similar strain, Gauvain in the Journal des Debats recapitulates the "errors and weaknesses" of allied policy since the armistice, and reminds his readers that it took four years of war and two disasters, one after the other, to get unity of command, but that there exists nothing yet resembling unity of diplomacy. He declares the heart of the trouble is that the four allied chiefs are all strong personalities, whose habits of authority are hard to reconcile with good conducting of delicate negotiations.

The article concludes:

"It is impossible that, despite differing tendencies and modes of thought, the Four are not in basic agreement on a certain number of points regarding the settlement of the war. Let them fix these, then, and after giving common instructions to their delegates, leave them to settle details. In the present method of dabbling with everything and finishing nothing, Easter will be here before even the armistice is completed. Instead of participating in the Resurrection, the world will have a new Calvary to climb."

"We don't want to annex a single German," it declares. "The population of the left bank can govern itself as it wishes and maintain with Germany what links it pleases. But we will hold the Rhine militarily and will thus possess not only an unattackable frontier, but the surest—one might say only—pledge for our debt."

French insistence on this point is due to a feeling that the League of Nations will not be an adequate guarantee of France's security. Even the original covenant gave rise to serious doubt in this respect, and in its new form, France feels that other and more effective protection is needed against Germany.

If further proof of the French attitude were required, it is given by Le Petit Parisien—which, like Le Matin, had hitherto refrained from active part in controversy—and which devotes two reading front-page columns to a passionate appeal on France's behalf by Senator Henry Cheron. Under a spread headline, "Full Justice What France Desires," Le Petit Parisian says: "In the following article Senator Cheron gives voice to the general alarm."

The Senator's plea is based on France's right to full reparation, material and moral. Material reparation, he says, means payment by Germany not only of pensions and damages but, as far as possible, of war costs.

"Any other solution," he says, "would be the most monstrous injustice in history. Shall a people that has been invaded and martyred be made to pay? It would be the victim paying for the assassin, under the pretext that the latter's resources must be safeguarded."

By moral reparation, the Senator implies France's protection against future aggression. "President Wilson declared once that France's frontiers are those of humanity," he concludes. "They must then be rendered inviolable."

It is noteworthy that, with the exception of this reference to the President, and a request in L'Echo de Paris that "America should remember that one of the regiments which sailed with Lafayette came from the town of Deuxponts in the Sarre Valley," there is nowhere in the French press a single allusion to America's part in the Conference, or a word of reproach for the present situation.

HAIG IS AMAZED AT ALLIED VICTORY

INFANTRY STILL MAIN ARM

Creation of New Army in Midst of Conflict Most Noteworthy Feature for Historians.

LONDON, April 10, (British Wireless Service.)—Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, in his final dispatch now made public, presents an important review of the war and describes in detail the expansion and achievements of the British army, with many remarkable facts and figures. He treats the operations on the Western front as a single continuous campaign, in which can be recognized the same general features and necessary stages that, between forces of approximately equal strength, have marked all the conclusive battles of history.

"The high water mark of our fighting strength in infantry," says the British commander, "was only reached after two and a half years of conflict, by which time heavy casualties had already been incurred. It was not until midsummer, 1916, that the artillery situation became even approximately adequate to the conduct of major operations.

"During the Somme battle artillery ammunition had to be watched with the greatest care. During 1917 ammunition was plentiful, but the gun situation caused anxiety. It was only in 1918 that artillery operations could be conducted without any limiting consideration beyond that of transport.

"The margin with which the German onrush of 1914 was stemmed was so narrow, and the subsequent struggle was so severe that the word 'miraculous' is hardly too strong a term to describe the recovery and ultimate victory of the Allies.

"The breakdown of Russia in 1917 probably prolonged the war by a year, and the military situation in Italy in the Autumn of 1917 necessitated the transfer of five British divisions to Italy at a time when their presence in France might have had far-reaching effects."

Sir Douglas records the interesting fact that more than half the British casualties in the fighting of 1918 occurred during the five months from March to July, when the Allies were on the defensive.

"The rapid collapse of Germany's military powers in the latter half of 1918," he says, "was the logical outcome of the fighting of the previous two years. It would not have taken place but for that period of ceaseless attrition which used up the German reserves. It is in the great battles of 1916 and 1917 that all have to seek for the secret of our victory in 1918."

The value of cavalry in modern war is emphasized by Sir Douglas Haig, and, in discussing the value of mechanical contrivances such as tanks, he observes that, immense as their influence might have been, they could not by themselves decide a campaign. Their true rôle is to assist infantrymen, by whose rifles and bayonets only can decisive victory be won.

The expansion of British personnel, artillery, ammunition transport, railway construction, and establishments of every kind in France is dwelt upon by the Field Marshal. Regarding machine guns, the British equipment increased from one gun to 500 infantrymen in 1914 to one to twenty infantrymen in 1918. The 486 pieces of artillery with which the British took the field in 1914 were represented at the date of the armistice by 6,437.

On the first day of the Somme battle in 1916 nearly 13,000 tons of artillery ammunition were fired by the British on the Western front. On two days, Sept. 20 and 21, 1917, 42,000 tons were expended, and in the three days of the crucial battle of Sept. 27, 27 and 29, 1918, nearly 65,000 tons were fired by the British artillery.

Sir Douglas says that the feature of the war which to the historian may well appear most noteworthy is the creation of the new British Army, which was successfully built up in the very midst of the war.

"The total of more than 327,000 German prisoners captured by us on the western front," says Sir Douglas, "is in striking contrast to the force of six divisions, comprising some 80,000 fighting men, with which we entered the war. That we should have been able to accomplish this stupendous task is due partly to the loyalty and devotion of our Allies and to the splendid work of the Royal Navy, but mainly to the wonderful spirit of the British race in all parts of the world."

With respect to the use of cavalry, Sir Douglas Haig contends that, in the light of full experience of the war, the decision to preserve the cavalry corps has been completely justified.

"It has been proved," he adds, "that cavalry, whether used for shock effect, under suitable conditions, or as mobile infantry, have still an indispensable part to play in modern war. Moreover, it cannot safely be assured that in all future wars the flanks of the opposing forces will rest on neutral States or impassable obstacles."

The Field Marshal devotes a special section to "Why We Attacked Whenever Possible," in which he says:

"The object of all war is victory, and a purely defensive attitude can never bring about a successful decision."

He emphasizes that the defensive rôle sooner or later produces a lowering of morale, while the defender becomes almost entirely ignorant of his opponent's dispositions and plans. This was exemplified in the fighting of 1918.

"So long as the enemy was attacking, he obtained fairly full information regarding our dispositions," says Sir Douglas, "but so soon as he was thrown on the defensive, and the initiative returned to the Allies, he was kept in comparative ignorance of our plans and dispositions, and the Allies were able to effect many surprises, both strategic and tactical."

In this section the Field Marshal thanks the various commanders and his staff, and mentions Lieut. Col. Bacon, who, he says, "as Chief of the American mission attached to my headquarters has been able to give me advice and assistance of the greatest value on many occasions."

WILSON'S SHIP OFF TODAY.

Dr. Da Costa's Assignment to Vessel Not on Account of President.

The naval transport George Washington, the ship used by President Wilson on his voyages to and from Europe, will sail for Brest, France, from the army piers in Hoboken at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. At the headquarters of the Transport Service in Hoboken it was said yesterday that no one there was able to account for the apparently officially inspired story printed yesterday morning that the George Washington would sail yesterday afternoon. The liner, if good weather conditions prevail, should arrive at Brest the latter part of next week.

Dr. J. Chalmers Da Costa of the navy, lately of the instruction staff of the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, will sail on the ship. Dr. Da Costa, it was said, has been assigned to the George Washington in the regular course of duty, his time for a tour of sea duty having arrived. No one at the Port of Embarkation seemed to take any stock in the story that Dr. Da Costa's assignment had anything to do with the health of the President, who, according to latest reports, is rapidly regaining his strength, following a severe cold.

The George Washington has been made ready for a speedy voyage. Among her passengers will be L. J. McKenna, the American Consul General at Zurich, Switzerland, his wife, and three children; Vice Consul Walter S. Ruffin, also en route to duty in Switzerland; Maor Gen. Peter Harris, Adjutant General of the army; Lieutenant Boarini of the Italian Army, Captain J. A. Duggan, U. S. A.; Mme. de Tonay of the French Red Cross Society, sixteen Y. M. C. A. field workers, four Y. W. C. A. workers, and three Jewish Welfare Board workers, among the latter Rabbi Melchin of this city.

Lieutenant H. L. Leeb, U. S. N., who has been serving as naval radio officer at the Port of Embarkation, was ordered to duty aboard the George Washington yesterday. He will be in charge of the wireless on the ship and will direct the operation of the wireless telephone system on the liner. The wireless telephone plant on the George Washington has been greatly improved of late, and President Wilson may talk with the departments at Washington every day during the voyage.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

preparatory action in that direction already has been taken.

Delay of President's Order.

A curious story is going the rounds that an unauthorized effort was made to prevent the Navy Department from receiving the messages, transmitted at President Wilson's instance, directing that the George Washington be sent to France with the least possible delay. Orders for the George Washington to return were sent from Paris Sunday by Admiral Benson, special naval adviser to the American peace delegation. They presumably were in the United States naval code. In accordance with routine practice, the orders were telegraphed to the office of the commander of the American naval forces in London, with directions to forward them to Washington.

According to the story that is being told, somebody in Paris who learned of the directions for the recall of the George Washington telephoned to American naval headquarters in London not to forward them to the Navy Department. Whoever did this—granted it was done—appears to have impressed our London naval headquarters with his authority in the matter. At any rate, there was a delay in transmission, which seems to account for the statements attributed to Assistant Secretary Roosevelt and Secretary Tumulty, and cabled to Paris newspapers, that they had not seen any orders for the George Washington to return.

The most that can be said at this time is that President Wilson has ordered an investigation of the cause of the delay in the transmission of Admiral Benson's orders from London to Washington.

Lloyd George to Face Critics.

April 9.—If the pessimistic ones are to be credited with good judgment, the general situation in the Peace Conference has become complicated again through the attitude of 300 members of the House of Commons, who signed a statement demanding that the Allies exact from Germany the full amount of the cost of the war. It is understood that Premier Lloyd George is returning to London Monday to face his critics and seek a solution of the difficulty presented by this demand.

The Big Four have already agreed that the reparation to be made by Germany shall be measured by Germany's ability to pay. The formula of assessing reparation as has been worked out provides for the payment of only a small portion of the total allied war costs, which the British estimated would amount to $120,000,000,000.

In connection with the understanding that Lloyd George will return to England Monday it is reported that a prominent newspaper proprietor—a mutual friend of Lloyd George and Lord Northcliffe—has gone to the south of France to see Northcliffe and endeavor to persuade him to modify the attitude of his newspapers toward Lloyd George, whose course in the Peace Conference is being subjected to heavy attacks in the Northcliffe papers.

The Council of Four, at its session today, with President Wilson present, considered the difficult subjects of the Saar coal basin and fixing responsibility for the war—the latter involving the disposition of the former Kaiser's person. It was stated after the meeting that good progress had been made in the consideration of both questions, which means anything or nothing.

LONDON, April 10.—Premier Lloyd George hopes to return to London from Paris Tuesday and to make a statement regarding the Peace Conference in the House of Commons on Wednesday. This announcement was made in the House today by Edward Shortt, Home Secretary.

GERMANY TO HOLD BAVARIA BY FORCE

Noske Announces That Munich Will Be Compelled by Arms to Return to Order.

REDS LINK WITH RUSSIA

Munich Soviet Establishes Diplomatic Relations with the Lenine Government.

BERLIN, via Copenhagen, April 10.—Gustav Noske, Minister of Defense, said in an interview today in the Tageblatt that the German authorities were prepared for all possibilities. He reviewed the situation as follows:

"Magdeburg is completely in our hands. Motor boats armed with machine guns are patrolling the Elbe to protect vessels carrying relief foodstuffs.

"Conditions in Bavaria are such that if Premier Hoffmann holds out a short time we will be able to solidify opinion in favor of a legitimate Government. If no other way is possible, Munich will be compelled by arms to return to order as in the cases of Bremen and Düsseldorf.

"We must hit with all our energy rather than allow the country to be precipitated into an abyss. If blood is spilled it will be on the heads of the Communist maniacs. The situation in the Ruhr district is much better than the sensational press pretends."

Diplomatic relations have been established between the Russian and Bavarian Soviet Governments, according to the Zwölf Uhr Blatt.

Wuerzburg Rises Against Reds.

COPENHAGEN, April 9.—Dispatches from Kissingen report that the citizens and officials of Würzburg have struck against the Bavarian Soviet republic and that the town is now in the hands of Government troops.

Heavy fighting against Spartacide forces took place when Government troops stormed the royal palace and captured the railway station, but the fortress of Marienberg, across the Main River from Würzburg, was handed over without opposition.

Most of the Spartacide leaders are reported to have been arrested. Railway communication with the city has been interrupted.

Rival Appeals in Bavaria.

MUNICH, April 8, (Associated Press.)—The Bavarian Soviet Government and the Government which it is attempting to depose issued appeals to the Bavarian population today. Eric Mühsam, a member of the Communist Central Council, in an appeal to the proletariat said:

"Without regard to differences of opinion, the Communist leaders and the working population are united in working for the realization of Socialism and Communist dictatorships. A Red Army will be created immediately and connection with Russia and Hungary will be effected immediately. The socialization of newspapers assures genuine expression of opinion.

"The new revolutionary power will order new elections as soon as possible on the revolutionary basis, in which the council system will build itself up, and in which all questions about their affairs will be decided by the working people; but only by the working people, because the capitalists will not share in the right of determination."

From Bamberg the Hoffmann Government countered with an appeal to the Bavarian people, calling attention to the sufferings of four years of war and outlining a program which the Cabinet has decided upon for the welfare of the State. The appeal concludes by urging the workmen and all others to stand behind the Government which they elected and in a spirit of democracy to carry on the reconstruction work despite the dictatorship of terror "which threatens the freedom of the Bavarian people."

HEARS EBERT WILL SIGN ANY PEACE IMPOSED

Paris Gets Report German President Declared This—Munich Movement Lacks Strength.

PARIS, April 9 (Associated Press.)—The lessening of the German Government's prestige, according to the reports received here from legations in adjacent countries, has tended to weaken the official attitude toward the signing of the Peace Treaty. President Ebert is reported to have said in conversation with an intimate associate, that the Government would have to sign any peace which the Allied and Associated Governments imposed.

The Munich movement is not regarded by those familiar with the situation in Bavaria as at all general or based on the support of large sections of the population. The Communist elements at Munich form a comparatively small part of the residents of that city. The followers of the Catholic Centre in Bavaria, and even in Munich, outnumber the Communists and Radical Socialists, but in spite of their discipline, the Centrists from the beginning have shown no desire to measure force with the Communists, except at the ballot box.

The Majority Socialists in Bavaria, maintaining relations with the General Party leaders, are unanimously opposed to the proclamation of a Soviet Republic, since this is in direct conflict with the terms of the German Provisional Constitution, on which their alliance with the Democratic and Catholic Parties in the Weimar, Prussian and other German Governments is founded. These terms prescribe that only Federal States in which the Parliament is elected by general and equal suffrage shall be entitled to enter the German Federation and participate in the National Assembly.

To meet the special conditions in Bavaria resulting from the shooting of Kurt Eisner, the Premier, and Minister of the interior Auer, and to avoid conflict with the Radical Socialists and Communists there, the majority leaders endeavored to arrange a compromise by which the Bavarian Diet should be called together to institute a purely Socialist Cabinet and endow it with legislative as well as executive powers, and then to adjourn until some time when the atmosphere should be more favorable to a Democratic Government. This compromise, which the leaders of the Independent Socialists had accepted and to which a majority of the Diet, frightened by the Munich situation, were willing to assent, has been overthrown by the Munich Communists.

Germany is one country in the enemy coalition in which the American Commission to negotiate peace maintains no information service. A special mission sent to Germany during the early days of the conference, to provide the Commission with reliable news of political developments, was withdrawn in March. Thus the Peace Commission is without direct information concerning developments at Munich, Magdeburg and other storm centres in Germany.

SOVIET CONGRESS IN TURMOIL.

Socialists Clash Over Strike—Courts to Act on Ledebour Case.

BERLIN, April 9, (Associated Press).—The German Soviet Congress is developing into a rough and tumble parliament. This was marked today by a recurrence of clashes between the Majority Socialists and the Independents. Much of the confusion is due to the fact that the presiding officer is unversed in the rules of procedure.

A resolution of the Independents, demanding that the Government meet the claims of the Ruhr strikers, resulted in two hours of tumult this morning, marked by vicious exchanges. The Majority Socialists, discovering that they had been tricked into voting for the resolution of the Independents, which permitted a doubtful interpretation, demanded that it be revoked. This precipitated another heated debate which finally resulted in the Majority Socialists carrying a motion in favor of meeting the Ruhr demands as far as justifiable so as to avoid the threatened flooding of the mines.

The question of the release of George Ledebour, the Independent Socialist leader, who was arrested recently in the Spartacide uprising, has been referred to the criminal courts, owing to the decision of the Prussian Minister of Justice that he is no longer competent to decide.

In addition to the Ledebour case, there has arisen that of Dr. Geyer, an Independent Socialist Deputy to the National Assembly.

The Deutsche Tageszeitung says that the State Attorney at Leipsic has requested the Assembly to suspend the immunity of Deputy Geyer so that he may be tried for alleged complicity in an attack made in the course of the last Spartacide outbreak in Leipsic, when the Independents extorted 400,000 marks from the Mayor by threats with arms. Dr. Geyer, who is also a delegate to the Berlin Soviet Congress, is a Radical Independent with Communist leanings.

The Ledebour episode and one or two others which have occurred in the Soviet Congress seem to afford a reliable indication of the further trend of its deliberations. Up to 4 o'clock this afternoon, twenty-four motions had been announced on the printed calendar, covering a wide range of subjects, including governmental military measures in connection with strikes, amnesty for political prisoners, the food problem, the ranking of officers and the status of the volunteer regiments which have been employed for the last few months in throttling insurrectionary movements.

The soldiers' faction submitted a resolution calling for the abolition of all insignia of rank and of honor medals, with the exception of the badge for wounded men, and the cancellation of patents of nobility. Another resolution calls upon the State to assume the functions of an undertaker and take charge of all burials.

Still another resolution demands that the Government appoint five delegates of the Congress as members of the German peace delegation.

FOOD REACHING HAMBURG.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, April 10. — Reports from Hamburg say that ships with foodstuffs from America are arriving there.

The American steamship Samarinda with 800 tons of flour and pork, bound for Copenhagen, after passing the Kiel Canal, was called back to unload at Hamburg.

More ships are expected this week, but it is hard to get enough export goods together for the ships leaving for America, and very difficult to get coal, as there is nothing coming from the Ruhr coal districts.

Florida Labor Protests Refusal to Deal with Unions.

TAMPA, Fla., April 10.—The Florida State Federation of Labor in annual convention here today adopted a resolution petitioning President Wilson to remove Postmaster General Burleson from office "on account of his attitude toward the telegraph and telephone workers, in refusing to deal with them as organizations."

WANTED
To Buy a Business

We have a customer who wishes to extend his activities, and has asked us to find a growing business for his investment.

Perhaps you know of some trustee, widow or man wishing to retire, who has a business of the kind sought.

No oil-well, real estate, mining, moving picture or get-rich-quick venture need apply.

A first-class specialty in the hardware, grocery or toilet goods field would be especially attractive, particularly if this specialty has succeeded without advertising and has shown natural growth and increasing repeat orders.

Such a business, if successful (even with a limited distribution) would respond surely to national advertising and intensive selling methods.

We know of one such business that sold within the last few years for $5,000 and another for $850,000. Both have already proved excellent investments.

Any communication will be regarded as confidential if you wish, but preliminary correspondence must clearly indicate age, size and type of business, although the identity need not be disclosed until later, if desired.

NOSKE PREVENTS BIG BERLIN STRIKE

Only Bank Employes Out—Strike Leaders at Essen Are Arrested.

AMSTERDAM, April 10.—The general strike at Berlin fixed for today did not materialize, according to advices from that city.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, April 10.—Berlin is still quiet, the latest reports being to the effect that a heavy rain is falling in that city. No disturbances of any sort are reported, but Berlin has perhaps more than ever the appearance of an armed camp.

The Government, it is said, is determined to make this its last fight with the Spartacides, and its preparations become more and more complete. The whole of the official district of Berlin is surrounded by strong cordons of troops fully accoutred and supplied with bomb throwers, flame throwers, and other modern devices.

All tramway traffic within this zone is suspended and machine guns have been placed to sweep all lines of approach to the district.

Between these extensive preparations, which are much paraded before public gaze, and the inclement weather, it is said the Independent Socialists are beginning to change their tune. It is certainly noticeable that the propaganda for a general strike has not been so intense.

According to the Vossische Zeitung, there is talk among their leaders of the advisability of postponing the putting of guns in operation till a later period, and there is some prospect that the threatened storm may after all blow over, if nothing sensational unexpectedly happens.

BERLIN, April 6, (Associated Press.)—the Government appears to have learned a lesson from the January and March riots. The military measures adopted this week, so far as can be seen in the inner city, warrant the impression that Noske is fully prepared.

A general railway strike, in addition to disastrous economic consequences, would, it is believed, spell the surrender of Danzig and even East Prussia, since Foch has reserved the right to land at Danzig and doubtless will do so if the Polish General Haller's troops are unable to cross Germany in security.

As an additional precaution against demonstrations by strikers and others, the authorities have imposed a bar on three great Berlin districts, in which no persons will be permitted to go unless they carry proper credentials.

A majority of the big Berlin banks were forced to remain closed today, or at least to shut down their branches, because of the strike of bank employes. The strike had a distressing effect on business, although the Deutsche Bank continued open. The bank of the Berlin Trade Society was also open, but it has no branches.

There are indications that the strike may have been the result of a majority of the employes being intimidated by a minority. The employes of the Dresdener Bank, who were supposed to be on strike, succeeded in forcing their way into the building despite the strike pickets and leaders.

The Disconto is struggling along with a small staff of volunteer workers. The Reichsbank is closed, although a great many of the employes broke through the pickets and reported for work.

The Government intends to deal with the strike immediately through the intervention of the National Labor Bureau.

GOVERNMENT ARRESTS ESSEN STRIKE CHIEFS

Troops Also Occupy Krupp Plant —Mine Owners Agree to Cut Work Day.

COPENHAGEN, April 10.—The members of the strike committee in Essen were arrested today by Government troops under instructions from Berlin, a dispatch from Essen reports.

Civilians then attacked the troops, but, after considerable fighting, the civilians were dispersed. The arrests of the strike leaders were made after the committee had declined to negotiate with a representative of the Government.

BERLIN, April 9, (Associated Press.)—Government troops are reported to have entered Essen and to have occupied the Krupp plant, which, according to previous reports, had been seized by the strikers.

The troops posted artillery and machine guns at the entrances to the plant. The result of the intervention by the Government forces, the advices state, was that two-thirds of the workmen resumed their labors.

The people of Essen became greatly excited during the operations of the troops, the latter having thrown hand grenades in the midst of a crowd plundering a baggage van.

ESSEN, April 10.—At a conference of representatives of miners' unions and the mine owners of the Essen region today, it was decided that it was impossible in the interests of national economy to reduce the working hours for the pit workmen to six daily.

The mine owners, however, granted a seven-hour day, which will include the time occupied in descending to and ascending from the mines. The hours of the surface workers will remain unchanged.

SENDING OF SMUTS RESENTED IN PARIS

Denial by Virtually All Entente Delegations That General Had Diplomatic Standing.

HUNGARIANS FIGHT CZECHS

Losses Heavy on Both Sides in Battle at Ungvar, Near Moravian Frontier.

PARIS, April 10, (Associated Press.)—The report of General Jan Christian Smuts concerning his visit to Hungary, and the entire circumstances surrounding his mission are provoking much criticism in Entente circles. Although General Smuts was authorized to go to Budapest by the Council of Four, the nature of his mission was not clearly defined.

The French and other allied governments are provoked because the statements of Bela Kun, the Hungarian Foreign Minister and leader of the Soviets, give the impression that General Smuts had diplomatic standing and that his conferences with the Hungarian officials constituted recognition by the Entente of the Soviet Government.

While the diplomatic standing of General Smuts is denied by virtually all the Entente delegations, the impression is gaining ground that his trip to Hungary was directed chiefly by the British, and that it was not sympathetically supported by the other Allies.

LONDON, April 10.—Violent fighting has taken place between Hungarians and Czechs at Ungvar, near the Moravian-Hungarian border, says a Central News dispatch from Amsterdam today. One hundred and fifty Hungarians were killed. The Czechs also had considerable losses.

VIENNA, April 9, (Associated Press.)—Among the prominent Hungarians arrested by the Communist Government in Budapest are Joseph Stepreny, former Minister of Commerce; Herr von Szurmay, former Food Minister, and Herr Leo Lanczy, one of the leading financiers of the old empire and a trusted adviser of the late Emperor Francis Joseph.

Reports of the death of Manfred von Weisz, a leading Hungarian manufacturer, are denied in dispatches from Budapest.

Archduke Joseph Francis, son of Archduke Joseph, formerly the representative of the Emperor in Budapest, has been interned in the Hotel Ritz in the Hungarian Capital.

AUSTRIAN COUNCILS REJECT BOLSHEVISM

But Soviet Republic Is Proclaimed in Salzberg—700 Officers to Emigrate.

BERNE, April 10.—The conference of Soldiers' Councils of German Austria which met in Vienna Monday, decided against the establishment of a Soviet republic in Austria and in favor of a socialist Government.

Herr Deutsch, Secretary of State for Military Affairs, at the opening of the conference pointed out that German Austria was absolutely in the power of the allied and associated nations, and that the conference should do its utmost to avoid a new blockade or the resumption of hostilities.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, April 10, (Via Geneva.)—Announcement of an increased food supply by the Entente is causing material improvement of feeling. The danger of Bolshevist developments are to be abated, provided there is a continuance of better supplies.

Count Czernin, desiring to join his family, applied for permission to go to Switzerland. This was refused by Foreign Secretary Bauer after a severe altercation, in which Bauer intimated that he could not at present afford Czernin an opportunity of meeting foreign diplomats which might stir prejudices against the present Austrian Government.

LONDON, April 10.—The proclamation of a Soviet republic in Salzberg, German Austria, is reported in an Amsterdam dispatch today to the Central News. Salzberg is near the Bavarian border.

BERLIN, April 8, (Associated Press.)—The Austrian Secretary of State for Military Affairs announces that he has received assurances from French and British representatives in Vienna that 700 Austrian army officers who desire to emigrate to Argentina will not be prevented from traveling to that country, according to the Vossische Zeitung.

This report again calls attention to the activities of German army officers who are seeking to enter the American Army in such large numbers that the Spanish Embassy here found it necessary to post a placard stating that these men are not wanted by the American military authorities.

BIG FOUR INDICT KAISER

that, in addition to determining the former Kaiser's fate, it was the first occasion when President Wilson and Premiers Clemenceau, Lloyd George, and Orlando united in signing an important document concerning the peace exchanges. The document provides that one representative of each allied nation shall be a member of the high tribunal. Further details of the document have not been disclosed.

AMERONGEN, Holland, April 10.—Ex-Emperor William is continuing in excellent health, but the ardor for wood-sawing which he displayed for so long has apparently cooled, as he is working much less than formerly. The ex-Emperor is said to have bought a large and extensive estate known as "Klein England." The Municipal Council of Amerongen is reported to have decided to tax him on an income of 80,000,000 marks, (normally before the war about $20,000,000.)

WILSON ASSAILED BY MISS PANKHURST

istic slashing attack on Lloyd George, President Wilson, the League of Nations, and "politicians" in general for the way the Peace Conference is going.

As far as the Premier is concerned she saw hope that he might yet make the right choice between the support of the great patriotic majority of Englishmen and the heterogeneous gang of Asquithians, pacifists, pro-Germans, money-grubbers, and Bolsheviki, but she seemed to be in despair about Wilson.

"He's another culprit," she cried. "We must speak out now without fear or favor. He threatens to have a greater voice in British affairs than the Prime Minister himself. He's our greatest weakness today. If we misjudge him he has only himself to blame for his secrecy, his unpardonable secrecy."

Miss Pankhurst quoted von Kuhlmann's sneers at the President's ideology and sneered herself at his defeat at the last elections, and then she declared that the peace negotiations were after all primarily a European affair, and as England was nearer the German volcano she must understand it better than Wilson.

"We have made the greater sacrifice, and we deny that the man who came last into the war should have the greatest say in peace. The American people don't claim a dominant voice, only Wilson does, and I say to him now he has claimed too much, for he was the man who, when we were spending our blood and treasure for the cause of freedom and many of his people were wishing they were with us, bade Americans think neutrality."

The speaker passed on to the question of indemnities and asked vehemently who was going to pay for the war.

"Germany, we are told," she said, "can't pay for it, and France and the other devastated countries can't. Who, then, will?"

Once more she saw in George and Wilson the villains of peace.

"Let them ask their own countries to pay," she cried. "Let them say to England and the United States, 'Let Germany off, she can't pay. She wants to prepare for another war. It's you who must bear the cost of this one.' If America is asked to pay I don't think she will, but, if she wants to, let her We Britons must refuse this burden."

To Clemenceau Miss Pankhurst was as complimentary as she was critical of his colleagues, and she dropped almost into pathos as she pictured the grayhaired old statesman with a Bolshevist bullet in his body fighting his country's battles alone in the secret council of four. She denied that in insisting he should moderate his territorial demands Lloyd George had any right to claim British opinion was behind him.

Paderewski and the Poles also came in for Miss Pankhurst's commendation, and then, as she spoke of Russia, she turned her guns once more on Wilson.

"Who has been the shield of the Bolsheviki?" she asked, and answered amid cheers, "President Wilson."

Next the League of Nations came under review. There was now at Paris, she said, "a dress rehearsal" which revealed its inevitable qualities. It would always be slow, compromising, obsequious to Germany, wrapped in secrecy and resentful of press criticism.

"No one will ever assume responsibility for its actions, no National Assembly will ever be consulted as to its policy," she went on. "It will not be democratic. It may become a dictatorship, possibly with President Wilson as dictator, and Germany as the power behind the throne. We don't want a league like that. We want to keep control of our own policy, foreign and home. Let's go back to the days when the Grand Alliance was good enough for us, with the Franco-British Entente as the cornerstone. We live in Europe, and must always bear the brunt of danger, and we may be certain the United States will always come in on the side of right at last, however long it takes her.

"Let's rely on ourselves, and not on another country. As for America, let her guarantee peace if she likes, but she must not dilute it. We would rather have undiluted peace without the United States than a diluted peace with her."

the war for which they were drafted and the hardships and loneliness of the Arctic winter, has caused them to lose their spirits.

Meanwhile, they have had no official statement from the Government to answer Bolshevist propaganda and no American in Archangel is in a position to tell them officially what they are fighting for.

Washington Confirms the News.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Discontent among the American soldiers serving on the Archangel front in Northern Russia was officially disclosed this afternoon when General March, Chief of Staff of the Army, made public a paraphrase of a code message from Colonel George E. Stewart, commanding the American troops on that front, stating that the men had threatened a general mutiny unless a definite statement was forthcoming from Washington with regard to the removal of the American forces at the "earliest possible date."

The message received from Archangel was dated March 31. The paraphrase, which shows the affair to be more serious than The Associated Press dispatch from Archangel indicates, reads as follows:

Yesterday morning, March 30, a company of infantry, having received orders to the railroad front, was ordered out of the barracks for the purpose of packing sleds for the trip across the river to the railroad station. The noncommissioned officer that was in charge of the packing soon reported to the officers that the men refused to obey.

At this some of the officers took charge, and all except one man began reluctantly to pack after a considerable delay. Colonel Stewart, having been sent for, arrived and had the men assembled to talk with them. Upon the condition that the prisoner above mentioned was released, the men agreed to go.

This was done, and the company then proceeded to the railway station and entrained there for the front. That they would not go to the front line positions was openly stated by the men, however, and they would only go to Odozerskaya.

They also stated that general mutiny would soon come if there was not some definite statement forthcoming from Washington regarding the removal of American troops from Russia at the earliest possible date.

This cablegram was in the possession of the War Department Saturday when General March made this statement:

"As we have said, we are going to withdraw the troops from Archangel and bring them back to the United States. We will bring those people back certainly by June, according to our present plans. They are repairing the railroads and waiting for the ice to break up to get them out. Just as soon as we can we will get them out."

The withholding of this dispatch from publication until news of the incipient mutiny had come through newspaper channels was apparently based on a disinclination to permit it to become known that American troops had gone so far as to threaten a mutiny. It was not desired in army circles that this information should reach the Bolshevist forces, for fear it might encourage them to greater activities.

The force of Americans originally sent to North Russia numbered more than 5,000 men. On Feb. 4 this contingent had been reduced, according to a War Department statement, to 161 officers and 4,764 in other ranks, making a total of 4,925 men. Up to Jan. 31 the American force had suffered, according to official announcements, a loss of 180 dead and 229 wounded, a total of 409.

Following the debate in the Senate on Jan. 9 last resulting from Senator Hiram Johnson's advocacy of the prompt return of the American force the War Department gave out a cablegram from Colonel Stewart stating that the general health and morale of the troops were excellent.

Senator Johnson today issued a statement in which he asserted that he had received a letter from an officer of the American forces in Northern Russia, telling of hardships experienced by men in the American expedition, poor rations, harshness of foreign officers, and other things, which "makes an American hang his head in shame."

"This isn't a question of Bolshevism or of fighting the horrible doctrine of Lenine and Trotzky," the statement said. "This is waging a war with American blood on foreign soil—a war undeclared by America, but decreed by a foreign council. It points concretely to the League of Nations."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 10.—The advance guard of the British volunteer force which is being rushed to the assistance of the hard-pressed troops at Archangel and Murmansk, and which sailed from Tilbury yesterday, consisted of about 1,000 men. Arthur E. Copping, THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, in a message dated on board the transport Porto off Gravesend Wednesday night, says:

"It is good to notice the spirit of optimistic anticipation as characteristic of the officers and the men also, who are rushing to the help of the little British army which has gallantly kept the Union Jack flying over the wastes of the Murman coast throughout the bitter Winter. They are a mixed lot. In nationality they include Britishers, Americans, and Italians; and so far as technical division goes I have already noted infantrymen and artillerymen, fliers and naval units.

"These splendid war-toughened men, who volunteered because they do not like the thought of their fellow-countrymen being left to fight against odds in a forgotten corner, are conscious that the eyes of England are turned on them as they set out for the twilight lands."

REDS LOSE 900 KILLED IN SIBERIAN BATTLE

Omsk Government Report Shows Rapid Increase in Financial Power and Stability.

LONDON, April 10, (via Montreal.)—Forces of the Russian Government at Omsk have defeated two Bolshevist regiments in Sarapul, on the Kama River, 150 miles southwest of Perm, according to an official announcement received here from Omsk.

Nine hundred Bolsheviki were killed.

PARIS, April 9.—Reports received by the Russian Commission in Paris from the all-Russian Government at Omsk show that the official expenses of that Government are declining and that there is in progress a rapid increase in the monthly revenues. These last totalled 100,000,000 rubles in February, as against 85,000,000 rubles the previous month and 25,000,000 rubles last July. The excise revenue from tea, tobacco and matches totalled 15,000,000 rubles in February, and the revenue on vodka sales nearly 34,000,000 rubles.

A regular budget has been established and there has been a discontinuance of expenditures without authorization from the central organization. The January expenditures were 450,000,000 rubles, or 15,000,000 rubles less than for the previous month. Cash in the State Bank and in the treasury on March 4 was 717,000,000 rubles, or seven times the amount available four months ago. Current accounts in the banks on March 4 totalled 385,000,000 rubles.

The demand for exchange has brought about such a depreciation of the ruble that the Ministry of Finance has decided to transfer to Vladivostok the foreign section of its credit office and provide it with the necessary resources to stabilize exchange.

LOYAL RUSSIANS WIN FIGHT.

Troops in First Action Win Praise from British for Steadiness.

LONDON, April 10.—A War Office communication dealing with the situation on the Archangel front was issued tonight. It says:

The frozen surfaces and the melting snow are making movement difficult. In the action at Sred Mekhrenga April 5 the defense was carried out by the Liverpool and Yorkshire troops, and a company from the Russian Army, supported by artillery of the Slavo-British Allied Legion under British officers.

The defense of Bolshieozerki against the attacks of April 1 was carried out by the Russian National Army, whose artillery had French officers. It was their first fight and they behaved with exemplary steadiness. In one case a section of the Russian field Howitzers were taken out of the gun pits and reversed at a range of 400 yards against a large body of the enemy on skis. A company of American infantry was in support on this sector.

The Royal Air Force greatly assisted with Canadians, South Africans, and Russians as pilots and observers.

INSURGENTS BLOCK REPUBLICAN PLAN

Again Support Democrats in Passage of Health Insurance Bill.

FIGHT EARLY ADJOURNMENT

Demand Action on Whole Industrial Program — Governor Cuts $2,000,000 from Appropriations.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY April 10.—At the end of another day in which insurgency has swept the Senate and new victories have been won through co-operation between the Democratic minority and a group of Republican insurgents, it has become known that the plan of the Republican old guard leaders for final adjournment a week from Saturday has gone to smash. The new controlling groups have decided in favor of continuing the legislative labors until the work of the session has been properly performed.

Four Republican insurgents—Senators Davenport of Oneida, Fowler of Chautauqua, Graves of Erie and G. F. Thompson of Niagara, bolted a caucus called last night by Senate Leader Walters to commit the Republican majority to adjournment on Saturday of next week. These Senators took a united stand against adjournment before every measure on the industrial welfare program, the municipal ownership and home rule bills and the bill providing for hydro-electric development under State auspices had been fairly considered and voted on in the open in both branches of the Legislature and the $500,000 slush fund report thoroughly investigated. Consideration of the hydro-electric bill, sponsored by Senator Graves, was set down for discussion on Monday night by the caucus.

There is every reason to believe that the stand of the Republican insurgents has been re-enforced through notice served by Governor Smith on the Republican leaders informally but forcefully that unless this course was followed he would call an extra session of the Legislature without much delay. The Governor, encouraged by developments in the Senate yesterday and today, is determined that the Legislature must leave a record to show where it stands with reference to all the remaining measures on his program. His decision was communicated to the Republican leaders today by some of their Democrat colleagues, to whom it had been conveyed.

Minority Leader James A. Foley in the Senate announced, after talking with Governor Smith, that he would make a fight on the proposal to adjourn a week from Saturday.

The Republican leaders were provided with food for more thought at the session tonight when it was reported that Governor Smith would return tomorrow the Appropriation bill with items aggregating approximately $2,000,000 cut out. As the Republicans scarcely will be in a position to muster the two-thirds majority necessary to pass these items over the Governor's veto, new labors likely to place obstacles in the way of an early adjournment await Senator Sage and Assemblyman Machold, Chairmen of the Senate Finance and Assembly Ways and Means Committees, as well as their colleagues in these bodies. It is generally predicted tonight that final adjournment is hardly to be looked for earlier than April 25.

Following the passage in the Senate yesterday of the Minimum Wage bill and the Graves bill, providing an eight-hour day for women and minors in industrial employment, Senator Davenport led a fight in the Senate today for his Health Insurance bill. Like the Minimum Wage and Eight-Hour bills, it was one of the measures of the Smith legislative program and had the indorsement of the Women's Joint Legislative Conference.

It was passed by a vote of 30 to 20, 9 Republicans joining hands with 21 Democrats behind the measure. Senator Jeremiah F. Twomey, Democrat, of Kings, was not recorded on the final roll call, though he attended the session.

The debate on the measure lasted all day, Senator Davenport leading the defense, and President Pro Tem J. Henry Walters and Senator Henry M. Sage of Albany the opposition. Senator Walters assailed the bill as unconstitutional and Senator Sage characterized it as ultra-socialistic and ultra-paternalistic.

The following Senators, all Republicans, voted against the bill: Brown of Otsego, Burlingame of Kings, Carson of Wayne, Ferris of Warren, Gibbs of Erie, Hewitt of Cayuga, Kasson of Fulton-Hamilton, Knight of Wyoming, Law of Westchester, Lowman of Chemung, Lusk of Cortland, Marshall of Franklin, Mullan and Whitley of Monroe, Pitcher of Jefferson, Sage of Albany, Towner of Putnam, Walters of Onondaga, Walton of Ulster, and Yelverton of Schenectady.

These Republicans voted for it: Abeles of Bronx, Baumes of Orange, Burling of Westchester, Davenport of Oneida, Fowler of Chautauqua, Graves of Erie, Lockwood of Kings, G. F. Thompson of Niagara, and G. L. Thompson of Nassau.

The Senate tonight passed the Foley bill establishing the office of Transit Construction Commissioner for New York City. The measure is one of the Governor's pet schemes and is in line with his program of reorganization of the First District Public Service Commission. Long ago the Governor cabled William Barclay Parsons of New York, then an engineer serving with the American Expeditionary Forces abroad, asking him to take the position.

AMERICAN MISSIONARY IS ARRESTED IN KOREA

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The State Department has been advised of the arrest of the Rev. Eli Miller Mowry, a Presbyterian missionary at Pyeng Yang, Korea, on a charge preferred by the Japanese authorities that he was aiding and abetting the Korean independence propagandists.

It was explained by an official of the State Department that the Rev. Mr. Mowry, if found to be connected with any political disturbance in Korea, would be amenable under the Japanese laws, and that the only possible action by the United States would be to see that he received a fair trial.

Korea being under Japanese rule, it was explained that an American citizen in that country was in the same position in respect to Japanese laws that a Japanese would be in the Philippines under the laws of the United States governing those islands.

Information to the State Department as to alleged activities of American missionaries has been meagre, although all advices are said to have indicated that the missionaries have kept apart from the independence movement.

Speaks at Sorbonne Memorial to Those Killed in War.

PARIS, April 10.—There will be no diminution in the intellectual productivity of France, President Poincaré declared today at a service at the Sorbonne in honor of French writers killed in the war.

The war, he added, had brought a better understanding of what is eternal in France and what she represents in the world. French writers will preserve and develop the intellectual influence of France. The President eulogized the spirit of the young writers who had sacrificed themselves for a great cause.

Turning to Queen Marie of Rumania, who was present, M. Poincaré said:

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 10.—The Chronicle publishes an article by R. Courtier Foster, a British Chaplain at Odessa and Russian ports of the Black Sea, describing the religious persecution practiced by the Bolsheviki following upon their former capture of Odessa. He says:

"Committees were held on board the ships of the Black Sea Fleet, among the dockers in the port, and in the towns and villages on every hand, which passed resolutions reading: 'We abolish God.' In Odessa Cathedral, when the Archbishop of Kherson was celebrating the Holy Mysteries an uproar occurred with cries of 'Down with the priests!' 'Down with the Church!' At a fête in the town gardens one saw a soldier of the Red Army, amid the guffaws of his fellows, spit on the Russian holy picture of the face of Christ, then tear it into fragments and stamp it into the dust.

"The Bolshevist conception of religious toleration is considerably more elastic and far-reaching than the ideas of any mediaeval inquisition. In this matter the Bolsheviki pride themselves on being far in advance of our effete western thought. They have murdered Vladimir, the Metropolitan of Kiev, twenty Bishops, and many hundreds of priests. Before killing them they cut off the limbs of their victims, some of whom they buried alive in the Kremlin. The cathedrals in Moscow and those in the towns of Yaroslav and Simferopol have been sacked. Many nuns were violated and the churches defiled.

The ancient and historical sacristies and famous libraries of Moscow and Petrograd were pillaged and countless sanctuaries profaned. In Cronstadt Cathedral the great figure of the Crucified Christ was torn down and removed, and a monstrous and appalling pagan form placed in its stead, symbolizing 'Freedom of Mind.'

"It is not against any one particular form of religion that the terrors of the New Freedom are hurled. Orthodox Roman Catholics and Lutherans alike have been tortured, mutilated, and done to death under the aegis of the Holy Revolution, which appeals to the proletariat of the whole world to join its forces.

"The Revolutionary Government is subjecting the Christian religion to persecutions as great and brutal as anything the world saw during the first three centuries of Christian era. Moral disintegration and ruin spread their tentacles on every side. Any restraint on sinful impulse or covetous desire is laughed to scorn. The Bolsheviki publicly encourage outrage and looting. The propaganda for freedom of the mind is essentially nihilistic. It is based on negation and denial of the existence of God, denial of the authority of any moral law, denial of all rights of conscience, denial of all religious liberty, denial of all freedom of the press, denial of any liberty of speech.

"One officer remarked despairingly to me: 'In Russia now there is no God, no Czar, no law, no property, no money, no food—only freedom.' And in that travesty of liberty which the whole civilized world may well shudder at, all mercy, pity, and toleration are alike scorned. And it is this new and wonderful equality of man which by means of torture, outrage, and assassinations proclaims the 'freedom of mind and body' to the devastated Russian nation."

WILSON CONSIDERING CALL TO CONGRESS

Advised That Bills Should Be Under Way by June 1—May Not Attend Opening.

PARIS, April 10, (Associated Press.)—While the sessions of the Council of Four are occupying the chief attention of President Wilson, yet those close to the President, who have seen him in recent days, say that he is giving serious consideration to the condition of public affairs in the United States, particularly the situation created by the failure of appropriation bills and the necessity for the early calling of an extra session of Congress.

It is known that some of the President's advisers are of the opinion that a call should be issued at a very early day, so as to permit the new Congress to assemble in perfect organization by June 1 and complete the appropriation bills before the end of the fiscal year. Should this course prevail it would require an early call in order to permit the usual period for assembling, but it is not known that it will prevail, for, while the President is listening to these counsels, he has given no intimation of the course he intends to pursue.

Several new factors have recently entered into the consideration of this subject here. One is the departure of the Military Committee of the new Congress for Europe, and it is foreseen that the committee, which is chiefly interested in the appropriation bills, cannot make the visit and get back much before June.

Another phase is the conclusion that the usual method of extending appropriations beyond June 30 by concurrent resolution of Congress would not suffice in the present case, as conditions are so entirely changed from a war to a peace basis that the former appropriations are not applicable to the present conditions. This, it is believed, will make necessary entirely new appropriation bills, requiring considerable time for their elaboration.

The fact that the transport George Washington has been ordered to proceed to Brest has given rise to the suggestion that it was the situation at home, rather than in Europe, which might require the early return of President Wilson to America. But, according to the view of those in the confidence of the President, his physical presence in Washington is not essential to the meeting of Congress or until the end of June, when the appropriation bills will be ready for his signature. It is contended that the call for an extra session can be issued here and that the work of the new Congress can proceed without the President's attendance.

It is pointed out that Presidents had not been in the habit of appearing before Congress until President Wilson set the custom, and it is held he could revert to the plan of his predecessors in issuing calls and transmitting messages without his personal presence.

The final decision depends largely on the progress of the Peace Conference, as the situations at Washington and Paris are more or less dependent upon each other.

Transcaucasians Ask Protection from Musselmans and Tartars.

PARIS, April 10.—The Armenian delegation to the Peace Conference has received a telegram from Transcaucasia saying that the Armenian population there is threatened seriously by Mussulman and Tartar forces, who have disarmed the Armenians and proclaimed a new government in Azerbaidjan.

The telegram asks the delegation to implore the Allies to take measures to avoid revolution and bloodshed in Transcaucasia.

BRIBERY INQUIRY IS PUT OVER A DAY

Burke Is on Hand, but Senator Thompson Objects to Night Session.

COTILLO SUPPORTS HIM

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 10.—Richard H. Burke, the dapper, debonair star witness in the $500,000 slush fund investigation, appeared before the Senate Judiciary Committee tonight just long enough to tell the Committee his name, where he lived and to acknowledge that he had been subpoenaed and instructed to present himself for examination at an adjourned hearing scheduled for 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

"Inspector" Burke showed little concern when he was called into the committee room and questioned by Senator Alvah W. Burlingame, Jr., of Kings, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. He was about the Capitol corridors, where he is familiar with every corner and cranny, fully two hours before he was summoned. He chatted with friends among the Senators whom he met at the Capitol and at his hotel, did not try to avoid the newspaper correspondents, but affected an air of profound mystery when questioned regarding the character of his prospective testimony.

Mr. Burke will be the first witness before the committee which originally had planned to listen to his story at a meeting in the Senate Chamber this evening. Senator George F. Thompson of Niagara, Chairman of the Senate Public Service Committee, whose recital to some newspaper men several days ago of the alleged offer of a $500,000 bribe in return for support of the Carson-Martin six-cent fare bill led to the investigation and the summoning of Burke as a witness, got up and protested that all day attendance at the Senate session had made it physically impossible for him to attend a committee meeting tonight.

"I think that in justice to me, some effort should be made to study my convenience in this matter, and no one has said a word to me about a session of the committee tonight," said the Senator.

He was joined in his protest against the way the Judiciary Committee was doing business by Senator Salvatore A. Cotillo, Democrat, of New York City. Senator Cotillo is a member of the Judiciary Committee, but declared that there had been so much whispering behind closed doors in connection with the preliminaries to the inquiry and so much secret procedure in which only a few members of the committee had been admitted, that he would offer a resolution calling for a complete record of all that has transpired, including the secret conference between Senator Thompson and the sub-committee to which he told his bribe story on Tuesday.

A good deal of suspicion has been voiced today about the Capitol corridors by members of the Senate with regard to the intentions of the Judiciary Committee, and fears have been expressed that the probe will end in a whitewash, but Senator Burlingame at the session tonight tried to set these rumors at rest.

"This investigation will be a real one," he said. "We have decided to have Attorney General Newton conduct the inquiry."

It was announced after the committee meeting that Deputy Attorney General Jerome L. Cheney, who was an up-State Public Service Commissioner during the Whitman administration, would question the witness.

Mr. Burke arrived from New York about noon accompanied by Charles R. Hotaling, Sergeant at Arms of the Senate. He went to the Hotel Teneyck, where he has been a familiar figure during the session, and at once telephoned Senator Burlingame that he was on hand with a cab in waiting prepared to go to the Capitol on a moment's notice and testify.

"I am here, ready to answer all questions," he said to newspaper correspondents who tried to interview him. "No, it is not up to me to say anything until they get me on the stand," he added when they sought to question him further.

ECONOMIC COUNCIL ISSUES WARNING

Calls Attention of Associated Governments to Gravity of European Situation.

PARIS, April 10.—The Supreme Economic Council today adopted a resolution calling the attention of the associated Governments to the extreme gravity and urgency of the present economic situation in Europe, an official announcement says.

The council also discussed the question of raising the blockade of German-Austria and the Adriatic; the reopening of commercial relations with Esthonia, Letvio, and Lithuania; the removal of restrictions on trade with Poland, and the reopening of Swiss traffic on the Rhine.

Resolutions were adopted with reference to the supply of rolling stock for the railways of Rumania, Poland, and Czechoslovakia, and as to the desirability of facilitating regular mail and telegraphic communication to and from the liberated countries. The question of the Italian coal supply also was considered.

Artists and Stage Stars in Pageant.

A costume ball was staged at the Hotel des Artistes last night, called the "East Is West" ball, with artists, stage and screen stars participating in a pageant which presented the modes of the Western world and those of the Orient. Manikins paraded in superlative modes under the direction of Baron de Meyer, then came "The Feast of a Thousand Lanterns," arranged by Michio Itow, showing the fantastic festival dances of Japan. Fay Bainter was Chairman of the ball, and Norma Talmadge, Vice Chairman.

RAILROAD WAGES RAISED $65,000,000

000,000; total wage advances in three years, $1,200,000,000, an average of $800 for each employe; total wage advances since beginning of war, $1,365,000,000, an average of $650 per employe.

The total war advances in wages on English railways is $400,000,000, an average of $570 for 700,000 employes.

Classifying the wage increases as between the four brotherhoods and the other kinds of employes, the showing is as follows:

War advances to the 400,000 trainmen, (big four brotherhoods):
1917—By Congress, (Adamson eight-hour law)	$70,000,000
1918—By Government Railroad Administration	180,000,000
1919—By Government Railroad Administration	65,000,000
Total advances to trainmen	$295,000,000
Average per man, $735.
War advances to 1,700,000 other employes:
1918-17—By railroad companies.	$280,000,000
1918-19—By Government	685,000,000
Total advances to other employes	$965,000,000
Average per man, $570.
Average per man, $800.

The rise in railroad wages in recent years is shown by these figures of average annual earnings per employe:

1910	$673	$903	$1,200
1914	810	1,253	1,711
1917	1,094	1,470	1,900
1918	1,330	1,870	1,200
1919	1,460	2,020	1,335

The average increase in wages since 1910 is 117 per cent., and since the year before the war it is 80 per cent. Railroad employes are now receiving $1,365,000,000 more than they would have at the rates of pay in force just before the war.

Drops Censorship to China and Japan

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Removal of censorship regulations on normally routed cablegrams between points in the United States and its possessions and Japan and China, effective tomorrow, was announced today by the chief cable censor of the Navy Department. The regulations will continue in force, however, on cablegrams to, from, and passing through Hongkong, as the British censorship there is not yet lifted.

GERMANS FEARFUL OF TERRORS TO COME

Correspondent Finds Them Appalled by Their Failure in War and Its Consequences.

By OLIVER MADOX HUEFFER.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LAMSDORF, Southern Silesia, April 8.—I am writing this from the extreme southeastern corner of republican Germany, some twenty miles from the old Bohemian frontier, in that debatable ground which the Poles and the Czecho-Wallachs even now are disputing with its present owners, and well within sight of the flash of the big guns which only a fortnight ago were trying to settle the question without reference to the Peace Conference.

I have covered some 800 miles from west to southeast by rail and motor, passing through Osnabrück, Hanover, Berlin, and Breslau, and over the whole country is written one word—tragedy. It is subtler, less obvious tragedy than that of the ruined homes and desolate fields of France and Belgium. It is in some degree even more complete, for it is the tragedy of hopeless, absolute failure.

Could they who in the early days of the armistice feared that Germany's submission cloaked some new design of ruthlessness have talked, not with officials or delegates, but with the peasant, the workman, or the small citizen, they would have realized at once the baselessness of their fears. One and all are reduced to the blank monotony of apathetic despair. They are like men recovering from a mad drinking bout, still only half conscious, but afraid, horribly afraid, of some undefined punishment of whatever crimes they may have committed in its course. These Germans, man, woman, and child, are so much afraid of what is to come that they have forgotten what is past.

If you listen to their talk in the train or restaurant, its themes are always the same—hunger and anarchy. If they are of the richer class their talk is always of Spartacide terror, of greed, and brutality by workmen, of the hopelessness of the industrial future. If you travel third or fourth class you will hear only of famine, of impossible prices, of lack of work, and of profiteers.

WANTS RED MISSION PUT UNDER CURB

Union League Club Adopts a Resolution Denouncing Activities of Mertens's 'Embassy.'

URGES GOVERNMENT ACTION

Would Discountenance In Every Way Bolshevist Ambition to Obtain American Recognition.

The Union League Club unanimously adopted resolutions last night calling upon the Government to take immediate action to put an end to the activities in this country of the so-called "Soviet Mission to the United States," of which Ludwig C. A. K. Mertens, a Russian citizen of German origin, is the head. The club also unanimously indorsed a report made by the Committee on the Study of Bolshevism, which said that "evidence is daily accumulating which indicates that the representatives of the American people at Paris are considering more and more favorably the question of giving recognition to the Russian Soviet Republic." Charles E. Hughes presided at the meeting, which was one of the largest in the history of the club.

The report on Bolshevism which the club adopted refers to the activities of Bernstorff and other members of the former German Embassy, and argues that if Mertens is recognized he and his attachés can reasonably be expected to follow in the footsteps of the Germans in carrying on propaganda directed against the integrity and safety of this country.

After a review of the situation the report concludes with a suggestion that in the event President Wilson is "convinced that a recognition of the Soviet Republic is necessary" that he will before exercising his prerogative in that matter first "consult with and obtain the advice of Congress as the representatives of the United States."

Quotes Moscow Communique.

The report takes up the organization of the Bolshevist Mission, and refers to a Moscow communique of April 8, which told of the success of the Red forces operating against the Americans, British, French, and local Russians in the Archangel district. In the communique the Red Government referred to "enemy attacks." The report then continues:

"Our troops are the enemy referred to in this communique. These two items of news show that a condition exists in the foreign relations of this country which is unique in its history. Never before has a Government with which the armed forces of the United States have been engaged in battle, openly established a mission within our borders for the purpose of carrying on propaganda looking toward its recognition.

"The American representatives at Paris have chosen to send a diplomatic mission to Russia, the exact purpose of which has not been officially disclosed, consisting, according to report, of William C. Bullitt, Lincoln Steffens, and Walter E. Weyl. This commission has recently returned to Paris and is reported to have expressed itself in favor of a recognition of the Russian Soviet republic. Your committee believes, therefore, that the question of the recognition of the present de facto Government of Russia deserves the thoughtful consideration of every citizen who holds in esteem the institutions of the United States. We therefore direct your attention to the nature of the Government which seeks recognition.

"As has been pointed out in the previous reports submitted to the Club by this committee, the present Russian Government is a class government. It is in no sense representative of the people of Russia. It was created and maintained by the armed forces of the Russian Communist party, which dispersed at the point of the bayonet the constituent assembly elected through the suffrage of the whole Russian people. It is committed to the proposition of the expropriation of all capitalists and the permanent destruction of the Bourgeoisie. The government set up by Nikolai Lenine and his followers, is a Socialistic State founded upon the principles of the first Internationale, and dedicated to the proposition that class rule shall maintain throughout the world."

Next the report quotes at length from the Constitution of the Soviet Republic. It is pointed out that at the very foundation of this Constitution is the idea of the world revolution and the overthrow of all existing Governments everywhere in the world.

Taking up a discussion of the situation which would follow recognition of the Bolshevist Government the report then says:

"It would require but little imagination to believe that the representatives of the Bolshevist Government of Russia, who in the past have advocated revolution in the United States, would continue such activity while representing officially a Government which is committed to that proposition. Diplomatic and Consular agents could unquestionably form centres for agitation for proletarian revolution, and investigating bodies of this Government would be powerless under diplomatic usage to investigate the accounts and the disposition made of Russian funds for unlawful purposes here. The red flag of world revolution would become the flag of a friendly nation and might be used on all occasions by those elements of our population who show a desire to emulate the Russian proletariat.

"Your committee feels that the consequences of recognition of the Russian Soviet Republic by this country would be to add fuel to the flame of internal disorder within our boundaries.

"The period through which we are now passing is analogous to that period of doubt and indecision which preceded the declaration of war upon Germany. The issues are confused in the public mind. Certain individuals in this country have publicly given their approval to the proposition of a recognition of the Lenine Government. It is obvious, however, that they have not understood the consequences of the position which they have assumed.

Discusses Possible Recognition.

"The presence in this country of the mission heretofore referred to makes us inquire whether it is possible that the Russian Soviet Republic can have received encouragement with respect of recognition, which has warranted their establishing a bureau here. It is hardly conceivable that such a mission would have been sent unless such encouragement had been received.

"While the power to recognize a new Government appears to be vested in the executive branch of our Government, a doubt has been present in the minds of our Presidents as to the safety of relying upon their own judgment in recognizing a new State when the consequence of such an act involve delicate international questions. In the cases of the recognition by the United States of the Spanish-American Republics of Texas, Haiti, and Liberia, the then Presidents before recognizing the new States invoked the judgment and cooperation of Congress."

After reviewing the course of other Presidents, the report concludes as follows:

"We therefore feel that should the Executive of the United States be convinced that a recognition of the Soviet Republic is necessary, that, before exercising his prerogative, he should consult with and obtain the advice of Congress, as the representative of the people of the United States, whose vital interests would be seriously affected by such an act. Your committee therefore offers the following resolution:

Whereas, The Union League Club is pledged to the principle of unqualified loyalty to the Government of the United States; and

Whereas, At the present moment the armed forces of the United States are engaged in conflict with the armed forces of the Russian Soviet Republic:

Now, therefore, be it resolved, That the Union League Club resents the act of the Russian Soviet Republic in establishing a mission in the United States, and calls upon the Government to take immediate action to prevent the activities of such mission and in every way to discountenance the present ambition of the Russian Soviet Republic to gain diplomatic recognition; and

Be it further resolved, That the President and the Secretary of the club be directed to send a copy of this report and this resolution to our diplomatic representatives at the Peace Conference in Paris, to the Attorney General of the United States, and to every Senator and Representative in Congress, commending the questions presented to their immediate consideration.

The report to the club was signed by Archibald E. Stevenson, Robert C. Morris, and Theodore F. Sanxay, the committee appointed some weeks ago by Mr. Hughes to make a study of the Bolshevist situation.

REDS' ENVOY ISSUES SWEEPING DEMANDS

Mertens 'Commands' the Russian Ambassador to Turn Over All Property Here.

Ludwig C. A. K. Mertens, who is seeking recognition as the Bolshevist "Ambassador" to the United States, has, in the name of the Trotzky-Lenine Government, demanded of Boris Bakhmeteff, the Russian Ambassador in Washington, the surrender of the Embassy building, with its furniture, archives, records, &c., and all moneys in this country belonging to the former Governments of Russia. The demand was mailed to Ambassador Bakhmeteff last Tuesday, and had not been acknowledged by the Ambassador up to a late hour last night.

Santeri Nuorteva, the chief of the "diplomatic section" of the Martens mission, said that the fact that the Trotzky-Lenine Government had not been recognized by this Government was no reason for Ambassador Bakhmeteff to refuse to turn over the property. Mr. Bakhmeteff was appointed Ambassador to this country by the Milukoff-Kerensky Government.

The demand letter mailed to Ambassador Bakhmetieff contained these statements:

This demand is based upon the claim that your post of Russian Ambassador to the United States became vacant and your rights and title under the same were legally terminated with the overthrow of the Government under which you held your appointment and whom you represented in the United States, i. e., the Provisional Government of Russia, and upon the establishment of the Russian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic.

On behalf of the said Russian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic, I claim that the said Government is the only existing Government in Russia, de jure and de facto; that the Government whom you are alleged to represent in this country has absolutely gone out of existence on the sixth day of November, 1917; that there is at this time not even the barest pretence of its power or existence, and that your official position in the United States is that of an alleged agent with a principal.

Demands op Other Officials.

Nuorteva announced that demands for return of property belonging to the old Russian Governments had also been made on the Russian Consul Generals in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco, Seattle, and New Orleans, and on various banking institutions, among the latter the National City Bank of New York. The largest of the Russian accounts which the Bolsheviki are trying to get possession of is on deposit in the National City Bank. A demand was also made on the Russian Supply Mission, which has headquarters on the eighteenth floor of the Flatiron Building.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—At the Russian Embassy it was said tonight that no letter had yet been received from Martens, the Bolshevist "Ambassador," demanding that Boris Bakhmetieff, the present Ambassador, turn over the embassy funds to the Bolsheviki. Pending its arrival, no comment would be made upon the expected communication.

SUES SURGEON FOR $100,000

Capt. Roberts, Vanderbilt Doctor, Made Defendant by Dr. Barrie.

Dr. George Barrie of 15 East Forty-eighth Street filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against Captain Percy W. Roberts, U. S. A., Medical Reserve Corps, for $100,000 damages on the ground of injury to his reputation based on a letter written by Captain Roberts in which Dr. Barrie was accused of failing to use proper care in looking after the practice of Dr. Roberts during his absence, under an agreement made between them.

Dr. Barrie details his complaint in an affidavit, and says that following a dispute, Dr. Roberts wrote him from the United States Army General Hospital at West Baden, Ind., making the statements on which the suit is based. Dr. Roberts's letter accuses Dr. Barrie of "exploiting" Dr. Roberts's patients for his own benefit and making charges which several of the patients declared were unreasonable.

He also alleged that Dr. Barrie "changed the course of treatment in some cases to exactly the opposite of that which I pursued, notably in the instance of Cathleen Vanderbilt, (daughter of Reginald C. Vanderbilt,) and Gray Foster." The letter also accused Dr. Barrie of making a "social call on one of my patients in Washington, the object of which was so transparent that no wise man would have been guilty of such an indiscretion."

Bonded Aliens Released.

Perry M. Armstrong, Assistant Director of the New York Enemy Alien Bureau, announced late yesterday afternoon that he had been directed by Attorney General Palmer to release immediately all enemy aliens under parole or bond and to cancel the bonds.

This order means that hereafter about a thousand enemy aliens in this city are free to go about as they please. All the enemy aliens will be informed by mail of the order.

"WETS" WIN IN QUEBEC.

Province Has Apparently Gone Heavily Against Prohibition.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, April 10.—Midnight returns show a crushing defeat of prohibition in Quebec Province, although half the rural districts are still to hear from.

The majority in favor of wines and beer was estimated late tonight at almost 100,000 votes.

Montreal and other cities voted heavily in favor of beer, wine, and cider. Montreal stood 89,405 for beer to 12,297 against. Quebec City, St. John's, Sherbrooke, St. Hyacinthe, Riviere du Loup, Three Rivers, and Hull voted in similar proportion, and even Westmount, a suburb of Montreal, which has excluded licenses from its limits, voted 3 to 2 in favor.

The counties heard from, Chambly, Iberville, Lassomption, Montcalm, Maskinonge, St. John's, Vaudreuil, Vercheres, and Jacques Cartier, give large majorities to the moderates. Two counties, Brome and Richmond, inhabited mainly by English-speaking farmers, went dry.

HINDENBURG SMASH TOLD BY GEN. O'RYAN

27th Division Men Fanatical in Desire to Meet Germans, He Says in Lecture.

CRIED "LEAD US TO THEM!"

Commander Describes Work on the Border Before Going Across—Praises the British.

Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, Commander in Chief of the 27th Division, in the first of a series of lectures, told an appreciative audience of some 2,000 persons in Carnegie Hall last night a graphic story of the history of the division from the time it was mobilized and sent to Camp Wadsworth for training up to the armistice.

When describing the feat performed by the 27th when it broke through the Hindenburg line on the St. Quentin tunnel sector, General O'Ryan was cheered to the echo when he declared:

"It was the fixed opinion of old army observers that nobody could have got through the line unless they were confident in their ability, physically fit, and of a stern moral dependency. Our men had those qualities to an extent that bordered on fanaticism. They had a tremendous pride in their organization, were tremendously fit, and while their confidence was in nowise boastfulness, it had no limitations. They simply knew they could do the job. 'Lead us to it' was the watchword of the men of the 27th."

In the course of his lecture, General O'Ryan was cheered when he paid a high tribute to the soldierly qualities of the "two-fisted British soldier."

Tells Its Work on Border.

Martin W. Littleton introduced the General, who proceeded at once to tell of the early history of the 27th. It was on the Mexican border, he said, where it was known as the 6th Division. Before that it had always been known as the New York Division.

"On the border the 27th was held as a unit ready to go into action in case of an invasion," said the General. "When it was finally ordered home, some of the units had only two weeks of leisure before they were again mobilized for service in this war. They were sent to Camp Wadsworth, S. C., where they put in a solid Winter of hard, grinding work.

"There was practically not a single recruit in the whole division, and while the newspapers were saying how well trained they were, these veterans kept right on training silently and grimly. They had to stand by and see divisions of much newer troops go across, but they were soldiers, and they did not kick, that is, they did not kick openly."

General O'Ryan described the tour of observation which he, in company with his chief of staff and an aid, made of the allied armies before the 27th was sent to France. He told of the joy which, after his return, the news that they were going across created in the division.

"We were somewhat surprised to find we were going to a British sector after we got to France," said General O'Ryan. "We had, like most Americans, thought we were going over to help the French, and we discovered we had to serve with the British, ride British horses and eat British rations. In short, we became a part of the British Army."

Apprehensions Among Officers.

The General then described the apprehensions which some of the officers in the division had when they learned that it was with the British the 27th was going to serve. He said that the division's makeup of men of Northern New York who had been brought up on stories of how the English had burned Kingston in 1815, combined with Americans of German extraction and Americans of Irish extraction from New York City, made the prospect for peace between the Allies anything but certain.

"We found the British, above everything, good sports," he said. "And before we got through, let me tell you, those British captured us all."

He described the life of the division at the front, telling how the Americans kept down the casualties by living in shelter tent instead of billets as their British allies did. The two occupants of a shelter tent would each dig a grave to lie in, said General O'Ryan, and when a hostile airplane came over on a bombing expedition, it had to register a direct hit on one of the little tents to do the men inside any harm.

In describing operations around the Hindenburg line General O'Ryan employed maps and pictures. He told how on Sept. 27, the 106th Infantry, with a supporting battalion of the 105th to guard its left flank, because the British were not able to join in that task, tried to break the outer defenses of the line. He told of the three "strong points" the enemy had established between the first and second lines of trenches, and of how they kept feeding men from the reserves hidden in the St. Quentin Canal tunnel into the trenches joining these strong points.

Valiant Fight of 106th.

In spite of the fiercest sort of opposition the end of the 27th of September found the 106th Infantry, the remnants of it, holding like grim death to the fairly substantial gains they had made. The "strong points" were more or less in possession of the enemy, General O'Ryan said, although around them later were found German dead as thick as flies.

He described how on Sept. 29 the survivors of the 106th were relieved by the 54th Infantry Brigade, composed of the 107th and 108th Regiments. These two, with two battalions of the 105th, tore past the scene of the previous battles and straight at the heart of the German defenses.

The British were unable to gain at their front, but nothing stopped the American advance, and when they were relieved after three days' fighting by the Australians, the high command ordered a turning movement which flanked the Germans out of the key to their position, the town of Vendhuile, without further fighting.

"The men fought like wildcats," said the General. "I'd like to talk it over with some of the enemy who may still be alive who faced us on that day and see just what they thought of our advance."

General O'Ryan said that many of the dead of the division had been buried in the very middle of the Hindenburg line. He said it was the desire of the men who were left that their comrades should rest in France, for they believed that this would be an eternal guarantee of the friendship between the two nations.

SIMS TELLS ORIGIN OF THE DEPTH BOMB

Rear Admiral William S. Sims, U. S. N., who, as an Admiral, commanded the American warships in European waters during the war, came back to New York from Washington yesterday morning. While in Washington he conferred with Acting Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt and other Navy Department officials about resuming his duties as President of the Naval War College at Newport. He will return to Newport today, where the entire town will turn out to welcome him, and take up his duties at the War College tomorrow.

Admiral Sims is expected to return to New York for a brief stay during the visit of the Atlantic Fleet, which will arrive next Tuesday morning and will remain in the Hudson for two weeks. About 100 vessels, including fifteen superdreadnoughts, will be lined up in the Hudson on Tuesday afternoon. All the vessels that operated in European waters, with the exception of some destroyers and submarine chasers, which are still on the other side, will be in the river. It is expected that a dinner will be tendered the officers of the fleet by the city, and Admiral Sims is expected to be one of the guests.

Plans for entertaining the 30,000 officers and men of the fleet are now under way. There will be no parade, but theatre parties, dances, dinners, and other entertainments in Welfare canteens and clubs will be features of the program which is now being arranged by the Y. M. C. A., the Knights of Columbus, the Salvation Army, the Jewish Welfare Board, and other organizations which are co-operating in an effort to make the stay of the fleet one that the men will not soon forget.

Admiral Sims was reminiscent when he met the reporters in his suite at the Biltmore. Among other stories of the navy's part in the great war, he told the story of the depth bomb.

"It all," he said, "came about in this way. A short time after I arrived in England, two years ago, Admiral Jellicoe told me the story of how the depth bomb came into being. He said that Admiral Madden, who was second in command of the Grand Fleet, had, while in command of a cruiser in the early days of the war, caught sight of a torpedo as it was fired from a submarine. Presently the track of the submarine was seen, and a moment or so later the top of the periscope of the submarine was visible. The U-boat finally took to its heels, with the British cruiser in pursuit.

"Admiral Jellicoe then told me that the British cruiser finally got within sight of the submarine, and it was then that Admiral Madden thought of the depth bombs. His men went to work at once, Admiral Jellicoe told me, and after some experimenting brought out the bomb which was later nicknamed the 'ash can.' They were tested out, and after they were found to be practical each destroyer was loaded up with them, carrying from thirty to forty charges apiece. They were arranged on a track device in such a manner that they could be sent off one every ten seconds merely by the pushing of a button."

UNEMPLOYMENT INCREASES.

Increase in Surplus of Labor Reported by 38 Cities.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Increasing unemployment during the week ended April 5 was shown in reports from sixty-six cities to the Federal Employment Service, a summary of which was made public tonight. Thirty-eight cities showed a total labor surplus of 133,505, an increase of 5,835 over the preceding week, while nineteen reported a labor shortage totaling 4,650, and nine showed an equality of supply and demand.

Points in New England reported the heaviest increases in surplus, although increases were indicated generally in the Eastern cities. The surplus on the Pacific Coast remained practically stationary, while many Southern points continued to show a labor shortage.

HOOVER OFFERS PLAN TO PACIFY RUSSIA

FOOD IF HOSTILITIES CEASE

69,000 Tons Already Sent to Austria and Daily Arrivals Are to be Increased.

LONDON, April 10.—Herbert C. Hoover, Director General of the interallied relief organization, has requested Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, head of the Norwegian Food Mission to the United States, to become chief of an international neutral commission to investigate the possibility of feeding Russia, on condition of the cessation of hostilities in Russia, according to a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Copenhagen.

The dispatch says that £10,000,000 ($50,000,000) monthly will be required for the carrying out of the program.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, April 10.—Speaking about Mr. Hoover's plan to have Nansen head an international commission to get food to the starving Russian people, Magnus Swenson, the American distributor of food at Copenhagen, said today:

"It is a great scheme. The only effective remedy against Bolshevism is giving people something to eat."

Concerning Finland, whence he recently returned, he said that conditions were much better. The Finns need help, he said, but their bread allowance was put up from 180 to 240 grammes, and if the Government was firm against the threatening Bolshevism from Russia the future was safe.

PARIS, April 10.—Herbert C. Hoover, Director General of Relief, states that he has arranged through the Supreme Economic Council on behalf of the four Governments, for the provision of finance, shipping, and foodstuffs, which has enabled the delivery into Austria of about 10,000 tons of foodstuffs in January, 22,000 tons in February, and 37,000 tons in March, of a total value of about $15,000,000.

The gradual exhaustion of internal supplies, Mr. Hoover points out, necessitates an increase, if Vienna and the other larger points are to avoid starvation. It is the intention of the associated Governments to continue to furnish the indispensable quota to Austria, and arrangements have already been made materially to increase the daily arrivals.

This, of course, can only continue so long as local conditions are such as to insure transportation and equitable distribution, and so long as there is cooperation in the protection of transportation to the other equally needy sections of the old Austrian Empire.

It should be borne in mind, however, Mr. Hoover says, that with the limited railway communications between Vienna and the possible sources of supply and disturbance of public order will render further shipments impossible and bring Vienna face to face with absolute famine.

No Short Circuit Here! An All-Complete Range Of Suits For Shortish Men

HISTORIANS chronicle, that some of the smallest men were some of the greatest, and that what Providence leaves out of man's height, it often puts into his head. It is no crime to be short, but it is a misdemeanor to dress so as to emphasize, not minimize, under-average stature.

Short sizes are my study and specialty. These Suits are proportioned to my private specifications. They may lack full height, but they are not lacking in full style and complete fit and entire value all through.

I cannot work miracles, but I can make the short man look several inches taller and six feet smarter, and I don't take any longer profit for short, or stout, or tall sizes than my regular prices allow, $35 to $65.

77TH PARADE IS NOW OFFICIALLY ASSURED

War Department Orders Return of Division, 'or Greatest Part in One Convoy.

DEPENDS ON TRANSPORTS

However, Should Any of the Units Arrive Late, Separate Receptions Are Guaranteed.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The War Department has instructed the army embarkation officials in France to return in one convoy the entire 77th Division if possible, or as large a part of it as may be possible with the available shipping. This action was taken in connection with plans for the parade of the division in New York City.

Should the transports bringing the division arrive in New York within reasonable time of each other, it was announced officially that the department would parade in New York City at one time either the entire division or the largest number possible of the units belonging to it, and would "guarantee to parade the remaining units separately if it is desirable."

The War Department made public the following telegram sent by Acting Secretary Crowell today to George Gordon Battle of New York:

"Answering your telegram regarding parade of 77th Division in New York, the War Department is in favor of this parade being held. Our difficulty is due to the fact that a parade of the complete division might make necessary the holding of certain units which may arrive long before the date set for the balance of the division, thus preventing the demobilization of men who are anxious to get their discharges, and disarranging our entire schedule of demobilization in the New York district. The department has already cabled General Harbord to return in one convoy this whole division, or as large a part of it as is possible with the shipping at his disposal. Should these ships arrive in New York within reasonable time of each other the department will parade in New York City at one time, either the entire division or the largest number possible of the units belonging to it, and will guarantee to parade the remaining units separately if it is desired."

The Progress Republican Club of the Eighth Assembly District joined yesterday in the protest to the War Department on its unfavorable attitude toward a parade of the 77th Division as a unit, and announced that the following telegram had been sent to United States Senators James W. Wadsworth and William M. Calder:

We, the Progress Republican Club, emphatically condemn the action of the military authorities in refusing the 77th Division to parade in New York City upon their arrival. We regret that these boys after having won the admiration of the world by their valor and endurance should now be refused a proper and fitting tribute by the people of New York, such as was accorded the 27th Division, the colored division, &c.

We citizens of the east side deplore such action. Therefore we urge you as Senator of New York to use all the means in your power so that this order may be rescinded by the General Staff, and that we may be given an opportunity to welcome home our heroes.

Major Allan Lindley of the advance party of the 77th Division said yesterday that in the parade, a place of honor in the line of march would be given to Captain Alexander Fleming Popham of the Red Cross. Major Lindley paid tribute to the Red Cross officer, and said that the rapid relief measures inaugurated by the latter had saved the lives of hundreds of men.

Commenting on the War Department's announcement, the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, Chairman of the Home Auxiliary of the 77th Division, said last night:

"This message from the War Department is encouraging. It shows a disposition to consider the rightful demand of New York City that the 77th parade as a unit. This message, however, does not entirely satisfy, for it still leaves uncertain the parade of the entire division, and that is what New York asks.

"While this news is very promising we must continue our efforts for the parade until we are definitely assured that the arrangements have been made for the event. We want nothing short of an order from the War Department for a divisional parade."

REPORTER KILLED IN ACTION

Death of C. A. Ennis, Reported Missing, Is Officially Confirmed.

Charles A. Ennis, formerly a reporter for the New York City News Association, was killed in action on Aug. 27, according to official advices from Washington received yesterday by his mother, Mrs. Theresa Ennis, 370 Parkside Avenue, Brooklyn.

Previous reports from the War Department stated that Ennis was missing in action on Aug. 27 and he was later reported back for duty on Sept. 3. Investigation through the Red Cross and the military authorities finally established his death beyond question on the date he was reported missing.

Ennis joined the army on Aug. 19, 1917, and went overseas as a member of Company E, 307th Infantry, which took part in the Argonne drive. He was 23 years old.

There were no cases in which men lost both of their arms and both legs. Surgeon General Ireland of the Medical Corps of the Army and Colonel Charles E. Banks, Chief Medical Officer of War Risk Insurance, are cited by the bureau as authority for this statement.

There were but 125 cases of total blindness as the result of the war, and not all these cases have yet been declared as permanent by the medical officers in charge, according to reports to the bureau.

Shift Four Generals in Coblenz Area

COBLENZ, April 9, (Associated Press.)—The commands of four Generals in the American Army of Occupation have been shifted, according to an announcement made today at Third Army Headquarters. Major Gen. William Lassiter, who has commanded the 32d Division since it entered Germany, is designated Chief Artillery Officer of the Third Army. Brig. Gen. William G. Haan, who commanded the 32d Division during the war, will have command of that division when it leaves the Rhine for home. Since the army occupied this section of Germany, Haan has been a corps commander. Brig. Gens. Adelbert Cronkhite and Charles H. Clothes for the New Spirit and the New Figure TIMES change. And we believe clothes should change with them.

The New American Figure

The war made over the young men of the country—physically and in their attitude toward things.

The old models, cut on the old civilian proportions, won't do. Back, waist, chest—all have taken on new lines.

The designers of KUPPENHEIMER CLOTHES created styles with vim and go and punch; and lines to fit those fine bodies that were the marvel of Europeans.

For Ambitious Young Men

Just the kind of clothes the self-reliant young man is looking for—in the wanted fabrics and attractive patterns.

And with it all, that known merit, fine workmanship and sound value that have always distinguished KUPPENHEIMER CLOTHES.

Good clothes always cost a little more. But the greater wear and satisfaction make up the difference many times over.

FIRST WAR VETERAN CAUCUS ON APRIL 26

CALL FOR MEN IN RANKS

Urged to Help Protect "Constitutional Rights of People" in Notice.

The first caucus of war veterans to be held under the auspices of the American Legion, the organization made up of army and navy men who served in the world war, will be held on April 26, according to an announcement made yesterday by Major Cornelius W. Wickersham. It will be held in one of the city's armories, and will be for the purpose of electing twenty-two delegates and twenty-two alternates from New York City to the St. Louis caucus of veterans scheduled for May 8. Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan will preside at the meeting.

Major Wickersham said yesterday that in all probability caucuses in other districts of the State would be held on the same day. Reports received yesterday at State Headquarters, 40 Wall Street, indicated that intense interest is being taken in the new organization all over the State. Lieut. Col. J. Leslie Kincaid of Syracuse, Chairman of the Northern New York District Committee, reported splendid progress in his section, and similar reports came from Major Bradley Goodyear about the territory around Buffalo. It is probable that the western division caucus will be held in that city.

Major Wickersham reported that a great many local organizations of veterans had asked to be admitted to the American Legion. Prior to the formation of the legion and the official call issued on Tuesday a large number of army and navy veterans formed themselves into organizations of various kinds and most of these, the Major said, want to join the American Legion. Major Robert A. Greenfield of the Engineering Regiment with the 78th Division, who fought in the Argonne, called upon Major Wickersham and told him that the Mount Vernon (N. Y.) Veterans' Association would support the Legion.

Sixty Per Cent. Enlisted Men.

The various State organizations were informed yesterday by the Legion that sixty per cent. of the delegates to the national caucus in St. Louis must be enlisted men. The action was taken, it was announced, to emphasize in the minds of the organizers throughout the country that the new veterans' organization is to be thoroughly democratic, nonpartisan and nonpolitical.

At the headquarters yesterday Brig. Gen. Charles I. Debevoise, who commanded the 54th Infantry Brigade of the 27th Division, urged that every officer and enlisted man in the army and navy join the Legion to help protect the constitutional rights of the American people.

Lieut. Col. Eric Fisher Wood, temporary Secretary of the Legion, received word from Paris yesterday that a permanent Executive Committee had been elected for the organization by the men of the A. E. F. in France. A subcommittee of fifteen officers and men was formed and Lieut. Col. Bennett Clark was chosen as Chairman.

The subcommittee expects to return to America in May, and, as representatives of the A. E. F., confer with another committee representing the veterans at home concerning the proposed armistice day and general convention to be held in Chicago on Nov. 11, when the organizations of veterans both at home and abroad will be amalgamated.

At the Paris meeting the following temporary organization of the Executive Committee was made permanent:

Chairman, Colonel Milton Foreman, Chicago, 33d Division; Secretary, Lieut. Col. George H. White, Portland, Ore., 41st Division.

The Executive Committee is composed of one officer and one enlisted man from each combat division and each section of the S. O. S.

Major Granville Fortescue of the 80th Division told of the instructions that had been sent out that 60 per cent. of the delegates to the St. Louis caucus must be enlisted men, said:

Seek Delegates from Ranks.

"It is to be hoped that the various States will send as many delegates from the ranks as possible. Lieut. Cols. Roosevelt and Clark and the officers associated with them in launching the movement look upon themselves simply as trustees, acting in a strictly temporary capacity. They will give up the work of the temporary committee to the men chosen by the delegates in open convention, for the keynote of the American Legion is democracy.

"Everyone concerned with the temporary organization wishes it distinctly understood throughout the entire country and among the men in France that the legion is a civilian organization and upon enrollment in it, a member leaves all rank behind. The work done in the United States and Europe has brought about mutual respect and confidence in all ranks of the army, from General Pershing down to the humblest or toughest buck private. The temporary committee is urging the men of the ranks to come forward and help with the caucus plans to the extent demanded by their numbers."

Major Fortescue concluded by saying that the "doughboy," the "gob," and the "leather-neck" made up the great mass of the American military forces in time of war, and consequently would form the backbone of the American Legion in peace time.

GIVES SCHOOLS TO ARMY.

Y. M. C. A. Donates the Educational System Set Up in France.

The transfer to the army of the educational system for officers and enlisted men set up in France during the war by the Young Men's Christian Association, representing an investment of $14,000,000, was announced last night by William Sloane, Chairman of the National War Work Council of the organization.

Mr. Sloane said that the 600 prominent educators who had been organized by the Y. M. C. A. for the work would be placed under army control and that no reimbursement would be sought by the Y. M. C. A. for any part of the sum expended in the building up of the organization or the purchase of textbooks valued at $2,000,000.

The educational system, which includes schools at every camp, post, and hospital, was based on a survey of the army's educational needs made by Anson Phelps Stokes, Jr., of Yale University. It is headed by a Y. M. C. A. Army Educational Commission, composed of John Erskine of Columbia, Chairman; Frank E. Spaulding, Superintendent of Schools in Cleveland, and Kenyon L. Butterfield, President of the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

In announcing the transfer, Mr. Sloane made public letters from Secretary of War Baker and General Pershing warmly commending the Y. M. C. A. for its work in building up the system.

AMERICAN 'DUMPING' HINTED

Our Cotton Goods Alleged Cheaper in England Than Here.

LONDON, April 10.—Suggestion was made in the House of Commons today that American manufactured cotton goods were being offered in England at prices below which they were sold in the United States.

W. C. Bridgeman, Under Secretary of the Board of Trade, said that an anti-dumping bill was already in print, and the Board of Trade would like to have any information in the possession of the member regarding the suggestion made.

MUSIC

Somewhat as Edouard Remenyi once brought the good seed of Magyar music rhythms to blossom as "Hungarian Dances" in the fertile soil of Brahms, so two young soldier artists of France, Louis Wins and Edouard Gendron, in three concerts in New York—the last one yesterday in Aeolian Hall, though they will return next season—have shown a new side of French art; they have pep no less than polish, energy along with elegance, a fine sense of the theatre as well as finer reverence for the masters. Grounded in classic sonata recital, they have played before from Beethoven, from Handel; yesterday was a field day for France, and these men made much of it, while a musical audience made much of them in return. It was a pleasure to hear the sonatas "of the future"—of Guillaume Lekeu, whose career ended at 24 years; of Gabriel Faure, whose Opus 13 had verve and "go" to it, and finally of Sylvio Lazzari, a visitor to America last year when his opera, "Le Sauteriot," was produced here. Lazzari, a Parisian of many years, yet stems from the Southeast of Europe; it is so written in this vital, muscular work for violin and piano, Opus 24, in its recurrence of folk-song elements—done with fine "singing tone"—though the strength of the composition's skeleton is a motto as bold as the theme of fate in Bizet's "Carmen." The two players were at their best in this modern program and they were heartily recalled at the close.

Powell and Rogers Lend a Hand.

Bishop Restarick's famous schoolgirl singers, whom Pacific voyagers have heard in the real Honolulu folksongs of the Kanaka tongue, to their own ukelele accompaniment—and doubtless the Filipino wards of Bishop Brent, the Porto Ricans of Bishop Colmore—might have been amazed at music offered in their behalf to a brilliant matinee audience at the Biltmore yesterday, when John Powell and Francis Rogers gave a benefit for the Islands Committee of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York. Mr. Powell played not only some Chopin and Liszt, but also his own "Snake Charmer" and "Banjo Picker" from an American suite. "At the Fair." Mr. Rogers sang baritone airs from Lully's "Bois Epais" to Debussy's "Mandoline," and from Purcell's "Nymphs and Shepherds" to an "Echo" song by his accompanist, Bruno Huhn. Some needs of the islands were told in the printed program folder, and the proceeds of the concert went to the aid of these.

Rose Levison's Recital.

Easter will bring the annual revival of concerts and debuts at the season's end, but meanwhile there still are events of interest, such as last evening's revital of Rose Levison, a South American pianist, who had been heard here in Aeolian Hall two years ago, and who returned to make an artist's "report of progress." She played a varied program: Beethoven's Sonata Op. 26, airs and arrangements from Mendelssohn, Gluck-Brahms, Chopin, Debussy, Mana Zucca, and Liszt. Miss Levison has technical equipment; she has sought for "singing tone," that last desideratum of pianists—even the best—under guidance of Mrs. Walter A. Wyckoff, and she was heard with evident cordiality by last night's well-filled house.

A Longer Orchestra Season.

There is novelty in both program and plot of the New Symphony Orchestra, to be heard for the first time tonight in Carnegie Hall, under influential auspices. Both the patrons' committee and the organization of ninety-six players, led by Edgar Varese, are aiming to add six weeks to the term of New York's season and something to its musical interest and variety. Among the boxholders are Mrs. Francis Carolan, Mrs. Joseph Duveen, Mrs. Newbold Le Roy Edgar, Mrs. George Gould, Mrs. Charles S. Guggenheimer, Mrs. John Henry Hammond, Mrs. Adolph Lewisohn, Mrs. Ralph Pulitzer, Mrs. C. C. Rumsey, Mrs. Walter J. Salmon, Mrs. John Sanford, Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.

Opera Gives Last "Faust" of Season

Give the devil his due, was the good old maxim of the Faustspielhaus in former days. Last night Gounod's "Faust" made a farewell bow for the Metropolitan season, to close in nine days more. With Miss Farrar and Mr. Martinelli as the lovers, Clarence Whitehill appeared for the first time recently as Mephistopheles in spite of hoarseness. Thomas Chalmers, hadly recovered from a cold, sang Valentine, and Mme. Mattfeld replaced Miss Howard, who is now ill. Mme. Delannois and Mr. Ananian completed the cast. Miss Galli danced in the restored Walpurgis revel, and Mr. Monteux conducted. The audience was a large one.

"Wives of Patriarch" at Columbia.

The first performance of the "Wives of the Patriarch," the play given annually by the Columbia University Philolexian Society, was held last night at Earl Hall, Broadway and 117th Street. The play, the scene of which was laid in ancient Greece, represented the woman suffrage movement as it existed in Greece. Among those who took part in it were H. Obermeyer, E. T. Stelle, Walter Neale, Arnold Koch, R. R. Conant, and C. F. Bell. Professor Algernon Tassin, the author of the play, also acted as dramatic coach.

WOMEN ASSAIL SENATORS.

Two of Republican Committee Favor World League Covenant.

Two women members of the special committee appointed by the Kings County Republican Committee to canvass sentiment on the League of Nations will file a minority report protesting against the stand of United States Senators Calder and Wadsworth of New York, who signed the "round robin" protesting against the President's draft of the proposed League. They are Miss Estelle D. Bush of the Seventeenth Assembly District and Miss Anna C. Dewitt of the Twenty-first Assembly District.

A League of Nations is favored by the committee, but not the present covenant, and a majority report will uphold the action of the New York Senators. Both reports were to have been presented to the meeting of the committe last Tuesday night at which Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt spoke, but the presentation was deferred because it was thought it might embarrass the speakers. They will be presented at the next meeting of the committee and a lively debate is expected.

DRAMA

By John Corbin

Histrionic Souffle.

Doris	Violette Wilson
Chloe	Ann Andrews
Papa	John L. Shine
Mr. Roderick	Barnett Parker
Dick	Robert Andrews
Dolores	Miriam Battista
The Governess	Nina Varesa
Zimzapani	Adolphe Millar

What is lighter than whipped cream? Zoë Akins's little play at the Little Theatre is lighter than whipped cream; but for that very reason there are difficulties in describing it. And especially because, in telling what it is all about, it will probably seem anything but light.

Papa is a fashionable worthy on the brink of indictment for financial carelessness, who saves himself by marrying off his two daughters. The only obstacle to this coup de finance seems to be that one of them has already had a child, the father of which is a thoughtless tenor. But this obstacle is easily overcome. The young man who is to marry her, being informed of the fact of the child, strikes a magnanimous attitude and accepts it, too. And this gesture is rendered more interesting because the young lady has lied to him, the mother of the child being really Papa's other daughter. Thus arises a complication which quite nonpluses the aforesaid thoughtless tenor when he arrives to inspect his offspring, humming "Celeste Aida," and tries in vain to think which of the young matrons was once an acquaintance of his. There is more of this (as the Germans would say) stuff of the drama. It goes on and on, without beginning, middle, and end—or continuity of any sort. But that scarcely signifies, for it is all handled in a manner equally light.

No. Whipped cream will not do for a simile. For it still preserves the savor of cream unwhipped, which is a precious commodity, highly nourishing, and takes us back at the ultimate analysis to the good old cow. "Papa" resembles rather the chocolate of commerce, which is said to be mainly fabricated of mud. Better, a boarding-house souffle, concocted of eggs that are tired. Yes! Souffle is the word. For whatever lightness "Papa" possesses has been breathed into it by a sort of culinary art. Its airy nothingness is, in fact, very largely the achievement of the actors, who are unusually successful in keeping the souffle from an unfortunate fall.

John L. Shine is Papa, and he is luminous as usual. Anne Andrews and Violette Wilson are his tirelessly absurd and inconsequent daughters. As the magnanimous son-in-law Barnett Parker once again reveals the talent of a born comedian. A word must be said also for the thoughtless tenor as impersonated by Adolphe Milar, who is really funny, and most of all when he is nonpluused by his dilemma as to the two young matrons and takes refuge in an orgie of paternal adoration for his unmistakable child.

And then there is Jobyna Howland, another born comedian, who never fails of the subtlest stroke of character or of the broadest laugh. But, for the first time in her life, she revealed a shortcoming. She, if any one, with her eighty or ninety inches, could give continuity to the little play. But she utterly failed. True, she only came on at the end of the last act to marry the careless Papa. Yet for once, none the less, Jobyna is to be marked down for a shortcoming.

REPORTS MORGAN AIDS $200,000,000 SHIP PLAN

Mochizuki Says That Americans Will Join Japanese in New Maritime Corporation.

SEATTLE, April 10.—J. P. Morgan and other financiers have promised to join Japanese capitalists in the organization of a new steamship corporation, according to Kotaro Mochizuki, economist and member of the Japanese Parliament, who was in Seattle today on his way to New York.

Mr. Mochizuki said that probably $200,000,000 of American and Japanese money would be invested in the new venture. Although details have not been arranged, he said, the concern probably would be called the American-Japanese Steamship Company, and would buy and build ships and operate them on all the world's important ocean traffic lanes. One line will run from Seattle to the Orient.

SAMUEL GOMPERS RETURNS

Labor Leader Is Informed of Wife's Illness on Landing.

The Holland-America liner Rotterdam arrived yesterday afternoon with more than 2,300 troops and 600 civilian passengers on board. Because of the lateness of the hour she was sent to an anchorage in Gravesend Bay and her passengers will be landed today at Hoboken.

The immigration inspectors who went to the steamship brought back Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, who went abroad in attendance on the peace delegation. Mr. Gompers was met by his sons Samuel J. and Alexander Gompers, who informed him that their mother was seriously ill and that he should see her without delay. They did not tell their father that Mrs. Gompers had suffered a serious breakdown several days ago. With Mr. Gompers returned James Duncan, President of the Granite Cutters' Union; Frank Duffy, General Secretary of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners; William Green, Secretary-Treasurer of the Mine Workers' Union, all Vice Presidents of the Federation of Labor, who went overseas with Mr. Gompers on Jan. 8.

Mr. Gompers has been in poor health and when he embarked at Plymouth on March 31 he was so ill he had to be supported on the gangplank. He said that the sea voyage had improved him.

"I am like the clam tonight," said Mr. Gompers to interviewers, but added that he might have something to say today.

He received a wireless message before the steamship reached port from the National Civic Federation, inviting the Labor Commission to attend a luncheon on Saturday. Mr. Gompers said that the invitation would be accepted if it did not interfere with other arrangements made for them before they arrived.

Limitations

ON weekdays the size of The New York Times is limited to twenty-four pages, thus restricting the space available for advertisements.

It is often necessary to omit advertisements in order that the space allowed to news may not be encroached upon.

Today 19 columns are omitted.

Careful discrimination in the assignment of advertising space is forced upon The Times by this condition.

It is suggested that orders for the insertion of advertisements give The Times an option on the date of publication.

Orders for the insertion of advertisements, if possible, should include the words "or first available day," as well as the date when publication is preferred.

The People Who Work With Swift & Company

Big Business is usually pictured in the public mind as a huge, soulless machine. As a matter of fact, it is just a collection of human beings like you.

Without boasting and simply to give the public an idea of the human side of Swift & Company, we publish the following facts:

The lowest rate of wages paid to men has been increased voluntarily and by arbitration 167 per cent in the past three years; the wages of all packing-house labor have been increased an average of 125 per cent.

There is an Employes' Benefit Association (voluntary) providing disability and death benefits for a small weekly payment. Sick allowances are granted in times of illness, and pensions for disability and old age are provided without expense to the employe.

Under a two year time payment plan 4,000 employes have become shareholders in Swift & Company.

More than 1,500 of the 7,500 men who left to join the army and navy have returned to their jobs, and jobs are waiting for the others as soon as they return.

At the general office in Chicago, every boy is given an hour's schooling daily on company time, such work being accredited by the high school authorities in securing a two year commercial course diploma.

Swift & Company is co-operating with other employers to improve living conditions around the stock yards.

More and more thought and attention are being given to the opportunity and responsibilities presented in a big industry to improve working conditions and to raise living standards.

These are beginnings of a broad, constructive program, details of which are now being worked out by the Employes' Relations Committee of Swift & Company.

THE PLIGHT OF THE RAILROADS.

Toward the end of March the Director General declared that it was the duty of Congress to relieve the distress of the railways. Today he is to ask the bankers of the country to mend immediately a situation too pressing to await the action of Congress. The situation is not so serious because of anything in itself as because of the irregularity of the practice of the doctors into whose care the case was put. Today the same lawmakers and regulators are working in the same way that they did when the railways were thrust into something like insolvency by politicians condemning everything that the railways did, and prosecuting the same money powers that now are being appealed to for help.

These will meet expectations, of course, as they customarily do, for they bear no malice and are public spirited. But they are in a position of power, and it may be hoped that they will use it as they did when last appealed to. Then the country's bankers required that the railways should conform to the laws passed to cure their immoral and uneconomic conduct. Now the bankers' terms for assistance in meeting the railways' maturities might well be that the lawmakers and reformers should themselves do the reforming. On those terms the patient's swift and sure recovery is certain. The railways are not now suffering from anæmia. Their credits on their balance sheets do not represent uncollectible rebates, earned by discriminations to favored customers, to the prejudice of general trade thus reduced to disorder and distress. On the contrary, the country's trade and the railways' ability to accommodate it are both above any pre-war standard.

The discount on the Liberty Loans has attracted much attention. The discount on railway credit is greater, on a greater volume of capital. But that is only a beginning of the statement of the case. All public utility credit is suffering with the railways, and for similar reasons. The volume of trade dependent on railway and utility credit rivals that of the roads themselves. The railway supply industry alone comprises some 3,000 firms, employing 1,750,000 workers. There never yet has been prosperity in the country at large unless there also has been prosperity in the associated railway and utility industries. No single factor more threatens the stability of the iron and steel price and wage questions than the inability of the railway and utility industries to maintain the volume of their orders. The railways and the utilities are only the tools with which the country does its work. As the case stands the country is in danger of being forced to work at a disadvantage because of the dullness and inferiority of its tools—unless they are quickly sharpened and strengthened. Perhaps the lesson of mismanagement has gone far enough. If the bankers think so they can make terms which will revolutionize the railway situation.

Hardly anything would do more to restore railway credit than a statement of the companies' affairs in the manner bankers use when dealing with dollars rather than politics. Because the railways are doing an unprecedented trade as a unit it does not follow that credit is needed by them as a unit, or should be given to them in that manner. The other day a department of the Government paid the Director General $100,000,000. That was earned by individual companies, but if it ever was allocated to them no announcement was made. The Director General relieved himself of the finances of many short lines which hitherto had depended upon the larger and more profitable lines in which alone he was interested. But the country needs the short lines almost as much as the large companies need feeders and distributers. In short, railway credit is in confusion rather than collapse, at least in general understanding. The facts may be clear to the Director General, but he has not succeeded in making clear to those who command the credit he needs how he owes the railways and still lends them money, and, although a lender still himself, needs credit. Part of the confusion is due to the neglect of Congress, and that is easily remedied under discipline. But nothing that Congress has done or left undone alters the dimension of the railway problem. It is bigger than the Government's on a pre-war scale, and more complex and delicate. There is nothing new about this, but appreciation of it would be new. It is years since a railway captain whom the Government put out of business on the Pacific, as well as prosecuted on land, warned the country that the railways were running behind the country's needs more than the Treasury was spending every year. It is to be hoped that the Government's spendings will shrink until that will come true again. Then it is to be hoped that the railways will be put in the way of satisfying their needs without asking the help of anybody.

Mr. WILLIAM HALE THOMPSON, the halo of his latest triumph bright around his brow, firmly reminds the adoring Republican millions of exactly where he is at and where they are: "I am the Republican National Committeeman for Illinois. I am interested in Republican success in the nation next year. I shall not permit anything to influence my action other than the sole desire to see this Government placed back in the hands of the Republican Party."

Mr. JAMES R. MANN and Mr. MARTIN B. MADDEN and Uncle JOE CANNON have their own singular methods of being interested in Republican success in 1920 and of contributing heartily and with such general approval to that success. Mr. THOMPSON, Mayor of "the sixth German city in the world," Republican National Committeeman for Illinois, has an impressiveness greater than, perhaps, at least austerely different from, that of his so protuberant fellow-statesmen.

Mr. MANN and Mr. MADDEN, and even Mr. CANNON, who is young and joyous enough to treat himself to any political dissipation, are not known to be candidates for the Republican nomination for President. It is a glory of Mr. WILLIAM HALE THOMPSON, and a subject for honest pride among all the Thompsonians of good and regular standing in Cook County, that he is "of Presidential size." Measuring with a severe mathematical eye his own dimensions and the dimensions of his possible competitors, Mr. THOMPSON is placid in his own strength. Great as he is, he admits, and his friends admit for him, that "no man is big enough to refuse a nomination for President if it is offered him." Irrespective of his size, Mr. THOMPSON is not the man to refuse any nomination that can be pressed upon him; and as there is nobody more ferocious against "vested interests," will it not be difficult for the Mayor of Chicago to avoid the nomination for President, or Governor, or Senator, or "something equally as good"?

FOOD AND THE BOLSHEVIST ADVANCE.

The peasants of Northern Bavaria, apparently unconvinced of the benefits of a Soviet rule brought in by groups of city workmen, have declared a food blockade against Munich and Augsburg until the Soviets abdicate. If they stick to their guns they will probably bring Bavarian Bolshevism to a speedy end, for everywhere the introduction of Bolshevism has been facilitated by the apathy of a foodless public and its response to Bolshevist promises of better living conditions. So Bolshevism which brought not plenty, but actual starvation, worse food conditions than before, might not last long in a community where it has just been established.

On the other hand, the Bolshevist leaders have everywhere been inspired by a fanatical zeal which gave them a great advantage over indifferent or lukewarm opponents. Bolshevism is their religion as well as their means of livelihood and their pathway to power, so they will fight hard. If the peasant parties hold together they may win, but if they split into factions, if some of their adherents are tempted by high prices to break the blockade, the Bolsheviki may beat them. And once given an opportunity to consolidate their power, they may be counted on to retain it in Munich as they have in Moscow, by seizing such food as there is, distributing it in comparative plenty to their supporters, and leaving their antagonists to starve.

The allied evacuation of Odessa apparently means that we have given up trying to hold the Ukraine, with its wide and fertile grain fields. But for the last two years the Ukraine has been swept over by contending armies—not very large, to be sure, but destructive—and has been disturbed by bitter peasant risings. The Germans took out a good deal of grain last year, more was destroyed to prevent it from falling into their hands; and conditions have been so disturbed that it is a question how much has been sown for this year's crops. But, however small may be the gain to the Bolsheviki, there can be no disguising the loss to the Allies. Once again, as on so many other fronts, we have sent inadequate forces against the enemy, which have fought gallantly so long as they could, but have in the end been driven out by superior numbers. Each repulse heightens the morale of the Red army and inspires the sympathizers with the Bolsheviki in other countries. We have been "hitting soft," as Colonel ROOSEVELT used to say; we have been fighting the Bolsheviki hard enough to annoy them, but not hard enough to hurt them.

SIDNEY DREW.

One may wonder how many moving-picture men realize how much their calling has lost in SIDNEY DREW. The "movies" have been, or were, a gold mine; for a time almost anything, good, bad, or indifferent, would make money; and so many bad or indifferent photoplays did make money, and much money, that the public is indebted to Mr. and Mrs. DREW for vindicating popular taste and showing that good photoplays could be made a profitable business and not a philanthropy. They displayed no interest in "comedy" of the silly school, on which screen actors of real talent are being wasted; they showed that even moving-picture comedies could be made up with some fidelity to human nature and the human intelligence, and that people would flock to see them.

Mrs. O'GRADY, Deputy Police Commissioner, is disturbed about the moral quality of films shown in the poorer parts of the city. Too many films which appear in theatres of a better class have subtler and graver moral defects, of the sort which no censorship can reach. Taking advantage of the realistic appeal of the moving picture, some producers appear to think that a crowd which sees the photograph of a real house will not demand any approach to realism or even plausibility in the events which occur in the house and the characters of those who inhabit it. False ethics pervade many films whose "morality" would never offend Mrs. O'GRADY, and false conceptions of life, cheaply sensational or slushily sentimental, are too frequent.

All this does not have to be; it rises from the ignorance of producers, or from their conviction that the public is not only incapable of appreciating intelligent entertainment, but wants to become worse than it is. There are some few producers who know better and who are proving that people will go to see good photoplays as well as bad ones; and the pictures of Mr. and Mrs. DREW, which were seldom very weighty, but so far as one can remember were never ethically absurd, were pleasant oases at a time—perhaps drawing to its close—when the moving-picture world as a whole was a rather dreary desert.

UNEMPLOYMENT AND HIGH RENTS

The City of New York is facing today a situation which threatens to become more serious with every passing month. The subject of unemployment is receiving the active attention of many agencies, including the United States Government; but the ending of so many war industries and the slowness with which peace-time activities are resumed because of the feeling of uncertainty as to the permanence of present prices are making the problem more difficult.

One of the great fundamental industries, that of building, which supports many thousands of the city's population, is practically at a standstill, whereas the demand for the product of the builder has never been greater. The stopping of this industry in a large degree for the imperative needs of the war has resulted in arresting the production of new buildings for two years or more. The population of the city has continued to grow, and with the return of soldiers and of those employed in the various munition centres this increase is becoming more rapid.

There is an absolute shortage of houses which has brought about the rapid increase of rents, in part due also to the increased cost of operation of buildings, in part to the bidding of tenants for accommodations, and in some measure to an attempt of some landlords to take advantage of the necessities of those living in their houses.

We have to consider, therefore, two great sources of discontent—unemployment and high rents. If men with capital, and by that we mean not only those who have been accustomed to invest in real estate, but merchants, manufacturers, and others who are large employers of labor, wait for the ordinary law of supply and demand to meet the situation, it may well be too late to prevent a check to the prosperity of the city, and much discomfort for no small part of its population.

The remedy for increasing unemployment, with all its attendant dangers, seems to lie in the production of new buildings which will in turn tend to remove the uneasiness caused by increasing rentals to people of moderate means. The opportunity, therefore, presents itself to those far-seeing leaders in business affairs, many of whom perhaps have heretofore never considered the investment of capital in building, to take the lead in starting a great building movement at the present time. We are confident that when the gravity of the situation is fairly presented and made known to the financial leaders of the community private capital will not fail to meet the crisis.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Exploiting Public Gratitude.

A good beginning for a campaign against activities on the part of men in uniform that are not only disgraceful to themselves but humiliating to soldiers and sailors too self-respecting to do such things and to everybody else is to be found in the appeal to the public that has just been issued by Lieut. Commander WICKERSHAM of the Naval Recruiting Station here. The activities in question are to be seen on almost all our streets, and while there is a pretense that those engaged in them are making sales of articles that people want to buy, these transactions, at their best, are little different from, and not at all better than, begging, and at their not infrequent worst they amount to blackmail levied by means of terrorism.

Some of the men who do this sort of vending really have seen service, but the fact that one of them is in navy or army uniform by no means proves the validity of his demand for sympathy and gratitude expressed in silver coins, for more than a few of these exploiters of the public's patriotism have never been even in a training camp, and to buy their worthless buttons or cards is merely to encourage swindlers of a particularly mean variety.

That there are some real soldiers and sailors who since they were discharged have been unable to find work is true, unfortunately, and of course it is comprehensible, and therefore pardonable, that they have resorted to this, the only immediately available method of which they know, to tide over a temporary emergency. The expedient is a bad one, however, and its demoralizing possibilities were well illustrated by the sailor quoted by the Lieutenant Commander. Asked if he wanted a job, the shameless fellow answered, "I should say not! Why, yesterday I made $50 out of people on the street, selling these little 'Welcome Home' badges." That man has become, and if permitted to do so will remain, a professional beggar.

What the Good Citizen Should Do.

When solicited by one of the uniformed peddlers who now infest our streets, the really good citizen, instead of handing over the quarter demanded and letting it go at that, will take the more troublesome course that conscience and a proper sense of civic responsibility dictate. He will question the man in a way to show real interest in his welfare. If this is resented it will be clear proof that the man is either a swindler, disguised as a soldier or sailor and trying to get money on false pretenses, or a member of one or the other service who prefers mendicancy to honest work.

If his response is such as to show a sincere desire to escape from a humiliating position, it is the good citizen's duty to give, not the momentary relief of petty alms, but real help in the finding of honorable employment. It may be enough to tell the applicant of one or another of the several governmental and private bureaus that have been established to meet the needs of such cases. Better still would it be if the good citizen could offer a job or point the road to one.

Then the lending, not the giving, of a quarter or a few dollars may be the true beneficence which "charity" so rarely is.

Preference by No Means Necessary.

Related not at all distantly to the form of tolerated beggary now going on here and elsewhere are the efforts making in several quarters to secure for men who have been in the army or navy since the great war began what amounts to exemption from civil service regulations. It is to be more than suspected that these efforts are due to a hankering on the part of old-school politicians for the "soldier vote" they hope to create and control rather than to the hot aspirations for office of the soldiers themselves. Whatever may be the origin, however, the movement is highly reprehensible, not because the soldiers do not deserve much from their country and their countrymen, but because this way of expressing gratitude is about the worst that has been devised. Its inevitable effects, if successful, will be, first, the incompetent and expensive performance of public business, and, second, the moral injury of the men who profit by a preference entirely irrelevant to the services they have rendered.

As was admirably said in a letter on this subject, just sent by Lieut. Col. FREDERICK PALMER to the Correspondence Committee of the Civil Service Reform Association, the discharged soldier needs no coddling by the law and no exemption from the restrictions imposed on other people. What he has learned in the army will enable him to compete on more than equal terms with the civilian who has lacked his training, and, if his abilities happen to lie in the direction of public employment, there will be nothing alarming or insuperable for him in the ordinary tests of efficiency.

This is as true of the soldier partially disabled by wounds as of him who returns from the war uninjured. For some positions physical hurts form no disqualification, and these he can get without a statutory preference. Others he should not have and should not seek.

THE DUSK OF THE IMMORTALS.

Along the silent gallery
And up the empty floors
Dim figures move from desk to desk,
And vanish through the doors,
And phantoms in the buckled shoes
And queues of long ago
Touch heads in confidential groups,
Or hurry to and fro.

No busy pages pass in haste,
No gavel sharply raps,
No oratory shakes the dome
With verbal thunderclaps.
No bills are molded into laws
Or eloquently spurned,
No long debates are lost or won,
For Congress has adjourned.

But after it disbands, the great,
Who wrought with heart and hand
The fabric of our liberty
Through storm and stress to stand,
Washington, Adams, and Monroe,
With all their glorious train
Of patriots, return to walk
The halls of State again.

Like shadows in the dusk beneath
The famed rotunda vast,
They come, a mighty company,
Immortals from the past,
To see if Freedom's bodyguard
Has kept these latter years
The high and holy covenant

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Newspapers are publishing what is alleged to be an official Serbian telegram from Belgrade saying that a special commission of interallied officers "has terminated an inquiry into the Spalato incident of March, when armed Italian sailors wounded Serbians," and that the commission is alleged to have placed responsibility on the Italian naval commander. Also "from Serbian sources" comes the "information" that recently Italians have arrested a number of Jugoslav civilians.

As such propaganda is constantly appearing "from Serbian" or from Jugoslav sources, and as it cannot but lead Americans to fear that one of the Entente Allies, namely Italy, is unfairly and unjustly treating restless populations of the Balkan States, it is requested that you will grant sufficient space for brief comment on the matter.

Regarding the Spalato incident we beg to say that on March 21 the Italian Bureau of Information received an official cable from representatives of the Royal Italian Government in Paris which we quote as follows:

The Serbian communication published by Greek newspapers concerning the disorders at Spalato is entirely false. The Italian sailors landed for patrolling service were insulted by Croats. An uproar followed in which participated Serbian soldiers who tried to prevent the arrest of the guilty Jugoslavs. These Serbian soldiers were disarmed without grave consequences. The Admirals representing the interallied forces, (one of whom is Admiral Niblack of the United States Navy,) after such disorders had been put down, re-established the service of interallied patrols at Spalato which had been suspended. It must also be said that for having abused and insulted Italy the newspaper Jadran has been suspended for eight days by order of the American Admiral.

We also beg to call your attention to an official Italian Government cable we received from Rome under date of March 12. This cable reads as follows:

On March 9, in the Piazza Grande, at Spalato, Italian sailors, forming a part of the interallied patrol and on duty there to maintain order, were insulted by Jugoslav students, and a great uproar followed during which armed Serbian soldiers intervened to help the students resist arrest. The Serbian soldiers were disarmed without difficulty, and their arms were taken on board an Italian naval vessel for safekeeping. The allied Admirals at once ordered seven squads of sailors representing the four powers to be landed. They stayed ashore only long enough to re-establish order among the riotous Jugoslavs and then returned on board their ships, whereupon the interallied patrols in Spalato were reinforced.

We beg to call especial attention to the following sentence in the official cable sent by the Italian Government from Rome on March 12, evidently intended for serious consideration by Americans:

"The Jugoslavs do not lose any occasion to attempt to make the world believe that, in the territories occupied by the Italians, they are victims of ill-treatment by the Italian authorities and by the Italian population."

Spalato is included in the Adriatic territory which, under the terms of the armistice, must be administered by interallied forces, whose solemn duty it is, as far as possible, to prevent riotous outbreaks from occurring.

VON GWINNER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The issue of THE TIMES brings us, this morning, first, a very able editorial upon Mr. Helfferich's statements, and, second, a perfectly confusing interview with Mr. von Gwinner by a reporter in Berlin. This very coincidence shows how public opinion may be at the same time properly guided by sober criticism and utterly misled by easy assumptions.

I have met Herr von Gwinner, unofficially, four or five times before the war, when he came to Paris on business. I am quite ready to pay the highest compliments to his linguistic abilities; his prominence as a financial expert nobody doubts; and none but the ignorant might believe that this "fascinating personality" was without influence on the former Emperor's mind.

Where credulity is supposed to run high, is when we are asked to believe that the son of Schopenhauer's friend and biographer was an element of conciliation in pre-war Germany. If minimizing other nations, (with just a little respect paid to England,) proclaiming German supremeness in war and peace—to the point of asserting that a continuous line of development led from the primitive ceil to the organization of the Deutsches Reich—if such is a fraternal and peace-breeding attitude of mind, let us believe, then, in Herr von Gwinner's complaints and explanations today.

In this manner, nowadays, too many pre-war imperialists in Germany try to evade responsibilities; they emphasize before a credulous public small details tending to indicate their good faith, and forget the general infatuation of yesterday: they simply don't play the game.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an article entitled "Old Chelsea Landmark," which appeared in THE NEW YORK TIMES April 7, I learn that London Terrace "has been captured" by the New School for Social Research, which proposes to "demolish three of the houses for a school building."

I should like to reassure those who are interested in this quaint section of Chelsea by stating that the New School has no intention whatever of "demolishing" any of the houses which it controls, but, on the contrary, hopes to preserve a portion of the row from the commercial and inartistic aspect which it is rapidly assuming.

The exterior of the houses belonging to the school will be restored according to the original design, while the interior will be renovated and reconstructed to meet the fire laws. The houses on Twenty-fourth Street will be connected with the London Terrace property by an attractive courtyard. Those in charge of the school hope that the owners of adjacent property will be interested in re-establishing the former dignity and charm of the neighborhood by similar improvements.

Russia's Mobilization.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

So much has been said by the Germans about the war having been caused by the Russian mobilization that it seems strange that no one has brought out in this connection the fact that Russia mobilized at the time of the Agadir affair in 1911, and yet Germany did not consider it a cause for war at that time. Was it because she was not quite prepared? It would seem so, for it was in 1912, if I am not mistaken, that the huge tax on capital was imposed in Germany in order to enlarge the army.

CAPTURED FOKKERS NOW FLY FOR LOAN

SHAM BATTLE IN THE AIR

Crowds Thrilled by Tactics as Craft Circle and Swoop Above Skyscrapers.

If the United States Government had not put 2,000,000 trained men in France, or turned out ship after ship, or kept thousands of factories going at maximum day and night, or floated its Liberty Loans or did those many things that took money and money and more money, what happened yesterday high over New York might have been officially communicated as follows:

Observers on the Equitable Building at 2 P. M. observed two enemy airplanes, of the larger Fokker type, heading straight for the city. Mineola Station was notified, and sixteen planes, five manned by aces, rose and headed to the rescue. Before our planes arrived, however, the Fokkers had traversed lower Manhattan and succeeded in dropping a number of bombs. Enemy pilots mindful of the approach of our men turned and fled, our machines in close pursuit. A Navy NC machine co-operated with us.

But, of course, as everybody knows, the United States Government had put the men across and had backed them up with supplies and had decided that a great Victory Loan was necessary to guarantee the things that had been done, so what happened high over New York yesterday merely was: the first flight of the "flying circus" that is to tour the country for the Victory Loan, and a good reproduction of the fighting tactics that made the German airmen think of home whenever they spotted an American plane. Incidentally, the result of the battle gave added significance to the inscription on one of the Fokkers—"A. W. O. L.," or absent without leave.

Climb Into Fokkers.

Out at Camp Mills, shortly after 2 o'clock, Captain A. B. Simonin and Lieutenant M. D. Koehler, climbed into the two Fokker machines. Both of the enemy craft came to this country several months ago, via a certain squadron of Americans that operated north of Verdun. Parts of the Essen-made machinery of the Fokkers were missing when they arrived here and good, stout American steel was substituted to put them in flight shape. The name of Fokker and the mile-and-a-half long German script telling when and how and almost why the airplanes were made was still showing from out of the chocolate and dark blue blotch of German camouflage, when the two American officers hopped in yesterday. And instead of wienerwurst and straffing rations, the Fokkers were freighted with Victory Loan appeals and pamphlets.

Up with a whirring of motors the Fokkers went at about the same time that sixteen machines rose from Hazelhurst Field, Mineola. Five of the Mineola machines had aces as their guides, Lieutenants J. O. Donnelson, J. G. Hall, Jesse O. Creech, George T. Wise, and Raymond P. Birdsall. Major Henry Miller led the squadron, and other aviators were Captain H. M. Smith, Lieutenants George R. White, Bert Blair, J. D. Schalk, Guy Stewart, Eugene St. Marks, W. S. Scharon, George MacDonald, and J. R. Roullot.

Swinging toward the west, the fliers encountered fresh east headwinds and were forced to seek a high altitude, almost concealing from the main body the flight of the advance squadron of five Curtiss machines of somewhat older type. As the Mineola fliers came high over the bay a happy shift in the wind came: it died down almost to a standstill, and through the grayish murk of the atmosphere the pursuers caught a glimpse of the chunky Fokkers at a great height over midtown Manhattan. The observers in the chasing machines could make out a trail of "bombs" or buy-a-bond ammunition dropping steadily in the wake of the Fokkers.

Swoop Around Skyscrapers.

Dipping down, the squadron came tull tilt over the Battery and cutting the cornices of skyscrapers straightened out in a long line and scooted like angry hawks up and over Broadway. The chap who is always discovering something to look at, a well-known character around lower Manhattan, was on the job, and great crowds gathered to watch the thrilling sight. The tall shaft of the Woolworth Building loomed up ahead of the fliers, and while the watching thousands below gazed and expected an accident, the fliers swooped and dived so close to the tip of that building that they must have had feet instead of yards between their machines' wings and the structure.

Along about Canal Street the Fokkers got too confident and started to loaf, and with long streams of exhaust running out behind, the pursuing planes were around them in less time than it take to read it. The Fokker certainly demonstrated that it is a good machine, especially with an American pilot and American parts, for they were able to wheel and drop and rise so quickly and expertly that it looked as if they might get away. But a distant humming—and then NC-31, all the way from Rockaway, came along. The NC alongside the Fokkers and the Mineola machines suggested an eagle beside a sparrow. Why, the very sight of that super-airplane, all primed to make a transatlantic flight, was enough for the Fokkers, and with a final fusillade of literature, they turned tail and headed for uptown.

Up at Forty-second Street, the Fokkers turned and flying low over the Times Building, tried to make the pursuers think they were going east instead of north. But it didn't work, for with an angry spurt of literature and a rapid-fire of pamphlets and a broadside of "V" posters, the pursuers were right on the chase. The chase then led far out, almost over Long Island City, causing Harlemites who saw the string of planes to believe they saw the start rather than the finish of the air combat.

It was reported last night from Mineola and Camp Mills that the Fokkers and the squadron got back safely without further conflict, and that aviators and machines were being prepared for the next "flying circus," which will be staged over Philadelphia. In all, the stunts will be performed in thirty cities, a day in each, some of the cities on the schedule being Baltimore, Washington, Richmond, Raleigh, N. C., Charleston, Summer, S. C., Nashville, Louisville, Jacksonville, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Columbus, Toledo, Detroit, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Syracuse, Albany, Boston, Concord, N. H.; Portland, Me.; Providence, and Hartford. It was said that no decision had been reached as to whether the circuit would be covered by air or railroad.

As Captain Simonin stepped out of his Fokker at Camp Mills, he was asked how he liked the machine.

"They are the fastest machines I've ever driven," he replied. "They are quick to respond to control, get off the ground easily, and land well. I think that when we were over the city proper I averaged 135 miles because of the lack of wind. We varied from 600 to 2,000 feet. Maybe the good speed should be attributed to the American parts we put in the Fokker. Hey?"

READY FOR THE BIG DRIVE.

New York Committee Announces Plans About Completed.

With the opening of the campaign for the Victory Liberty Loan less than ten days off, the committee of the New York Federal Reserve District has practically completed its plans, according to announcement made yesterday at the committee's headquarters, 120 Broadway.

The date for the actual opening of the drive is Monday, April 21, but at a mass meeting next Tuesday at the Metropolitan Opera House, Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury, will start the machinery in motion and tell New York just how much he expects the city to do. At this meeting, in addition to Secretary Glass, Rear Admiral Sims and Benjamin Strong, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank, will also speak.

Tonight Governor Strong is going to preside at a dinner at the Plaza Hotel, given by the Central Liberty Loan Committee to the District Chairmen of the Advisory Trades Committee, which will mark the end of the pre-loan activities of the committee.

A campaign more difficult than its predecessors, is anticipated by the Liberty Loan Committee, now that the noise of battle has died away, and the people have come to regard peace as assured.

Guy Emerson, of the Loan Organization, said yesterday, that four big ideas would be kept before this district during this Loan drive, that we must keep faith with our dead and with those who sacrificed everything for the splendid victory, that the United States must finish the job, that New York is going to see it through, and that having become a nation of investors Americans must continue as they have begun and save money by helping the Government.

To re-enforce the Liberty Loan workers the War Savings Stamp selling organization will be lined up. The Liberty Loan Committee of the war period will direct the work. It is composed of Benjamin Strong, Chairman; James S. Alexander, George F. Baker, Allen B. Forbes, Walter E. Frew, Gates W. McGarrah, J. P. Morgan, Seward Prosser, Charles H. Sabin, Jacob H. Schiff, Frank A. Vanderlip, Martin Vogel, James N. Wallace, Albert H. Wiggin, and William Woodward.

At Loan Headquarters no information was given out as to whether there would be any new methods employed in selling the bonds, but it was said that every agency in the city, including schools, theatres, churches, department stores, as well as every other kind of mercantile establishment, and the banks and trust companies would help. Announcements as to terms and details of the loan are expected soon.

VICTORY LOAN QUOTAS.

Basis of Allotments to Districts Will Be Unchanged.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Although the amount and terms of the Victory Liberty Loan will not be announced until next week, Secretary Glass said today that each Federal Reserve district would have the same proportionate quota for the Victory Loan as was given it in the Fourth Liberty Loan. Since the amount of the Victory Loan is expected to be in the neighborhood of $6,000,000,000, the same as the fourth loan, the district quotas probably will be about comparable with those in the drive last Fall.

By districts, the percentage quotas will be as follows: Boston, 8.33 1-3; New York, 30; Philadelphia, 8.33 1-3; Cleveland, 10; Richmond, 4.66 2-3; Atlanta, 3.2; Chicago, 14.5; St. Louis, 4.33 1-3; Minneapolis, 3.5; Kansas City, 4.33 1-3; Dallas, 2.1, and San Francisco, 6.7.

In the fourth loan every Federal Reserve district oversubscribed its quota and final subscriptions to the loan amounted to about $6,000,000,000.

Whatever terms are decided upon for the Victory Loan, it is certain that one aim will be to strengthen the market position of bonds of past issues, some of which now are selling more than 6 points below par. One means of accomplishing this will be to make them receivable at par in payment of certain taxes during the next few years, and this proposal has been seriously discussed by Treasury officials. This would amount in a limited degree to a Government guarantee of early redemption at par. It was ascertained today that the Treasury hopes not only to prevent market prices of past issues from dropping further, but to raise them.

Many suggestions for bolstering Liberty bond prices have reached the Treasury, but most have been regarded as impractical or not feasible at this time. One proposal was that State and national banks be encouraged to buy up bonds at par on condition that the seller leave the purchase price on deposit for a certain length of time. A vital objection to this on the part of national banks is that these institution ordinarily are required to keep their assets free of investment in long-time securities.

An announcement that Secretary Glass would speak at a meeting of Loan Chairmen and workers on Tuesday evening at the Metropolitan Opera House, gave rise yesterday to a report that the Secretary at that time would make public the terms and conditions of the Victory Loan. In local financial circles it was said that the Secretary might make known the terms of the Loan before that time.

In well informed circles here it is believed that the general terms of the loan will be as follows: Two classes of notes, one to carry a rate of interest of either 3.80 per cent. or 4 per cent., and to be exempt from all taxes, while a second class will be issued at 4.80 to 5 per cent., and will be liable to all taxes other than the normal income tax. The notes, it is believed, will mature within four years, this maturity having been selected so that there may be no misunderstanding as to whether they are "bonds" or "notes."

The size of the Loan is expected to be $6,000,000,000, but the two classes will be unlimited. In order that the $6,000,000,000 definite goal may be reached, it is proposed that the initial subscription be made without reference to either class, with the individual subscribers having the right to indicate their preference later, and the Secretary of the Treasury having the final right of allotment.

The idea of making the rate 3.80 per cent. or 4.80 per cent., instead of 3¾ or 4¾, is said to be for the purpose of simplifying the bookkeeping and obviating the need for odd amounts of interest. If the rate were to be made 4¾ per cent., the semi-annual coupon on $100 bonds, for example, would have to be $2.37 and $2.38 on alternating dates. The difficulty with regard to $50 bonds would be greater.

STILLMAN EFFECTS VALUED AT $463,049

LACE ITEMS WORTH $22,945

An appraisal of the personal effects of James Stillman, filed in the Surrogates' office, shows the value of his art objects, paintings, jewelry, tapestries, laces, and other artistic collections, with the contents of his homes in this city and at Cornwall, N. Y., and at Newport. Of the grand total of $463,049, nearly half is the value of several hundred paintings, while one of the most valuable private collections of laces in the city is put down at $22,945 for 56 items, and 141 articles of jewelry are appraised at $36,544.

The report shows that Mr. Stillman owned a score of paintings by Homer D. Martin, probably the most extensive collection held by a private collector. While many are of great value, he held a number of less important Martins, on which a small valuation was fixed. The most important is "Low Tide, Mussel Bed," worth $7,500. The "Landscape with Five Small Trees" is valued at $2,500. Others were "Clam Diggers," $1,000; "Cottage in the Dunes, $1,000; "Moonlight," $1,250; "Woodland Scene," $1,500; "Harbor with Boat," $1,500, and "Tall Trees," $2,000.

The most valuable works of other artists were "Les Lavandieres Bords de la Marne," (

JEWS IN SLOVAKIA APPEAL TO PARIS

American Committee Informed That Treaty Must Provide for All in Eastern Europe.

CHARGE NEW PERSECUTIONS

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 10.—The American Jewish Committee in Paris has received from one of its agents in Czechoslovakia a letter which is declared to be only a sample of similar reports of persecution of the Jews now coming from Slovakia, Poland, Rumania, and the Ukraine. On this evidence the members of the committee, of which Judge Julian W. Mack is Chairman and Louis Marshall, Vice Chairman, are in part building their case to convince the Peace Conference that the Jews in Eastern European countries must have their rights provided for by the treaty.

This naturally is a work entirely separate from the Zionist movement. Judge Mack and his associates are also working for the Zionist plan in co-operation with Felix Frankfurter, Howard Gans, and other American representatives of the Jews, but regardless of what settlement may be made as to Palestine they are all agreed that Jews who remain in European countries must have protection.

The letter just received refers to the region situated at the corner of the three States, Austria, Hungary, and Czechoslovakia. The writer says in part:

"Across the way, Hungary has shut the bridge over the Danube, and the Czechoslovak Ministry has withdrawn from the waterfront out of possible gunshot. Things look rather muddled and gorrysome. I spoke to people out of Budapest, who say there were no anti disorders.

I have just returned from a trip in Slakia. The Jewish situation there is lamentable beyond description. Almost all Jewish families had been totally robbed and plundered during the riots that followed the Czechoslovak revolution.

"Not one cent of damages was ever paid to these ruined people. Most of them had to flee from their homes. Many who had cash went to Budapest, others to Slovakian cities.

"The new Government has given out an order permitting local authorities to export intern practically any one they choose. This order is being used against the Jews, and those who fled from their old homes are now forced to return.

"I these homes they cannot live on account of the anti-Semitism prevailing, nor can they work, as their shops have been destroyed, and they are between the evil and the deep sea.

"The Government is taking their license to do business away from them, on one pretext or another. They are being boycotted, and Jewish merchants are unable to obtain wares because the Government controls practically everything, and a Government order explicitly states that no Government-controlled supplies are to be given to Jews.

"All Jews who held Government position in Hungary are losing them. I was at a meeting of delegates of Slovakian Jewry held in Postyam yesterday, and therefore was able to talk personally to representative people from all over the province.

"I learned that out of a population of nearly 250,000 Jews in Slovakia at least 40,000, by the most conservative estimates, are without the barest means of subsistence. The impoverishment of their communities by pogroms prevents the rebuilding or upkeep of their institutions.

"I scarcely know what to recommend with regard to Slovakia. Granting that the Czech Government, which, in the persons of President Masaryk and of Shroban Minister Resident in Slovakia, professes to wish the Jews well, really has proper intentions and is simply falling down in the persons of its lower officials—given this assumption, then relief work by furnishing money from America would tide over the Slovakian Jews until normal times.

"But if the Government backs this policy, making life for the Jews impossible, then it would be like pouring money down a bottomless pit. Justice, but minority rights and the right of constand appeal to an international court will permanently help the Jews. Everything else is temporary and illusory, unless—and this will happen only sporadically—the Government itself is just."

To remedy these conditions for the future in Eastern European States where millions of Jews live and will continue to live, declares Judge Mack, it is not enough to guarantee the rights of all individuals, regardless of race or religion. Such gurantees will not hold. They will not prevent the oppression of minority groups, which will make further wars inevitable.

According to Judge Mack and his associates, anti-Semitism must be recognized as a fact which exists. It is impossible to apply American rules and principles to the problem in Poland, Rumania, and similar countries. There is no need of hyphenated allegiance or designation in the United States for protection of those who use it in classifying themselves, because the American Government itself does not recognize the hyphen. But in Eastern European countries these distinctions are made by the Governments themselves. They recognize other minority stocks, and so the Jews must have their stock recognized also, to avoid oppression.

"In Poland, for example," says Judge Mack, "you cannot truly say that a Jew is a Pole of the Jewish religion. He is not a Pole. He is a citizen of Poland, of Jewish stock and Jewish religion.

"Poland recognizes the Lithuanian stock and gives it a minority group representation in public affairs, and by such representation and recognition only are the personal rights of the individual Lithuanian safeguarded.

"So in each of these States which recognize stocks other than those of the predominating portion of the population the same treatment must be accorded to the minority Jewish group to assure the rights of the individual Jew."

LAREDO, Texas, April 10.—Governor Andres Ozuna and his brother, Gregorie Ozuna, Military Commander of Tamaulipas, were kidnapped from the train on which they were returning from a conference of American and Mexican Governors and are held for ransom, according to a telegram received by the Mexican authorities yesterday and made public today.

According to the telegram, the officials were taken from the train at Carrizos, between Linares and Victoria. The train was stopped by dynamiting a portion of the track. JUSTICE ROY DIES AFTER BREAKDOWN

Collapse Followed His Election to Supreme Court and He Did Not Take Seat.

ADMITTED TO BAR AT 20

Brooklyn Jurist First Became Active in Democratic Politics in Cleveland Campaign of 1892.

Justice Robert H. Roy of the Supreme Court of Brooklyn died yesterday at his residence, 659 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn. Justice Roy suffered a general breakdown following the last election day campaign in which he was elected to the Supreme Court bench, and was sworn in while lying in bed, ill from the after affects of influenza, but never took his seat. Prior to his election he had been active in Red Cross work, the Liberty Loan campaigns, and in war work activities throughout the borough. He was 51 years old.

Justice Roy was born in this city but had lived practically all his lifetime in Brooklyn. He was graduated from the New York University Law School with a cum laude degree, especially conferred by the Faculty because of the fact that he crowded the course of study usually covered in two years into one year. He was only 20 years old when he was admitted to the bar. The late Mayor Gaynor, then a Justice, being one of the Commissioners before whom Mr. Roy was examined. He had to wait until he was 21 years old before he could be sworn in and then entered the law office of Blandy & Hatch in this city and later was associated with T. Albert Englehart.

Justice Roy was for several years an Assistant District Attorney of Kings County. His appointment by Governor Glynn in 1914 as a County Judge in Kings County was at first declared to be illegal by the Appellate Division in Brooklyn, but the Court of Appeals reversed the Appellate Division and held that the appointment was valid. Two appointments to the Kings County Court were made by Governor Glynn, the other being Mayor Hylan, then a Magistrate. In its decision the Court of Appeals held that the appointment to "fill a vacancy in two offices that had just been created and never had been filled" was proper and that there was no need of waiting for an election to fill the newly created Judgeships. He was elected to the same office in 1915.

In 1912 Justice Roy was the Democratic candidate for Congress in the Sixth Congressional District, but was defeated. Justice Roy was a former Director of the Y. M. C. A. and the Society for Improving the Condition of the Poor. He was a member of the Jefferson Club, Anglo-Saxon Lodge 137 F. and A. M., Welcome Council 703 R. A., the Brooklyn Chess Club, and the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce. He is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. James Reid and Miss Jean Roy, and a son, Lieutenant Donald Roy, who was recently discharged from the aviation service.

All branches of the County Court in Brooklyn adjourned to next Monday. Judge Mitchell May was in tears while speaking of Justice Roy from the bench.

A resolution of sympathy with the Justice's family was passed by the Supreme Court Attachés' Association of Kings County.

George W. Quintard, who inherited a $1,000,000 from his grandfather, George W. Quintard, the founder of the Quintard Iron Works, died yesterday at the Sherman Square Sanatorium, 36 West Seventy-seventh Street, aged 32 years. His death was due to a fracture at the base of the skull, suffered when he fell down a flight of stairs at the New Amsterdam Theatre late Wednesday night. He had recently been living at the Hotel Gotham.

A few years ago young Quintard's name appeared frequently in the newspapers in connection with lawsuits of a sensational nature in which he was named as defendant. He was sued for $25,000 for breach of promise by Miss Jane Sutherland in 1914, and in the following year another action for breach of promise was brought against him by Miss Dorothy Dalland, the amount not being stated by the plaintiff's attorney.

In 1907 Mr. Quintard married Miss Mae Wood, who was known at that time as the heroine of the Brewster Express wreck, as(although bardly injured in that catastrophe, she aided in the rescue of many passengers. Mrs. Quintard filed a suit for separation in August, 1913, but withdrew it the same day and sailed for Europe. In August, 1914, she sued for divorce and won a decree, later marrying Noel McVickar, an insurance man.

In December, 1914, the firm of Dreicer & Co., jewelers, sued Quintard for $54,596, claimed to be due for necklaces, meshbags, bar pins, and similar articles purchased by the defendant and given to women of his acquainance. Mr. Quintard maintained in his defense that he had been drunk nearly all of the two months during which the bills were contracted and that a salesman of Dreicer & Co. had taken advantage of his condition to persuade him to make purchases at his apartment for women whom he scarcely knew at all. The suit was settled out of court.

GIANTS PUT UP FINE GAME IN ALL DEPARTMENTS AND THRASH THE RED SOX AGAIN

A certain doctor called the other day with a soldier from overseas; wanted to see personally that his favorite nephew was properly fixed up for civilian life.

In our chat with him he told us of his own experience dating back some twelve years ago. Not here. But with a reputable clothier who had tried to fit him and couldn't. Cited how they had frankly suggested a tailor for a man of his build.

At our suggestion, he allowed us to try on his size. "The slickest fit I ever saw. Let's see a cutaway, too," he called. "By George, that's great. My! What I've missed."

How about you other men? Have you had a notion you're hard to fit, too?

No finer fabrics. No higher type of tailoring—and such a difference between our prices and those of a first rate tailor!

Moneyback, if you want it!

VICTORS PLAY GREAT GAME

Redeem Themselves for Sorry Work in Earlier Battles, but Series Is Gone Beyond Recall.

Giants	20	52	10	2	4	.333

SPARTANBURG, S. C., April 10.—After having lost the Spring series with the Red Sox, the Giants are beginning to play real ball. They gave the world's champions another tidy drubbing here today, winning their second victory of the series by the score of 4 to 2.

The game was played on a wretched field belonging to Wolford College. It is a red-clay field without a blade of grass on it, and a baseball bounded on it like a golf ball. Nevertheless, the Giants played errorless ball, and in all respects gave their best exhibition thus far. Jesse Barnes and George Smith pitched in excellent form, the fielding was brilliant, the team played smartly on the bases, and hit when hits were needed.

Fletcher and Doyle made something like a record around second base, inasmuch as they handled twenty-four chances cleanly. Balls were hit to them at all angles, and took all sorts of bounds, but the New York infield pair managed to spear them. Fletcher had nine assists and five putouts and Doyle seven assists and three putouts. Three times they pulled off double plays, while six times during the game the man at second base was forced.

Zimmerman hit a triple today, it being the Bronx boy's second hit of the series. Sam Jones, who developed into a star at Boston last year, pitched six innings for Barrow's men. He was quite effective, but the Giants got to him for enough runs to win the game.

In the fourth, Chase singled and was forced by Kauff. Benny scored when Doyle's hit into the right-field crowd went as a triple under the ground rules, although Boston made a strong protest to Egan.

Pat Shea, a Boston pitching youngster, finished the game for the champions, and New York scored a run on his delivery in the eighth inning. Young walked, and was safe at second on an attempted delayed steal when Scott muffed Shea's throw. Chase drove in Ross with a single to centre.

The game drew a crowd of about 3,000, who stood all around the field. It was perhaps the best crowd, as far as receipts go, that the Giants and Red Sox have played to this Spring. The series winds up in Winston-Salem tomorrow.

The Giants began cutting down their squad today. Frank Noel, a pitcher, formerly with the University of West Virginia and West Point, has been sent to Sammy Strang's Chattanooga team. Tod Miller, substitute first baseman, will probably be sent to the St. Paul club, while Gilleselie, Holder, and a few pitchers will be sent to Rochester to join O'Neil, Litt, and Brogan, New York youngsters already under contract with that club.

CHICAGO, April 10.—Joie Ray, National A. A. U. mile champion, established a new world's indoor record of 4.14 3-5 for the mile tonight in the Central A. A. U. championships, being held under the auspices of the Franklin A. C. The old mark was 4.16, and was made by Johnny Overton, famous Yale athlete, who was a Lieutenant of Marines and was killed at Chateau-Thierry. His record was established at Philadelphia on March 10, 1917.

Jo Loomis of the Chicago Athletic Association won the high jump, clearing the bar at six feet.

Arthur Newman won the national amateur three-cushion carom billiard championship title last night at the Amateur Billiard Club, when he defeated Earl Patterson of Chicago by a score of 50 to 30 in eighty-two innings. Newman displayed improved form, and led throughout. He had a high run of six. The new champion's best work was accomplished in the closing eighteen innings, when he registered twenty-six points in a brilliant finish.

The victory was Newman's fourth straight of the tournament. Following the match he received a gold medal, a silver cup emblematic of the championship, and a medal for making the record high run of the tournament, which was eight points. The cup must be won three times to become the holder's permanent possession.

In the afternoon game William H. Flinn defeated Gus Gardner by a count of 50 to 46 in 113 innings. The victor made a high run of four. The result placed Flinn in a tie with Patterson for second laurels.

WHITNEY ENGAGES KNAPP.

Jockey Will Ride in Important Stake Events.

Harry Payne Whitney has filled the place made vacant by the recent death of Jockey Frank Robinson. It was announced yesterday that William Knapp had signed a contract to ride the Whitney horses during the coming season.

Knapp is rated as one of the best riders, but while in Havana last Winter was unable to ride at less than 116 pounds. He will be available, however, for most of the important races in which the candidates from Brookdale Farm will have to pick up stake weight.

BROOKLYN PITCHERS HALT THE YANKEES

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 10.—Miller Huggins absolved the Yankees from morning practice today, and two Brooklyn pitchers, Cadore and Cheney, prevented the American Leaguers from doing any real baseball work this afternoon. Uncle Robbie's boxmen had the Yankee sluggers swinging vainly for the greater part of nine innings, and won the sixth game of the Spring series by the score of 6 to 2. The series is again an even affair, each club having won three games.

Cheney's pitching was easily the feature of this latest setback. The veteran spitballer, who came into the game at the beginning of the sixth inning, set down six Yankees by the strikeout route, allowed only one hit, and did not give a pass. Pratt, who singled to right in the sixth, was the only New York player who reached first base while Cheney was working. Cheney fanned two Yanks in the sixth, two in the seventh, and two in the eighth, then retired the side in order, but without any strikeouts, in the ninth inning.

Cadore had limited the American Leaguers to four hits in the first five innings. The heavy artillery of the Huggins herd was silenced after Pipp had crashed a homer to right field in the first innnig, but another run found its way into the score in the fifth, when a scratch hit, an infield out, and a clean hit came along in the order named.

Jack Quinn had two bad innings, the first and the fifth, giving way to Ernie Shore in the sixth. In the opening frame the National Leaguers did some heavy hitting, and in the fifth Quinn's wildness, coupled with a play by Peck to Ward, which missed fire, at third base, put the Dodgers in position to pick up four runs on only two clean hits. The Dodgers found Shore a real puzzle, but the danger had passed before the former Red Sox pitcher mounted the hurling hill. Tommy Griffith's bat played a prominent part in the upset of the Huggins crowd. Robbie's new outfielder accounted for the first two runs with a circuit clout to centre in the first inning, and he chased in one run in the fifth with a single, later cashing in his hit at the plate. Both teams hit lighter than in most of the games, but the Dodgers got their blows at opportune times.

LOFTUS IS REINSTATED.

Lyke Will Also Ride Again After May 1.

Johnny Loftus and Lawrence Lyke, two of the best riders in the country, will be seen in the saddle this year, contrary to the opinion formed recently when the applications of these lads for jockey licenses were laid on the table. The stewards of The Jockey Club held another meeting yesterday and, after careful consideration of the evidence submitted to the license committee, decided there was no reason to keep Loftus and Lyke on the ground. They will not be allowed to resume their career at once, however, as the decision to grant the licenses contained a provision that the licenses would date from May 1 next.

The cases of Loftus and Lyke were the only ones in which the stewards exercised leniency. On report of the license committee the refusal of the entries of Thomas McElroy was continued, the application of R. Travers for a trainer's license was denied, and the suspension of Jockey S. McGraw's license was continued. The three kept out of the fold were, respectively, owner, trainer, and rider of Dancing Carnival at Saratoga last Summer, when that filly showed a surprising change of form.

ASSEMBLY FROWNS ON BOXING MEASURE

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 10.—Boxing, fighting for a place in the sun, seems certain to be defeated again in its annual bout with the State Legislature. Though successful in the early rounds, carrying the Senate and thereby gaining partial legislative sanction, the game is expected to meet its doom in the Assembly and boxing fans can only hope for a return match next year.

If the game is again to be defeated, it can charge its repeated knockout indirectly to the success of Sunday baseball and Sunday movies. The Senate has proved itself to be liberal. The Assembly is more Puritanical, and, though the Lower House united with the upper branch of the Legislature in passing the baseball and motion picture bills, some legislators admitted today that the "liberalism" had about run its course, and boxing, as a result, is to suffer.

The Gibbs bill, placing the game again on a legal footing, which was passed by the Senate last night, went into the Assembly Rules Committee today. There is some likelihood that the committee will report it out on the floor of the Assembly, but indications point to its receiving its death blow there. The bill will afford members from the cities who voted for the two so-called liberal bills, the opportunity they are looking for to "hedge."

"We can't afford to be too liberal," declared a ranking Republican member today. "I am inclined to think that the fellows from the cities who voted for the baseball and movies bill will seize the chance given them to show conservatism and vote against the boxing bill. Of course there will be no change in the voting of the rural members, who were recorded against baseball and movies, and who can be counted upon to be recorded in the same way on the boxing bill."

The Walker bill, backed by the Army, Navy and Civilian Board, comprising some of the most influential men in the country, has been reported out of the Senate Judiciary Committee and undoubtedly will be passed by the Senate and sent for final legislative action to the Assembly. It will probaby be nailed there.

PLATT AND CLAPP VICTORS.

Will Meet Today in Final Match for Yale Club Title.

Livingston Platt reached the final round of the Class A squash tournament at the Yale Club yesterday by defeating Stuyvesant Wainwright, Jr., in two closely contested games, 15-11, 15-12. In the other semi-final match of this class, E. J. Clapp won from Donald MacKay by default. Platt and Clapp will meet for the club title this afternoon.

Platt and Wainwright had a nip and tuck battle all the way and the advantage alternated frequently. Wainwright took the lead in both games. Platt rallied in the first and carried the count to 8 all. Here the players were deadlocked for a few hands, neither being able to score an ace. Wainwright got going first and by several terrific drives, made enough placement aces to send him to the front by a score of 11-9.

Platt settled down then to his fastest game and began to send swift corner-to-corner drives through the court. He also tallied on hard smashes straight up and down the court and brought the score to a tie at 11 all. Wainwright fought stubbornly and it was only after several unproductive hands that Platt was able to break through and run out his 15 points.

In the second game, Wainwright again got off in front but Platt caught him at 3 all. It was nip and tuck then for several hands. Each held the lead on several occasions. The count was tied at 5 all, then at 6 all, and later at 12 all. Platt rallied again and ran out for game in a final hand which netted three successive aces.

In the Class B tournament, H. R. Stern won his way to the final match by defeating H. C. McClintock at 15-10, 15-10. E. J. Clapp also reached the final through a default by J. F. O'Rourke. The final between Clapp and Stern will be played tomorrow afternoon.

Stern held the advantage from the start and displayed excellent form. His "gets," after McClintock's best shots, were made from every position on the court and he caught his opponent out of position frequently with his hard smashes.

The summaries:

Yale Club Class A Tournament, Semi-final Round—E. J. Clapp won from Donald McKay by default; Livingston Platt defeated Stuyvesant Wainwright, Jr., 15—11, 15—12. Class B, Semi-final Round—E. J. Clapp won from J. F. O'Rourke by default; H. R. Stern defeated H. C. McClintock, 15—10; 15—10.

KUMAGAE'S DRIVES DEFEAT RICHARDS

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 10.—Ichiya Kumagae and Vincent Richards met in the semi-final round of the men's singles in the North and South tennis tournament here today, and the Japanese won in straight sets, 6—3, 6—2.

William T. Tilden, Jr. and H. S. Voshell opposed each other in the other bracket, Tilden winning a hard-fought contest by 6—1, 4—6, 7—5.

Richards's recent victory over Kumagae in Philadelphia had overshadowed the Oriental's earlier defeat of Richards at the Crescent Athletic Club and the American player was a strong favorite for today's match.

Richards began by taking the first three games in a row, two of them on Kumagae's service. Richards served the fourth game and took the first point and then lost four points running, and the game, failing to get within yards of Kumagae's fine placements.

This was the first of eight successive games to go to the Japanese expert. Kumagae winning the first set by 6—3 and taking a two-game start on the next set before Richards won a game. The American player took the third and fifth games of the second set, but that was all, the second and deciding set going to Kumagae by 6—2.

The summaries:

Men's Singles, Semi-Finals.—Ichiya Kumagae, West Side, defeated Vincent Richards, University, 6—3, 6—2; W. T. Tilden, Jr., Germantown Cricket, defeated H. H. Voshell, Terrace, 6—1, 4—6, 7—5.

Mixed Doubles, Preliminary Round.—Miss Mabel S. Rice, Tedesco, and J. S. Nicholls, Longwood, won from Mrs. Jay V. Hall, Moore County, and C. S. Ridgeway, Jr., Columbus, by default; Mrs. H. F. Morse, West Side, and C. F. Watson, Jr., Westchester, defeated Miss Ann Morse, New York, and H. B. Swoope, Curwensville, 6—1, 6—2.

First Round.—Miss Marion Zinderstein, Longwood, and Vincent Richards defeated Mrs. Gildden Osborne, Chicago, and F. S. Babcock, Piping Rock, 6—1, 6—2; Miss Esther Tufts, Boston, and H. S. Voshell won from Miss Rice and J. S. Nicholls by default; Mrs. H. F. Morse and C. F. Watson, Jr., defeated Miss Carolyn Bogart, Moore County, and N. A. TWO KNOCKOUTS IN RING.

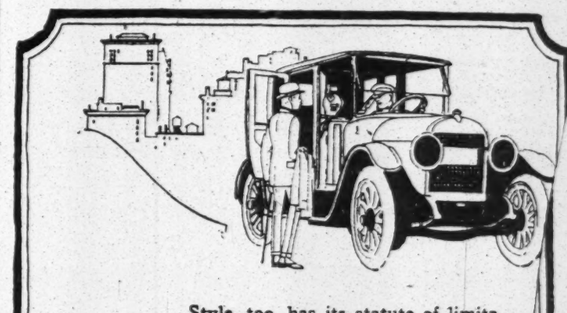
Fred Eisenstadt of the Pastime A. C. and D. J. O'Connor of the Holy Name Boys' Club scored the only decisive victories last night in the preliminary round of the New York A. C.'s amateur boxing tournament.

Eisenstadt, competing in the 110-pound class, disposed of B. Rockoff in two rounds. O'Connor boxed at 135 pounds, and scored a knockout victory over P. Beechio when the referee stopped the contest in the third round to save Beechio from further punishment.

Eleven bouts were decided, and produced interesting competition for the members who witnessed the exhibitions.



Style, too, has its statute of limitations. The overdone, as well as the underdone, violates the statute of good taste.

To reach the precise point of New York preference requires infinite pains.

For a more particular description of the property to be sold and of the terms of sale, intending purchasers are hereby referred to said Final Decree and to the record in the above-mentioned cause wherein said decree was entered.

As more fully provided by said Final Decree, to which reference is hereby made:

I. Said sale will be made without valuation, appraisement, redemption or extension.

II. The right is reserved to the Court to adjourn or postpone said sale and to direct the Special Master to proceed with the sale without further notice or advertisement on any date to which the same may have been so adjourned.

III. Any party to said cause or any holder of bonds issued under the Mortgage of said Georgia Coast & Piedmont Railroad Company dated April 1, 1912, (said mortgage being hereinafter referred to as the First Mortgage and said bonds as First Mortgage Bonds) may bid or purchase at such sale.

IV. Said property will be sold subject to any lawful taxes or assessments upon said property and subject to the lien of the mortgage or deed of trust of the defendant Georgia Coast & Piedmont Railroad Company to Morton Trust Company, as Trustee, dated March 1, 1906.

V. The Special Master will receive no bid from any one offering to bid who shall not first deposit with the Special Master as a condition precedent to his right to bid and as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid in case of its acceptance by the Special Master and confirmation by the Court the sum of $30,000 in cash or by certified check upon any national bank or trust company in the State of Georgia or of the City of New York, acceptable to the Special Master and made or indorsed payable to his order, or, in lieu of said deposit in cash or by check, $300,000 face amount of First Mortgage Bonds in bearer form, bearing coupons appertaining to such bonds maturing April 1, 1919, and subsequently.

In lieu of the deposit of First Mortgage Bonds and coupons with the Special Master, the Special Master may accept the Certificate of the Columbia Trust Company of New York that it holds subject to this order the amount therein specified of First Mortgage Bonds in bearer form, accompanied by the coupons therein stated.

The deposit received from an unsuccessful bidder will be returned to him when the property has been struck off. The deposit received from any successful bidder will be held by the Special Master subject to the orders of the Court and upon confirmation of the sale will be applied on account of the purchase price of the property.

The Special Master will not accept any bid for the property offered for sale less than the sum of $300,000.

VI. In case any bidder, after the acceptance of his bid by the Special Master, shall fail to comply within a period of twenty days with any order of the Court requiring or relating to the payment of the balance of the purchase price, then the sums deposited by such successful bidder whether in cash or by check or represented by First Mortgage Bonds, will be forfeited as a penalty for such failure and will be applied to the expenses of a resale and toward making good any deficiency or loss in case the property shall be sold at a less price on such resale, and to such other purposes as the Court may direct. If the Court shall not confirm any sale the deposit made by the accepted bidder will be forthwith returned to such bidder.

VII. The purchaser or purchasers on the confirmation of the sale by the Court shall make such further payment or payments in cash on account of the purchase price as the Court may from time to time direct. So much of the purchase price as may not be required by the Court to be paid in cash may either be paid in cash or any purchaser may satisfy and discharge such proportion of his bid in whole or in part by turning over to the Special Master to be cancelled or credited First Mortgage Bonds and coupons thereunto appertaining. In lieu of so turning over to the Special Master First Mortgage Bonds and coupons the Special Master will accept the Certificate of Columbia Trust Company of New York, that it holds subject to his order the amount therein specified of First Mortgage Bonds in bearer form and accompanied by the coupons therein stated. A purchaser will be credited on account of the purchase price for First Mortgage Bonds and the coupons thereunto appertaining turned over in part payment of the purchase price such sum as would be paid in cash upon such Bonds and coupons out of the proceeds of sale if the whole amount of the purchase price had been paid in cash. The Court reserves the right to resell the property sold upon such notice as it may direct at the risk and cost of the purchaser in case such purchaser shall fail or omit to make any payment on account of the purchase price within twenty days after the entry of any order requiring such payment.

VIII. Any purchaser and his successors or assigns shall have the right to elect not to take or accept any of the property or franchises struck off to him by written notice to the Special Master given at any time prior to the execution and delivery of the deeds or instruments of transfer from the Special Master provided for in said Final Decree. No such election by the purchaser shall diminish or affect the purchase price of the property.

As provided in Article XXXII of said Final Decree any purchaser and his successors or assigns all have the right for a period of six months after the delivery of the Special Master's deed, to elect whether or not to assume or to adopt as part of the property conveyed to such deed any lease or contract made by the defendant Georgia Coast & Piedmont Railroad Company appertaining to the property purchased by him.

IX. Upon confirmation of sale and the payment of the purchase price by any purchaser, his successors or assigns, or upon making such provision for the payment thereof as the Court may approve the Special Master making the sale will execute to such purchaser, his successors or assigns, a deed or deeds or other proper instruments conveying, assigning and transferring the property sold to such purchaser (except such part thereof, if any, as such purchaser, his successors or assigns shall have elected not to take in accordance with the provisions of Article XXXII of said Final Decree.) Upon the production of such deed or deeds and assignments or transfers, or of a certified copy or copies thereof, the grantee or grantees therein named will be let into possession of the property so conveyed or transferred. The purchaser, his successors or assigns, shall, after such delivery of possession, hold, possess and enjoy the property conveyed and transferred to every part and parcel thereof, free from the trust and lien imposed thereon by the First Mortgage, and free from any claim, right, interest or equity of redemption of, in or to the same by or of the defendant Georgia Coast & Piedmont Railroad Company, its successors and assigns, and by or of the creditors and stockholders of said Railroad Company, and by or of any part to said cause, and all persons, partnerships and corporations claiming by, under or through said Railroad Company, its creditors or its stockholders, or any party to said cause, subject, nevertheless, to the conditions that the Court may retake and resell the property conveyed or transferred in case such purchaser, his successors or assigns shall fail within the time limited to pay any balance of the purchase price remaining unpaid.

X. By said Final Decree the Court reserves for future adjudication all questions not disposed of by said Final Decree.

For further particulars reference is hereby made to said Final Decree and to the record and proceedings in said cause on file in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern Division of the Southern District of Georgia.

Dated, March 14, 1919.

J. W. TALBERT,
Special Master.

ASKS RECEIVER TO SEE B. R. T. MEN

Garrison Gets Letter Mayor Promised, Urging Conference to Settle Differences.

AWAIT GARRISON'S REPLY

Labor Leader Says Appeal Will Be Made to Wilson if Negotiations Fail.

Fulfilling a promise made on Wednesday to a committee of unionized B. R. T. employes, Mayor Hylan in a brief letter to Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit System, yesterday asked Mr. Garrison to grant the committee's request for a hearing of their demands. Although the committee has been empowered by the 7,000 or more union members among the B. R. T. employes to call a strike if their negotiations with Mr. Garrison fail, a representative of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes said last night that no strike would be called until another mass meeting of the union members had been held.

The Mayor's letter, dated April 9, was sent by messenger to Mr. Garrison at the B. R. T. offices, 85 Clinton Street, Brooklyn, yesterday, and its contents were read over the telephone to the receiver, who asked that it be made public. The letter follows:

Hon. Lindley M. Garrison, Receiver, Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company:

Dear Sir: A committee composed of William Riley, Adam Kopman, and Arnold Miller called on me at the City Hall today, requesting aid in bringing about an amicable settlement of the differences between the employes and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit. The committee states that you refused to see and confer with them on adjusting their working conditions. They are desirous of having an opportunity to confer with you to the end that their conditions of employment may be improved.

May I urge you to grant their request for a hearing?

Very truly yours,
JOHN F. HYLAN.

The letter was given out at the offices of the company without comment by the officer who made it public. It was intimated later, however, that Mr. Garrison would not abandon his decision to withhold recognition of the Amalgamated Association as the B. R. T. employes' representation on matters affecting their working conditions. He would in all probability reply to the Mayor's letter today, it was said.

Thomas F. Shine, a Vice President of the Amalgamated Association, expressed satisfaction when he learned that Mayor Hylan had written to Mr. Garrison urging a hearing.

"Of course, we can only wait until we see what Mr. Garrison has to say in reply to the Mayor's letter," he said. "But you may say that we will make every effort to avert a strike, and if the Mayor's intercession fails we will request the Governor, after making clear to him what will result, to ask the receiver to listen to demands of his own employes. The union, it must be remembered, is acting only in an advisory capacity to the Executive Committee of Division 587, whose members are employes of the B. R. T. and working daily.

"I think every official representative of the people should be asked to use their influence to avert a strike on the B. R. T. The people of Brooklyn, however, will be warned in ample time if a strike is decided upon. It is probable that the National War Labor Board would step in, and, every other means failing, we would appeal to the President, since Mr. Garrison, as an officer of the receiver appointed by the United States Court, is a Federal officer.

"I am certain that another mass meeting would be held before such drastic action as a strike is again considered, although it is within the power of the Divisional Executive Committee to recommend a strike and even call it.

From members of the Amalgamated Association at work in the Thirty-sixth Street car barns it was learned that the company had been making preparations for the threatened strike. According to a union organizer, Edward Smith and J. D. Clark, members of Farley's strike-breaking organization, were seen leaving the Clinton Street offices of the company after conference with company officials. This could not be confirmed from officials of the company last night. The offices of the Farley organization are in Chicago.

The unionists declared that the company would place considerable reliance in the event of a strike upon unemployed discharged soldiers. At the barns, where nearly 2,000 men on both surface and elevated lines start their runs daily, it was learned that about one-half the employes were members of the union. Organizers of the Amalgamated were busily engaged enrolling men from this barn and the Ridgewood, Bay Ridge, and Fresh Pond car barns yesterday in the hope of bringing the union B. R. T. membership from 7,000 to 10,000 before Saturday. It has been estimated that about 15,000 of the 21,000 B. R. T. employes are potential members of the union. The clerical staff of the company is included in the 21,000.

TO ACCEPT 48-HOUR WEEK.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., April 10.—While labor leaders and silk workers of this city are disappointed over the failure of the National War Labor Board to grant a work week of forty-four hours, it is expected here that they will accept the forty-eight-hour decision announced at Washington on Wednesday, without a fight. There is a possibility, according to rumor in silk labor circles here, to the effect that the manufacturers may grant the workers an hour, making the work week forty-seven hours in length, because of the fact that, in order to bring the week's total of hours up to forty-eight, the mills will find it necessary to start at 7:20 o'clock in the morning. This is necessary because of the fact that the workers will not work after 12 o'clock on Saturday.

Louis Magnat, Chairman of the United Textile Workers Eight Hour Day Conference Committee, said today that while the decision was disappointing to the workers, it really amounted to a big victory for them, inasmuch as it will result in the standardization of working hours throughout the industry, reaching Pennsylvania, Connecticut, and other States, as well as Paterson. Henry J. Tynan, Chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee, gave the same reason for expressing his satisfaction over the decision rendered by the War Board.

At the present the working time is five days a week, of eight and one-half hours each, with a whole holiday on Saturday, making a total work week of forty-two and one-half hours. This plan was put into operation two weeks after the strike started on Feb. 3, in accordance with a temporary ruling of the War Board. Neither labor leaders nor manufacturers were able to say today when the new schedule would go into effect, inasmuch as no decision will be reached until an official draft of the War Board decision is received from Washington.

HYLAN WANTS ALL TRIED.

In a letter to District Attorney Lewis of Kings County yesterday, Mayor Hylan urged that he bring to trial all the men indicted in the case of the Malbone Street tunnel wreck on the B. R. T., despite the fact that two of the defendants have already been acquitted by Nassau County juries. The Mayor said:

CITY OF NEW YORK,
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR,
April 9, 1919.

Hon. Harry E. Lewis, District Attorney, Kings County:

Dear Sir:—I note that since the transfer to Nassau County of the indictments of the B. R. T. officials by Mr. Justice Callaghan the jury found two of the defendants not guilty. I understand that there seems to be some question as to whether the other defendants should be tried, for the reason that there is little chance of getting a conviction in that county.

I believe the other defendants should be tried, and let the jury say whether these men are guilty or not guilty, and if a verdict of not guilty is found, it will tend to put an end to the practice of Justices of the Supreme Court transferring cases from the jurisdiction where the crime was committed. When a little fellow is charged with a crime, he is tried in the county where the crime was committed.

Would it be possible for you to inform me whether Leone D. Howell, Surrogate of Nassau County, was employed by any one of the indicted B. R. T. officials or by the B. R. T. before the case was transferred to Nassau County or whether he appeared as the representative of any one of the defendants before the trial was shifted to Nassau County?

Very truly yours,
JOHN F. HYLAN,
Mayor.

Vetoes the Adler Bill.

ALBANY, April 10.—Governor Smith tonight vetoed the Adler bill, which was designed ultimately to provide for an equal representation for employers and employes on the State Industrial Commission. While the measure was being passed Democrats charged its sole purpose was to embarrass the Governor for his appointment to the commission of Miss Frances Perkins, a social worker. In his veto the Governor pointed out that on the commission there should be representatives of all the people.

SOPWITH OCEAN TEAM MAKES TRIAL FLIGHT

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., April 10.—The Sopwith biplane, in which Lieutenant Harry Hawker and Lieut. Commander McKenzie Grive plan to attempt a transatlantic flight this month, made its first trial flight today, soaring over the city.

The airplane remained in the air for a half hour, flying at a height of 4,000 feet and at a speed of 100 miles an hour. The machinery worked smoothly and the new wireless equipment met all tests satisfactorily. Only 25 per cent. of the 350 gallons capacity of petrol was carried.

The Governor and other officials will inspect the craft tomorrow, and the Atlantic run will be made as soon thereafter as weather will permit.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The destroyer Barney, which has been cruising on the North Atlantic coast to find possible landing places for American navy seaplanes on the transatlantic flight, which will start from Rockaway Beach, L. I., next month, has reached Newfoundland.

A dispatch today to the Navy Department said the vessel had encountered considerable ice off the coast. On the first attempt to reach Newfoundland she was held up by ice and forced to return to Halifax. The port into which the Barney put after reaching Newfoundland was not named.

CONTRADICTS BURLESON.

Edward Reynolds, Vice President and General Manager of the Postal Telegraph Cable Company, yesterday said:

"I see a statement in the morning papers, coming from Washington, that Mr. Burleson's Committee on Telegraph and Telephone Rates includes me as a member. I wish to state that I am not a member of that committee. Mr. Burleson mentioned me in the beginning of Government control as a member of the committee, but later before the committee actually did anything he displaced me. I am opposed to the increase of rates which the committee has made on both the telegraph and telephone lines. The fact is well known that Mr. Burleson displaced me as General Manager of the Postal Company on account of my opposition to him and that opposition today is stronger than it ever has been before.

"Our offer is still open to put the telegraph rates back again if Mr. Burleson will return our properties at once. I see he returned telephone companies yesterday and I fail to see why he doesn't return our property, especially as we want it, and the public wants us to have it, and no one wants Mr. Burleson to keep it.

"I would also add as to the $1,680,000 compensation which Mr. Burleson said we must be content with, that we will be contented with receiving merely what we earned without asking the Government to pay us a dollar for the use of our property. In this connection I see that the attorneys for the Postmaster General have issued a pamphlet in which I find the following:

"'The United States does not engage in business for profit any more than do the States. The United States has taken these properties for a limited time only, not for profit but in the public interest of the entire nation, which includes all the States.'

"How does Mr. Burleson reconcile these statements with the fact that we have earned $4,269,000 and he gives us but $1,680,000, and he keeps over $2,000,000?"

LANSING GIVES WARNING ON ANTI-JAPANESE LAW

Cables to California Senate That It Would Be "Particularly Unfortunate" at This Time.

SACRAMENTO, April 10.—Introduction of anti-Japanese legislation in the California Legislature would be "particularly unfortunate" at this time, said Robert Lansing, Secretary of State, in a cable dispatch to the Senate received today.

The text of the dispatch follows:

"Your considerate cablegram in relation to the proposed land legislation in the State of California and in regard to the landing of so-called picture brides has been received.

"I wish to express to you on behalf of the President and myself our appreciation for your informing us of the bills which will be introduced in the State Senate. In view of the present situation in international affairs here in Paris it would be particularly unfortunate to have these bills introduced or pressed at the present time.

"There are other problems which would make such action very embarrassing. I sincerely hope you will inform the Senate of the contents of this cablegram and the earnest plea on the part of the President that no such legislation as proposed should be introduced or considered at this time."

A decision not to press to an immediate vote the report of the Senate Rules Committee denying him permission to introduce anti-Japanese legislation was reached by Senator Inman in the midst of debate on his demand for a record vote of the Senate on the report. He had demanded the vote after the receipt of Secretary Lansing's cablegram.

A Necklace Novelty.

The necklace novelty of the moment is called soutouris. It is used as an ornament for the frock or vestee. Aztec ideas are carried out in high shades and the darker colors of beads, both steel and glass. The fine metal beads sell at retail from $19.50 up and the glass beads from $7.50. Dealers report very brisk business on this novelty to the better class of trade.

Shoe Buckles in Good Demand.

One of the best selling styles in women's shoes is the high heeled pump with the long drawn out toe. Shoe buckles for use on these pumps are benefiting by reason of this popularity of the pump. The buckles are wanted chiefly in the medium sizes and in cut steel designs, some of them inlaid with brilliants. The square shape is the one most desired at the present time.

New Style of Beaded Bag.

Beaded bags of the new shape, known as miser, are among the leading novelties sold by the fancy goods manufacturers. The bag is really a two-fold affair, with pockets on each end of the connecting loop, which is wound around the wrist. It is made of hand crocheted silk with designs worked out in steel and glass beads. It retails at from $40 to $75.

May Use Reference Samples.

If the clothing houses cannot get sample pieces from the mills in time to make up bound samples for their trade, they will have to fall back on reference samples. This expedient has been used before, and the rushed-up condition of the piece goods market at the present time may make it necessary again. The clothiers, at any rate, seem unwilling to let the opportunity slip of seeing buyers while the latter are in the proper frame of mind for placing orders.

Disturbing Factors in Woolens.

There are two disturbing factors holding up production in the woolen industry at the present time, according to the representative of a mill organization. One is the large supply of wool held in reserve, the release of which is liable to have a softening effect on prices, the other is the labor situation at the mills. In regard to the latter, mention was made of the fact that many mills are fearful of putting anything but a small amount of tonnage to work as this may be a signal for operatives to quit.

More Gray Goods Advances.

Higher prices seem to have become a daily occurrence in the local gray goods trade. Yesterday's trading in printcloths produced sales of 38½-inch 64-60s at 10¼ cents for deliveries running ahead as far as July and August. Nearby lots of 39-inch 68-72s were sold at 11¾ cents, and, for shipment in April, May, and June, business was reported in 38½-inch 60-48s at 8¾ cents. Prices on sheetings were steady to firmer throughout the day, though sales of these goods were none too large, from all accounts. Additional business was put through on wide sateens and twills at advancing prices, with production well covered for some time.

Collections Came In Well.

Yesterday was settling-up day for the Spring season with many of the jobbing houses, and reports of collections ranged all the way from "good" to "very fine." While the big wholesalers got in a considerable quantity of checks during the day, it was said that payments probably would continue to come in for the next week or more. The smaller retailers appeared not to have anticipated payments to any great extent, but many of the larger houses were said to have taken better than 2 per cent. Cheap money had something to do with this, the well-known concerns being able to put out their paper at less than 6 per cent. In the payments that came in yesterday all parts of the country were well represented. As yet there is no sign of any one particular section being especially good or bad.

Waist League After Members.

An intensive membership campaign was launched yesterday by the United organization every manufacturer of Waist League of America. It will last for a month, and special efforts will be made to bring into this national waists in this city as an active member, and the manufacturers of fabrics, trimmings, &c., as associate members. The "drive" will also be carried on in every market throughout this country and Canada where women's waists are made and, according to a statement made by Executive Director M. Mosessohn, at least 300 new members are expected. Only concerns of recognized standing in the industry will be invited to become members of the league.

Raw Silk Prices Well Sustained.

The Yokohama raw silk market continues very firm under the influence of active buying for American account. Prices are quoted on the basis of 1,510 yen for Sinshiu No. 1, with double extra grades held at 1,710 yen. Stocks are estimated at 16,000 bales. Firmer exchange rates have caused a slight stiffening of prices at Canton, but buying has been limited. Shanghai shows a little better tone, and some business has been done in steam filatures, for American account, at slightly improved prices. Tsatlees are unchanged there, but tussahs are again being offered at concessions. The European markets show no special change. Local prices are firmly held in sympathy with the Japanese market. A big demand is reported, and manufacturers are paying premiums for wanted silks.

HIGH PRICES AT FUR SALE.

Mink in Lead Yesterday—Total Sales Thus Far $3,250,000.

Mink held the centre of the stage at the fourth day's selling of raw furs at the auction that is going on here in the Masonic Temple. This fur, which has been more or less passe for some time, has come back with a rush and is now in considerable demand for Summer use. Skins of all grades were actively bought, and Alaskan, Eastern, Western and even Southern pelts came in for spirited bidding. While the entire collection was not disposed of yesterday, it was said that prices would show average advances of 30 to 40 per cent. over those paid at the sale in this city last February. The cheapest mink sold yesterday brought $2.60, while the —Call Money Firm.

The speed of the advance of automobile, steel and other industrial stocks became too rapid yesterday for a permanent rise and the natural correction came along in the late afternoon when a fairly extensive reaction occurred. Many of the favorite speculative issues gained enough ground in the morning, however, to be able to retain a part of their gross upturn even under heavy selling. Others left off with declines of a point in many cases and of more than 2 points among a few, the latter being stocks which had been bought feverishly by traders without any particular rime or reason as far as economic factors were concerned. The setback was nothing unusual in such a market as has been seen for some weeks past and had all the appearance of the product of overreaching by too anxious seekers of profits on the upward side. The fact that the turnover was the largest for any day of the year indicated that, when prices were advancing in the morning, speculators of professional and public variety were active.

The trend of the market failed to show the presence of any brand new influences, although the Street had much to conjecture about in respect to events impending. The departure of prominent bankers and railroad men for Washington to consult with Director General Hines and officers of the War Finance Corporation centralized financial attention upon the railroad situation in a way not evident at any other time, while it was realized that an early meeting of Congress in special session would in all likelihood quickly straighten out the monetary difficulties of the road, the continued uncertainty over President Wilson's attitude toward an early Congress session offered material for some disquieting talk in the market community. The railways have many days of grace before their requirements will become urgent, up to the end of May, but during this period it would seem as though almost a miracle in one way or business revival would have to occur to supply a satisfactory relation between income and outgo. The decline of stocks seemed so completely a result of technical considerations that it was not possible to ascribe the movement to the railroad outlook or any other single factor. The steel stocks showed no concern over the prolonged delay in clearing up the snarl over prices. On the contrary Steel common was lifted on a wave of heavy buying orders to a new high record for the year at 100¾. The ability of the stock to ignore current developments, nevertheless, mitigates not at all the inertia which has come over the steel consuming trade as a result of deferred hopes of large railroad buying, and the report of unfilled orders by the largest producing unit as of March 31, showed conclusively that forward buying is under a great deal of restraint. The decline of bookings, amounting to 580,215 tons, during March, makes the total shrinkage close to 2,000,000 tons in the last three months, and of more than 2,000,000 tons, since the end of November. Information coming from producing quarters shows that output during March was at a lower rate than either February or January, which means that bookings were probably more sluggish than the figures represent. If the mills have continued their February rate of activity shipments would have eaten more extensively into orders in hand and a much heavier decline of new business would have been displayed in the report on contracts.

News that the terms of the Victory Loan would be announced early next week was received with relief in banking circles. As soon as the character and interest rates of the offering are before the people the preliminary work of the selling campaign should quickly gain headway. Call money was firm at 6 per cent. and the supply of time money was more contracted than last week.

APPEAL BY BURLESON TO TEST WIRE RATES

BURLESON EXPLAINS RATES

Says Advances Cover Only Wage and Material Increases and Do Not Benefit Owners.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Efforts will be made by the Government to have the Supreme Court determine finally before it adjourns for the Summer in June, the question whether under the joint resolution by which the Government took over control of the telephone and telegraph systems. Postmaster General Burleson has authority to increase toll rates.

This became known today following the filing of an appeal by the Government from South Dakota Supreme Court decrees permanently enjoining four telephone companies in that State from increasing their rates in compliance with an order issued by Mr. Burleson on Dec. 13 last. While two other cases involving the validity of the Burleson order have reached the court, this is the first direct appeal taken, and the Government plans to make it a test case. For that reason, Solicitor General King, when the court reconvenes next Monday, following a two-weeks' recess, will ask formally to have consideration of the case expedited.

Postmaster General Burleson declared today that increases in telephone and telegraph rates under Government supervision of the wire systems provide only for advance in the wages of employes granted or contemplated and for greater cost of material and supplies, and that no part of the increases benefits the owners of the systems.

Officers of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, which is now conducting a strike vote, have charged that employes have failed to receive advances in wages commensurate with the increased rates.

"The increase of wages allowed employes of the wire systems under Government control," said a statement issued by the Postmaster General, "aggregate for telegraph and telephone combined, $34,000,000 per annum, while the total increases made or contemplated amount to lests than $40,000,000. It is necessary to provide for increased cost of apparatus, material and supplies, as well as for the wage increase, and the increase of rates is not as great, as applied to either service, as would have been unavoidable under private control."

HARRISBURG, Penn., April 10.—The Public Service Commission today issued formal orders to the Western Union Telegraph and Postal Telegraph Cable Companies to stop charging or collecting any rates for service rendered within Pennsylvania "in excess of or different from the rates and charges contained in the tariffs and schedules" of the companies on file with the Commission and in effect prior to April 1, 1919. The effect of this order would be to prevent the companies from charging the Federal rates. A few days ago Attorney General Schaeffer issued a letter to the two companies informing them of the decision of Judge Kunkel in the telephone rate cases and asking that they make charges conform to rates approved by the State.

CLARK ST. TUNNEL READY.

Plan to Run First Trains on Tuesday Morning.

The Public Service Commission announced yesterday that the Clark Street tunnel for subway trains operating on the west side would be placed in operation one minute after midnight next Tuesday morning. It was explained that the date was in a measure tentative as some unexpected osbtacle might qinterfere.

It is planned to have trains leave Wall Street for Brooklyn, and Atlantic Avenue for Manhattan at precisely the same time. The initial trains will carry members and employes of the commission and officials of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, which will operate the service.

Just what relief this addition to the dual system will afford to the general congestion has not yet been estimated, but it is considered certain that it will cut the travel on the shuttle service through Forty-second Street at least 25 per cent. The new service will make unnecessary the transferring of Brooklyn passengers from the west to the east side line through the shuttle, and will also obviate the necessity of overland transferring at Wall and Rector Streets.

The new service will discharge passangers at a station on a new level at Borough Hall, Brooklyn, which is connected by a passage with the old station so that passengers may change to or from the east side subway. Passengers may also make similar changes at the terminus at Atlantic Avenue and at Nevins Street. The only new station to be opened is located at Clark and Henry Streets, Brooklyn.

The commission has directed the Interborough Company to begin a publicity campaign to familiarize passengers with the new service, which includes many new passages, entrances, and exits.

N. & W. Common Stock Increased.

ROANOKE, Va., April 10.—Stockholders of the Norfolk & Western Railway in annual meeting here today voted to increase the common capital stock of the company by $100,000,000 to an aggregate of $250,000,000, and authorized the directors to create, issue and sell from time to time convertible bonds to an aggregate of $108,431,000. More than 78 per cent. of the capital stock of the company was represented at the meeting.

FILE SUIT FOR $120,000,000.

OMAHA, April 10.—A damage suit for $120,000,000 was filed here Wednesday night with the clerk of the District Court, by John O. Yeiser, attorney for Louie Osborn Ferson and Grace Osborn, sister, naming among its defendants the packing houses of Omaha.

The petition charges a grand conspiracy on the part of certain organizations in the United States and England to defraud the public, and sets forth the use of a patent which the petition states belongs to Louie Osborn Ferson and Grace Osborn. This patent, the petition alleges, has been used to great advantage by the defendants in making a biscuit of which the principal ingredients are pork and beans.

Two of the defendants are designated as "John Doe, No. 1 and Joe Doe, No. 2." These designations apply to all publishers who conspire to ridicule and give unfair and untrue statements of the plaintiffs and of any of the plaintiff's proceedings which may be alleged in the proceedings.

Otis Elevator Profits.

The Otis Elevator Company reports profits of $1,012,488 in the year ended Dec. 31, 1918, after paying interest and making reservation for Federal taxes. This was equal to $9.77 per share of common stock, over and above the sum required for preferred stock dividends. The year's surplus was $303,913 and the aggregate surplus totaled $3,003,914. In the annual statement W. D. Baldwin, President, says that notes and accounts payable were reduced nearly $4,000,000 during the year, while a further reduction of $1,000,000 has been made since Jan. 1, 1919.

COTTON AGAIN IRREGULAR.

Market Changes, However, Largely Due to Readjustments.

There was another decidedly irregular session of the cotton market yesterday, with prices rising in the forenoon and selling off again later, and at the close there were more net losses—considerably more—than net gains. This result, it is more than probable, was caused by readjustments within the market more than by any development in the news or in trade conditions.

The news on the whole was about a stand off, with the good offsetting the unfavorable. Probably by the end of the day there was a more wholesome tone to the list than has obtained in some days, and it is about certain that the technical position was better than it was before the reaction set in on Tuesday.

Profit taking was a feature early in the session, after some buying at the opening on unfavorable weather reports from the South and a somewhat better political situation. This selling, which came mainly from Wall Street and other local speculative circles, started the day's decline, and after a rise of 10 to 30 points in the new style contracts had been scored prices fell until net losses ranging from 25 to 60 points—the extreme loss was in July—had been recorded. Even the circulation of a report that France was buying and would take upward of 500,000 bales for export, beginning around June 1, failed to cause a recovery of any consequence.

A report from Washington that Governor Allen of Kansas and others had filed complaints against the Southern Cotton Growers' Association for its campaign for a decided reduction in acreage gave the trade much to talk about. This movement has been meeting with most decided opposition in some circles, and it has been openly charged that the action of the Growers' Association was in plain violation of the anti-trust act.

The association, on the contrary, has insisted that because it is a "farmers' association" it is immune.

UNFILLED TONNAGE DROPS.

Steel Corporation Shows a Decline from February Figures.

Another sharp falling off in unfilled steel orders on the books of the United States Steel Corporation was recorded yesterday when the figures of March 31 were announced. The total of bookings at the close of last month was 5,430,572 tons, this representing a decline of 580,215 tons from the tonnage figures at the end of February.

Since the signing of the armistice the unfilled orders on the books of the company have declined 2,694,091 tons, or on an average of about 673,000 tons a month. The decline during March was therefore not as heavy as earlier in the present year. This, it is considered, was due to the fact that practically all of the Government cancellations had been made. The highest unfilled tonnage ever recorded by the company was in April of 1917, when the total was 12,183,083. Since that time there has been a steady decline. The present unfilled orders are considered as sufficient to keep the Steel Corporation running at capacity for about four months.

The decline of slightly less than 600,000 tons was expected. There has been considerable speculation regarding the figures recently and most of the estimates placed the probable decrease at something in the neighborhood of 700,000 tons.

The Director General of Railroads, Walker D. Hines, refused finally today to accept, on his own responsibility, the schedule of prices for steel rails and other products, agreed upon by the steel men and the Industrial Board. Chairman Peek of the board countered with th charge that by adopting such a position Mr. Hines was facing the grave responsibility of stopping progress toward a reconstruction program which would spell prosperity.

Statement Issued by Hines.

The explosion came after Mr. Hines and Mr. Peek held a conference this afternoon. Mr. Peek returned to his offices after the meeting and consulted by telephone with Secretary Redfield of the Department of Commerce, under whose auspices the Industrial Board was born. It is understood that Mr. Redfield agreed with Mr. Peek that the matter should go to the President for decision because of the reconstruction problems of great importance which are involved in the fate of the board's plans. Mr. Peek and Mr. Redfield will confer tomorrow prior to sending advices to the President.

A statement, issued by Mr. Hines, said in part:

"After repeated consideration of steel and iron prices proposed by the Industrial Board, I am still of the opinion that those prices are too high and, therefore, that the Railroad Administration cannot approve them as being reasonable prices.

"It has been perfectly clear to me throughout the discussion of this matter, and I think it is now generally understood, that no power was conferred on the Industrial Board to impose any prices upon the Railroad Administration, but that it retained the power and also was under a duty to exercise its own judgment in respect to this important matter.

"Throughout the discussion in the Industrial Broad itself, Mr. Powell, the representative of the Railroad Administration, indicated that the final approval of any prices, so far as the Railroad Administration was concerned, rested with the Director General himself. Mr. Powell, during the discussion, objected that not only the prices on steel rail but the prices generally were unreasonably high, and before the committee announced its action he positively stated that the Railroad Administration would not agree to buy at the proposed prices.

Advisers Thought Prices Too High.

"After the Industrial Board had announced the prices, I took the matter under consideration and asked my advisers in purchasing matters to give me their views on the subject. This conference expressed the unanimous opinion that the prices were too high.

"To the extent that the Railroad Administration finds it necessary to make purchases it will continue to make them on the best terms obtainable, but as fair and just to the roads, with full recognition of the principle that a Government agency with large purchasing power must be particularly careful not even to attempt action which could be regarded as oppressive.

"The object of the Railroad Administration throughout has been to obtain a fair and reasonable price level. It has never contemplated that it should get a lower price level than the general public.

"If the Industrial Board can assist in bringing about levels of prices at which the Railroad Administration will feel justified in buying, its co-operation will be welcomed.

"In the newspaper discussions of this matter, the suggestion has at times occurred that the principal thing is to establish some price which the Government will live up to in the end that the public will begin buying at that price, and that the mere establishment of a price for this purpose is more important than the intrinsic reasonableness of the price itself. I cannot agree with this principle. I believe that the great desirability of stimulating business in every reasonable way, but I believe in the long run that the indorsement by a Government purchasing agency of an excessive price level would be harmful to the public interest and would not bring about the end which Mr. Peek sought to be obtained will come only by reaching a price level which the public itself shall consider to be reasonable.

"I believe one of thee greatest problems that confronts this country is that of getting prices back to a reasonable level, and I believe progress in that direction will be seriously retarded by the approval by a governmental purchasing agency of prices which it deems excessive."

Statement by Chairman Peek.

Chairman Peek later issued a statement arraigning Mr. Hines for the position he had taken. He said in part:

"The Industrial Board was formed to carry out a perfectly defined industrial policy to which the Government, represented by the President, the Cabinet, and the Director General, was fully committed.

"There is no ambiguity either in the record or in the minds of the people of the United States as to just what that policy is—it is to avoid industrial stagnation pending a return from war to peace prices, to start the wheels of industry, to give employment to labor, to reduce the cost of living, to insure prosperity.

"To the complete success of this plan, however, there was one absolute essential, that the governmental departments should express the confidence of the Government in the execution of this most important policy. Especially is this true in respect of steel rails, in the buying of which the Government, through its control of the railroads, consumes a very large percentage of the output.

"At this late date in the execution of the plan, this important essential to its success has been denied by the Director General of Railroads, and by that denial the whole of the Industrial Board is set at naught and the Government is exhibited as setting up an industrial policy with one hand and destroying it with the other.

"Considering the first of the Director General's reasons for refusing to accept the steel prices—that the Industrial Board has no right to impose a price on the Railroad Administration—the technical prerogative of the Railroad Administration must be and always has been cheerfully conceded by the Industrial Board.

"But presuming the Government to have been committed to this important industrial policy, the board feels that the Railroad Administration is under a powerful if not a compelling obligation either to have the governmental policy abandoned or to demonstrate that the prices announced by the board are not fair.

"The second of the Director General's reasons for his grave action is that in his opinion the prices are 'too high.' A representative of the Railroad Administration is a member and a part of the board. Contrary to Mr. Hines's impression, this representative did not maintain that the prices of steel generally were 'too high.' He finally dissented only on the price of rails.

"In fairness to the Railroad Administration, it must be admitted that by using the full effect of its power of monopolistic buying, it might secure a price on rails somewhat lower than that announced by the Industrial Board. The inevitable result of the use of the enormous buying power of the Railroad Administration to reduce any price would be to create a situation which would have to be met in one of the following ways: A—Increasing of prices to the public. B—Throwing all railroad business into a monopoly of powerful producers. C—Reducing wages.

"The Railroad Administration's refusal to accept the steel prices puts a temporary check on the work of the Board, but before abandoning the vital industrial policy which it represents, the board will see that the whole controversy is submitted to the President for final decision."

USES LAW OF COMMONSENSE

Bronx Justice Refuses to Aid Landlords Whom He Thought Unfair.

Frankly saying that he was disregarding the statutes for the law of common sense justice, Harry Robitzek, in the Bronx Municipal Court, refused yesterday to issue dispossess notices for landlords whom he believed were not seeking a reasonable increase in rent but who were profiteering. There were 350 cases to have come up yesterday, but some of them have been compromised out of court. To those who were dissatisfied with his course he said that they had as recourse an appeal to the Appellate Division. In giving this advice the Justice said that they would have to go there before he would grant them anything under the present antiquated laws.

In some of the cases heard where he considered that the increase was a reasonable one, he advised the tenants to pay it, and in nearly every case tenants who appeared said they knew that costs had gone up and that a slight increase in rent was to be expected. He threw out cases where he considered that landlords were taking advantage of the lack of adequate housing facilities.

One case that he dismissed was an action brought by the Aerial Real Estate Company against Jacob Friedman, a tenant at 674 East 138th Street. His rent had been raised from $18 to $30 within four months. Within the last month it had gone up from $23. This amount he said he was willing to pay. Friedman was represented by Morris Gisnet of the Greater New York Tenants' League. David Knoblock, an agent representing his father, the head of the Aerial Real Estate Company, testified regarding the rent raises.

"Your methods are absolutely un-American," Justice Robitzek told him. "Your very action is enough to breed discontent among the poor. Proceedings like this serve to breed autocracy and I must say that it was unfortunate that you should be placed in charge of an apartment of this kind."

The Court listened to a woman who volunteered the information that the tenants where she lived had held three indignation meetings and each was followed by a dollar raise in rent.

After court Justice Robitzek repeated some of the things he had said in court, and he dwelt upon the responsibility of the men who lease apartment houses or other properties and then proceed to extortion. "It is because of this sort of thing that the people drift toward Bolshevism," he said, "and other forms of radicalism." It is a condition that ought to be remedied and that as soon as possible."

OFFERS REWARD FOR HOME.

Elmhurst Man Finds It Difficult to Secure an Apartment.

Edward Siegel, Secretary of the Eastern Zinc Refining Company of Greenpoint, one of the well known business men of that borough and a resident of 11 Twenty-second Street, Elmhurst, has offered a reward of $25 in addition to the regular commission of real estate agents to any one who will find him an apartment in the section between Long Island City and Jamaica into which he can move with his wife and two children. He must move before May 1, as his landlord has rented his present apartment to another family. The reward has been offered for several days, but as yet there have been no takers.

This dilemma of Mr. Siegel, it is said, indicates the conditions regarding the housing situation in the section of Queens from Long Island City to Flushing. There is not a single vacant apartment or house, and many tenants are being compelled to move because landlords are leasing their apartments or houses to other tenants who are willing to pay a higher rent.

A public indignation meeting has been called by residents of the Elmhurst and Long Island City sections to protest against what they declare to be profiteering on the part of landlords. The matter is to be called to the attention of the Queens Grand Jury, which is now in session, to see if any relief can be secured.

NEUTRAL LOAN TO GERMANY?

Dutch Talk of $1,500,000,000 Advance Under Supervision of Allies.

AMSTERDAM, April 10.—The visit to Paris of the Dutch financiers van den Hoven and Dr. Meulen, a local news agency says, has reference to the conclusion of a loan by neutral States to Germany of $1,500,000,000. The loan is to be made under the supervision of the Allies, and is for the purpose of restoring the economic situation in Continental Europe.

Swiss and Scandinavian bankers, it is added, are participating in the negotiations.

Plans Trust Certificate Issue.

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company is preparing to issue approximately $7,300,000 equipment trust certificates, according to information obtained in banking circles yesterday, which will bear interest at 6 per cent. and mature in semi-annual instalments over a period of years. It could not be learned whether or not the company would seek to dispose of the certificates before the Victory Loan campaign is completed. The proceeds will be used to pay for cars and locomotives bought during the last two years, some of which were allotted to the company by the Railroad Administration.

Budget Twice Total Yield from Taxation, Finance Minister Declares.

Schiffer, However, Tells Weimar Assembly Increased Salaries for Officials Are Necessary.

WEIMAR, April 9, (Associated Press.)—Germany's financial condition was set forth by Minister of Finance Schiffer today in addressing the National Assembly on the Budget for 1919. Treasury bills on January 31, he said, amounted to 58,300,000,000 marks and have since risen to 63,700,000,000 marks. The expenditure for the army and navy have fallen from 3,500,000,000 marks in January to 2,000,000,000 marks in March.

The Budget, the Minister stated, balanced at roughly 13,000,000,000 marks, which meant an addition of 5,700,000,000 marks as compared with last year, and the deficit would be not less than 7,500,000,000 marks.

Dr. Schiffer said the Budget was only a step in a transition to worse conditions, because it did not represent all the consequences of the war, such as indemnities payable to the Entente. He made an urgent appeal for economy, but said that one unavoidable item of additional expenditure was 1,600,000,000 marks, representing increases of salary for officials, this being rendered necessary by the increased cost of living.

The Minister urged that the flow of capital to other countries be energetically combatted. The total yield of taxation he estimated at 7,000,000,000 marks, and he insisted that indirect as well as direct taxation must be maintained.

"The question arises," Dr. Schiffer continued, "whether the German people can support the enormous burden of taxation. They would be able to do so if the taxation were accompanied by lower prices, but this cannot be brought about by the taxation of goods. The capacity for work and the love of work will have to be revived."

Central Foundry's Income Falls.

The Central Foundry Company shows in its report for 1918 about as heavy a decline of operating profits, compared with the preceding year, as any corporation whose earnings have been made public. The net revenue from manufacturing was $793,703, a falling off of more than 60 per cent. The reservation for Federal taxes reflected a smaller output than in 1917 by reason of the fact that it was no more than $38,839, against $558,562. The balance left over after providing for taxes, interest charges, sinking funds and depreciation was $201,005, compared with $1,228,441 the year before.

TREAT DRUG VICTIMS AT MUNICIPAL CLINIC

COPELAND PLANS CAMPAIGN

Two Doctors, Three Druggists, and One Addict Arrested in Raid in Brooklyn.

Sixty or more drug addicts visited the drug addiction clinic opened yesterday by the Department of Health at 139 Centre Street, and during the day about seventy-five addicts applied for relief at the Community Clearing House for addicts at 217 East Twenty-second Street. They were all sent to special wards in St. Luke's, Flower, Bellevue, and Roosevelt Hospitals.

One of the first to apply for help was a middle-aged woman apparently in moderate circumstances. She said she was married and had two children, and that her husband had been a drug addict for six years. Last Fall she developed influenza, and to ease her sufferings began to take some of the drug which was lying around the house. She said yesterday that both she and her husband wished to be cured and provision was made to care for the children while the parents are in an institution.

Another was a young chap who admitted that he had started on heroin when he was seventeen years old. He said the boys he went around with began to use the drug, which was obtained by a boy who was employed in a drug store. He said that he had obtained a ninety days' leave from the New York Central Railroad, where he worked as a brakeman, in order to take the cure. He will go to a hospital on Monday.

There was the case of a married woman, employed as a ticket chopper by the B. R. T., who began to take morphine a year ago, and the case of a widower who took to drugs fifteen years ago. Most of those who applied for help readily where they had obtained their drugs, naming in some instances physicians hitherto unsuspected. One thing that impressed those at the health clinic and at the clearing house was the number of young men who declared they had formed the drug habit at dance halls, taking the stimulant in order to have "more pep," as they expressed it.

"From the health standpoint there are several things we have to consider in connection with the drug evil. The first and the most important is the care of the wrecks.

"This problem has been put squarely up to this department a little sooner than I had anticipated, because of the raids which left hundreds of these poor unfortunates in the metropolis without sources of supply to which they could turn. It would be brutal to leave these men and the few women who have applied to suffer from lack of attention.

"During the day we have cared for about seventy-five of these addicts. We have taken their histories, made as thorough a physical examination as has been possible, and have begun in each case treatment which we hope will restore a large number of them to health and self-respect. Any one who has witnessed the line of emaciated, trembling, hollow-eyed men and women that has passed through the door of our emergency clinic today, and who will remember that these are only a part of the patients of a half dozen doctors, can recognize to what extent this evil has developed in the City of New York, and this condition which they are facing has not yet been brought to the clinic all of the addicts who were formerly supplied by these doctors. The younger men and women, and those whose finer sensibilities have not been dulled, have shrunk from public appearance and have tried in various ways to obtain supplies of the drug.

Last Day's Pay to Get Drug.

"There was a surprising number of workingmen, most of whom lost a day's pay today, who came here so that they might be supplied with the drug. To accommodate these persons and to keep them in condition where they can go about their daily tasks, it will be necessary for the department to keep this clinic open at night and on Sundays."

Dr. Copeland expressed his conviction that stocks of hidden drugs would be running low by this morning and that today and tonight he expected a rush at the clinic. He reiterated his warning that some of the victims may break out into violence and said that the Police Department was taking special precautions.

A conference to discuss the scope of the drug evil and to devise means of fighting it was held yesterday in the office of Health Commissioner Copeland while by twos and threes, unfortunate victims of the traffic, came to the Commissioner's offices or to the relief station at 217 East Twenty-second Street, seeking the opiates of which they had been deprived by Tuesday's raids.

Those at the meeting were the members of the Public Health Committees, of the county medical societies of New York, Bronx, Richmond, and Queens, all under the Chairmanship of Dr. E. Elliott Harris, of the New York organization; Major Daniel L. Porter, directing the fight for the Government, and ex-State Senator George H. Whitney, Deputy Commissioner of the State Narcotic Commission.

According to Commissioner Whitney the records of his organization show that in the last thirty days, forty New York physicians applied for 160,000 of the triplicate forms which the commission requires to be used in issuing prescriptions of drugs. One of the blanks is retained by the physician, one is kept by the druggist, and the third is forwarded to the State, so that in regular practice a watch can be maintained.

An amplification of the statement published yesterday that 1,500,000 illicit prescriptions had been filled was offered by Major Porter. He said that in less than six months, three physicians had written more than a million illegal orders. One doctor, he said, had prescribed for 271 addicts in two hours, this physician's professional equipment consisting "of a box and one chair." Major Porter characterized the drug habit as "the biggest problem of the nation." It was ascertained that Major Porter's present duty is only temporary, and that he has already been chosen to enforce prohibition in this city.

Made 500 Per Cent. Profit.

"The druggists who are under arrest," said Dr. Copeland, "were getting from $80 to $100 an ounce for cocaine and about $65 an ounce for heroin, about 500 per cent. profit. An after result of the raids came to me this morning, when nine persons called at my house in an effort to obtain drugs. They were of what I may call the 'high-grade' addict, those who make every effort to conceal their affliction and continue at work.

"One of the purposes of today's conference was to define what constitutes a drug addict. The conference finally accepted this definition: One who requires or demands the daily administration of a narcotic for a longer period than three weeks. The average addict takes from 10 to 20 grains a day; of course there are some who take as high as 60 grains. Having defined, for purely administrative purposes, what constitutes an addiction, the State Narcotic Commission can go ahead and determine how and when to deal with them.

"Those who still think that the practice of taking habit-forming drugs is a small thing and can be easily segregated should know that in last January alone the demand upon the wholesale durg dealers was more than the demand for the entire year of 1918. In February the demand took such a leap that the wholesalers were compelled to put in effect restrictions limiting the amount to be sold to each person.

"One thing I'd like to emphasize," he continued, "is that the legitimate practitioner has nothing to fear. In fact, we want them to co-operate in treating those persons who now find that they can no longer have recourse to the illicit and unscrupulous physicians."

Dr. Copeland said that the Police Department had informed him that the drug peddlers, for a time practically extinct, were again reappearing on the streets. He said that apparently these men knew that the illicit prescriptionists were running to cover and that they could reap a harvest on the streets. He disclosed that great quantities of opiates were being smuggled into the country. He said that recently a plan much used by the smugglers had been brought to light. It was that smugglers had been found operating across the Mexican border and that they would go into Mexico and get morphine. They would then dissolve the drug in a pail of water, strip off their suits, and soak them in the water. When the clothes were dry, the smugglers would don them and cross into the States, put the suit in water, evaporate the water, and regain the morphine. He said that auto tires were also being filled up with drugs.

Arrest Doctors in Brooklyn.

Internal Revenue agents, aided by United States Marshal Power and Detectives Boyle, Higgins, and Moog of the Narcotic Squad, last night conducted a drug raid in Brooklyn, arresting two physicians, three druggists, and an addict. The addict was taken to the Bedford Avenue Station and then to Kings County Hospital for treatment, while the others were arraigned before United States Commissioner Michael F. McGoldrick and held in $2,000 bond for hearing on April 15.

The physicians arrested were Dr. Samuel Swetnich of 284 South Fourth Street and Dr. Emilio F. Iorio of 1,810 Eastern Parkway. The druggists were Srol Krulevetsky of 196 Roebling Street, Louis P. Moses of 6 Sumner Avenue, and George H. Balloss of 92 Liberty Avenue. The doctors were charged in Commissioner McGoldrick's warrants with illegally prescribing, the druggists with illicit selling.

The same method of obtaining evidence was followed in Brooklyn as lead up to the raids in Manhattan, the detectives and agents posing as drug seekers. While the raiders were at the home of Dr. Swetnich, the addict arrested, Frank Robutz, 22 years old, of 148 North Ninth Street came in and asked for a drug. When it was refused he almost collapsed. While the detectives were in the Balloss store two young women bearing prescriptions issued in Manhattan entered and when questioned left the store hurriedly. According to the Federal agents, the records seized in the drug stores showed that 4,000 prescriptions had been filled in six months, in some cases the druggists averaging sixty prescriptions a day.

Physicians' Association Protests.

At a meeting of the Psysicians' Protective Association, held last night at the Harlem Board of Trade, Lenox Avenue and 125th Street, a resolution was adopted unanimously protesting against the raids against the traffic in habit-forming drugs. The resolution was introduced by Dr. John P. Davin of 117 West Seventy-sixth Street, and it denounced the action of the Board of Health and the Federal agents, contending that the section of the Harrison anti-narcotic law which demands that physicians shall reduce the amount of drugs administered is "a fallacy."

Asserting that such a ruling had driven "unnumbered victims" to suicide and to the underworld, the resolution closed with the statement that the doctors' organization would uphold the right of practitioners of medicine to prescribe for the disease of drug addiction, unhampered by a rule of treatment laid down by any court of law. Dr. Davin declared at the meeting that it was impossible for any court to decide that a physician, in order to show good faith, should reduce the quantity of the drug ordered for a patient with each prescription.

FILIPINOS SEE NEW YORK.

The Philippine Mission, which arrived in New York on Wednesday to open its campaign here for Philippine independence spent the greater part of yesterday sightseeing in Manhattan. During the afternoon the entire party of forty-one toured the city in motor buses. Members of the delegation who had never been to America before gazed in wondement at the city's great sky-scrapers.

The mission has a many-sided purpose in visiting the United States at the present time, and while it was sent by the Philippine Legislature that had been elected on an independence ticket, its members say that the numerous other than political reasons for the trip are considered almost as important as their effort to gain complete autonomy. One of the main reasons for the trip is to improve commercial relations with this country, and Senator Manuel L. Quezon, who heads the delegation, said yesterday that he hoped American shipping interests would see fit to resume American shipping in the Pacific at an early date. The Japanese have practically controlled Pacific shipping since the Pacific Mail quit competition in those waters.

Another of the purposes of the mission was to get in touch with the American religious organizations that maintain missionaries in the Philippine Islands, and assure them that every effort will be made to assist these organizations to continue their work after the islands have been granted their complete autonomy. This assurance was given to representatives of the American Bible Society and various Mission Boards at a luncheon at the Pennsylvania Hotel yesterday at which the Bible Society was the host.

At 1:30 this afternoon the delegation will leave for a tour around the Island on the Navy tug Aramis. This evening the members will be the guests of M. F. Loewenstein, President of the Pacific Commercial Company, at a dinner at Healy's. They will again be his guests on April 16, when he has planned a luncheon in their honor at the India House, to which men prominent in the hemp trade will be invited to meet the mission and discuss the hemp trade, in which the Philippines play an important part. Governor-General Francis Burton Harrison will entertain the delegation at dinner on Monday.

WOMEN FAVOR PRIMARIES.

Municipal League Elects Officers for Ensuing Year.

At the annual meeting of the Woman's Municipal League at the Plaza yesterday afternoon twelve Chairmen of committees reported, and the annual election of officers was held, Mrs. Frederick C. Hodgdon, the President, and other officers being re-elected. The following resolution asking for nominations for public office by primaries was unanimously passed:

Resolved, That the Woman's Municipal League in annual meeting assembled records its belief that nominations to public office should be by primaries rather than conventions. That the ground of such belief is that it is desirable that the broadest possible participation of the voter be maintained, and that such participation is best maintained by the primary system, making its demand for individual votes.

The League expressed its appreciation for the restoring of the Clearing Bureau by Charities Commissioner Bird S. Coler and urged that the Children's Home Bureau also be restored. An appeal was made for more women between the ages of 18 and 25 to enter the training school for nurses at the Metropolitan Hospital.

It was announced that a campaign for trees as memorials to soldiers killed in the great war has been organized by the League. Two trees have already been planted by St. Michael's Church. The cost of a tree, Oriental pine or Norway maple, recommended by the Park Department as most likely to live in city streets, including guard and iron tablet, is $75. The League is receiving calls for information from all parts of the country. The following directors were elected for a three years' term: Mrs. Charles M. Hough, Mrs. Adrian Van S. Lambert, Mrs. Edward E. Loomis, Mrs. Henry [illegible]enthau, Mrs. Milton G. Starrett, Mrs. Henry A. Stimson and Mrs. Edward S. Van Zile.

CONTINUE WELFARE LEAGUE.

Court Approves New York Railways' Philanthropic Activity.

Job E. Hedges, receiver of the New York Railways Company, obtained permission from Federal Judge Mayer yesterday to continue the Welfare League established by the company. In seeking the necessary permission, Mr. Hedges said that the major part of the company's employes were members of the league, that they manage their own affairs in their own way, and that none of the supervising employes ever attend the meetings.

He also explained that the members of the league were cared for when ill and that a pension plan was in operation. In reply to a question by Judge Mayer, Mr. Hedges said that the official title of the league was The Brotherhood of Employes of the New York Railways. In granting his permission to let the league continue along the old lines, Judge Mayer said:

"I agree with the receiver that this apparently is a very valuable system. It means the comfort and, I trust, the good-will of the employes and, when both are satisfactorily existing, the efficiency of the operation."

Old Men's Toy Shop Sale Opens.

The Old Men's Toy Shop, conducted by the Society for Improving the Condition of the Poor, with headquarters in Mott Street, began its annual sale of Easter toys at 680 Fifth Avenue, between Fifty-third and Fifty-fourth Streets, yesterday, and will continue to April 19. All the animals of the barnyard and the Zoo will be found in the sale, and a number of the workmen will be present and show the process of toymaking. The entire proceeds of the sale go into the men's wage fund.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

The shortage of housing facilities in Greater New York and the constantly growing demand for vacant plots ready for improvement were shown conclusively yesterday in the Vesey Street Salesroom by the keen competition of investors and homeseekers for the James G. McLaughlin estate holdings, which were sold at public auction by Joseph P. Day.

Long before noon, the hour fixed for auction, the salesroom was crowded to its utmost capacity. The 104 parcels offered were disposed of in almost record time for a total of $219,000.

Although the vacant lots were bought up quickly the dwelling properties excited the greatest competition, and so fast did the bids come on the small parcels that it was difficult at times to record them. This was the case with the seven two-story two-family brick dwellings at 7,704 to 7,710 and 7,716 to 7,724 Seventh Avenue, between Seventy-seventh and Seventy-eighth Streets, Brooklyn, which were sold for $5,500, $5,600, $5,500, $5,600, $5,550, $5,800, and $5,750, respectively. The buyers were B. A. Stevens, who secured four of the houses; J. Cahill, F. D. Grece & Co., and William Kohlmayer.

The three two-story brick and concrete dwellings at 1,947 to 1,951 East Eighth Street, Brooklyn, were sold for $3,880, $3,850, and $4,150, respectively. Each house measures 18 by 100. They are located between Avenues S and T.

The two two-story brick dwellings at 103 and 105 Seeley Street, Brooklyn, each 16.4 by 90, were sold for $2,750 each. On the same block the plot 100 by 100, at the northwest corner of Seeley Avenue and Eighteenth Street, was struck down for $3,850. For the three-story dwelling at 54 South Tenth Street, 22.1 by 78, near Wythe Avenue, was sold for $4,600.

The fifteen lots, each 20 by 100, at the northeast corner of Debevoise Avenue and Division Place, Brooklyn, with frontages of 100 and 300 feet, respectively, and also five lots abutting on Beadel Street, each 20 by 100, were sold for a total of $11,590, at the rate of $575 each. The buyers included J. Slattery, John Wedlock, and W. J. Glacken.

Brick tenements at 1,228 Nostrand Avenue, corner of Winthrop Street, Brooklyn, went for $11,500, while the inside houses at 1,220 to 1,224 Nostrand Avenue sold for $6,050 and $5,900, respectively, the tenement at 287 Winthrop Street going for $5,900.

In most instances investors and homeseekers were the successful bidders. Discussing the sale at its close Mr. Day said that he considered it an excellent test of the present market, which is showing a decided upward trend in all its branches, but especially in vacant plots which have been dormant for months past.

Former Governor Whitman Buys Upper East Side Dwelling.

Former Governor Charles S. Whitman has purchased for occupancy 54 East Eighty-third Street from the estate of William Schlemmer. The property consists of a four-story high stoop dwelling on a lot 19.6 by 102.2. Pease & Elliman negotiated the sale.

SCHOOL HEAD SAYS HYLAN INTERFERES

INVESTIGATION IS OPENED

State Board Begins Sifting Differences Between Department and City Administration.

William L. Ettinger, City Superintendent of Schools, declared yesterday that Mayor Hylan had "unnecessarily intruded" himself into the affairs of the Board of Education, and also denied the right of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to regultae the finances of the Board of Education. The statements of Superintendent Ettinger were made at an inquiry opened yesterday in the rooms of the Bar Association by the State Board of Regents which is making an effort to ascertain the points at issue between the Board of Education and the city administration arising out of the recent demand of Commissioner of Accounts Hirschfield to examine the books of the Board of Education.

After expressing the hope that the Committee of Regents would go into the whole controversy in a broad way, Superintendent Ettinger said:

"Either here in New York we are acting under the State Education law or we are a city department amenable to city authority. I claim that it is impossible to conduct the affairs of the school system in my capacity as chief executive officer if there is to be continual strife and contest between the Department of Education and the municipal authorities."

Mr. Ettinger charged that through budget restrictions, terms, and conditions, city officials have attempted to regulate the policies and affairs of the Board of Education in a manner which he declared was not in accord with the law under which the city schools are supposed to be managed. Explaining the method of preparing the budget and how the pay rolls were made out, Mr. Ettinger followed with these assertions:

Assails Dual Control.

"I claim that the public school system cannot be a success if it is administered under the dual control of the State Education law and the city charter. I claim that we are living under the State Education law, which defines precisely the powers of the Board of Education and in no way gives to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment this power of regulation.

"I claim that the Mayor has unnecessarily intruded himself into the matters of the Board of Education and has evidenced that he has a conviction that the Board of Education is subject to municipal control as represented by the Mayor's office. As to the investigation of the accounts my position is that the law does not give the city officials the right of inquiry into a State Department or corporation such as the Department of Education."

The inquiry was conducted before Regents Adelbert Moot, James Byrne, Herbert Bridgman and William Nottingham. Representatives of the city who were present included Corporation Counsel Burr and Assistant Corporation Counsel Mayer.

The attitude of Corporation Counsel Burr nettled the Regents, for he almost refused to take notice of them, declining to put in a formal appearance. He filed no brief as did Superintendent Ettinger, insisting in his colloquies with the Regents that the matter was in the courts, where it would be decided. Several times the Regents explained carefully that they were attempting to learn all the facts so that they might help ameliorate a difficult condition, but Mr. Burr's replies were curt, and the Regents were unable to conceal their displeasure.

When they attempted to have Mr. Burr call the attention of Controller Craig to the importance of appearing in order to explain his side of the case, Mr. Burr evaded the matter. Later he was again asked to get Controller Craig to the meeting, after being reminded by Regent Byrne that the committee did not think it necessary to serve subpoenaes on persons whose presence was desired. Mr. Burr quickly ordered a message sent to Controller Craig and it was later reported that the Controller was in Albany.

Criticises Controller.

James J. Smith, Chairman of the Salary Committee of the Civil Service Employes of the Board of Education, charged that Controller Craig had, through seriously inconveniencing small salaried employes by withholding money, driven some of them to patronize loan sharks and others to sell Liberty bonds in order to meet their living expenses.

By adhering strictly to budget lines, the Controller, according to Mr. Smith, had caused 200 employes to receive their January salaries on Feb. 14, and 160 to receive their January pay on Feb.28. One hundred employes whose salary increases had been paid in September, October, November and December, Mr. Smith declared, were deprived of their rightful increases in January, while 200 employes who should have received increases of $100 beginning with January had not received them because the money had been held up by the Controller.

Shortly after the meeting opened Arthur S. Somers, President of the Board of Education, said: "In all frankness, there was much ado about details. Men of business affairs would have settled such issues promptly and would have saved much unfortunate publicity and misunderstanding which has tended to create in the public mind that there is something rotten in Denmark. We members of the Board of Education are so confident that the records are unblemished that we have favored the fullest inquiry, and we feel much concerned and hope that it will be settled in the quickest way possible."

Adjournment was taken until April 23 at 10 a. m.

Government to Restore Grand Central Palace to the Lessees.

J. H. Nixon, Vice President of the newly-formed Nemours Trading Corporation, which was organized by Alfred I. du Pont, to take over his various interests in New York City, said yesterday that the Government had notified him that the Grand Central Palace, now used as a base hospital, would be turned back to the lessees on September 30.

As soon as possible after that date the building will be opened for exposition purposes and as an international buying exposition centre. Automobile shows, flower shows and all kinds of exhibitions which were previously held in the building will continue, but the upper stories will be used for displays of many lines of goods, both of domestic and imported manufacture. Under a law which was passed to give the management of the building the same rights granted to the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco for the exhibition of imported goods duty free, it has been asserted that imported goods could be placed on display at the Grand Central Palace without import charges, except for goods sold. Mr. Nixon declined to discuss the supposed effect of this law on expositions to be held at the Grand Central Palace.

"The Government is bound by its contract to restore the building to its condition before it was altered as a hospital," Mr. Nixon said. "It is not quite certain whether it will be altered and ready for our occupany by Sept. 30, or whether the changes will begin on that date, but at any rate we will begin holding expositions in the building in the Fall. We hope to make it a center for buyers of the world and to boom both import and export business. There is going to be great difficulty in exporting unless we import. There must be reciprocity in trade, because the nations doing business with us can't continue to buy if the balance of trade is always against them."

The Nemours Trading Corporation takes over various du Pont enterprises, including the Allied Industries Corporation, the Merchants and Manufacturers' Exchange, the All-American Association, and the French-American Constructive Corporations. Branch offices of the corporation have been established at London, Paris, Manila, Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro, Santos, Sao Paulo, Demerara, Surinam, Jamaica, Trinidad, Barbados, St. Lucia, Grenada, and St. Vincent.

Alfred I. du Pont is the President of the corporation; Robert Pennington, Chariman; J. H. Nixon, Vice President and General Manager; L. P. Lawrence and R. H. Michels, Vice Presidents; C. W. Fay, Secretary and Treasurer.

PEKING, April 10.—The Antiochus, the fourth steamer deporting Germans, left Shanghai today, carrying nearly 400 persons. Others from Canton are to be picked up at Hongkong. A fifth vessel will be required. It is expected that a German steamer will be requisitioned for the transportation of the remaining Germans before the end of April. The matter has been fraught with great difficulties.

The Russian Legation has lodged a protest with the Chinese Government against the dispatch of Chinese troops to Mongolia, where an independence movement is in progress.

A GREAT many men still have the idea that E & W Collars cost more than others.

So we say
